RAIL BILL WINS IN HOUSE

CITY TO TODDLE FROM PARTIES' GUIDING ARMS

First Nonpartisan Election Tuesday.

Personality of the aldermanic candidates and the official records of those city council aspirants that have records are the only issues in Chicago's first nonpartisan election to be held Tuesday. The campaign has been devoid of any dominant feature that tends to align the men and women voters upon any given general proposition.

Republican factional organizations, tripping up for the county committee primary on April 13, as a rule have kept out of the aldermanic contests and Democratic ward organizations have taken only a mild interest in the fortunes of retiring aldermen who were elected two years ago as Democrats.

Voters Just Awake.

Within the last week many citizens have leaped to the realization that it is an election Tuesday and not a primary, and that the candidate who gets a clear majority is then and there elected to the council. The brushing aside of party lines in the canvass has served to increase tremendously the interest of voters, who have been kept out of other aldermanic campaigns because of the domination of the political machines in the different ward contests. The tryout of the new law Tuesday from present prospects will develop a total vote that will surprise some of the forecasters.

Bond Issues Up.

The only general proposition on the ballots will affect only those wards and precincts that lie within the South Park district. It is the ratification of the six South Park bond issues aggregating $20,000,000, for the lake front improvement.

The campaign ends with ten aldermanic candidates sure of reëlection, because they have no opposition. In eight wards, the chances are good for a supplementary election on April 6, and in seven others, it may be that supplementary elections will be necessary.

The wards that now look like sure things for second elections, are the Fifth, Eighth, Ninth, Twelfth, Twenty-second, Twenty-fourth, Twenty-seventh and Thirty-second. The seven that are on the "doubtful" list are the Thirteenth, Fourteenth, Fifteenth, Twenty-first, Twenty-sixth, Thirtieth and Thirty-third.

Situation by Wards.

The windup of the campaign discloses the following situation in the respective wards, according to the campaign managers.

Ald. Coughlin will win as usual in the First. Ald. Jackson has no serious trouble in the Second. Ald. Schwartz is unopposed in the Third. Ald. Richert is a conceded winner in the Fourth. The Fifth may go to a supplementary election, due to a probably heavy vote for the Labor and Socialist entries. The fight is between Ald. Mulcahy and State Representative Thomas A. Doyle, and the row is bitter. Doyle, who has the M. V. L. indorsement, is supposed to have the edge in the east end of the ward. Mulcahy has the bulk of the Democratic organization support.

Ald. Eaton has no opposition in the Sixth. Ald. Guernsey in the Seventh has one opponent, Allen G. Schreiver, backed by the city hall. Only a light vote is feared by Guernsey's boosters. The Eighth ward is fighting ground. The contest between five candidates seems to lie between Ald. Furman and Thomas A. Green, with George R. Bard a strong contender, and the surety that there will be a supplementary election. Furman, generally speaking, has the Democratic organization support; Bard has the Republican, and Green, indorsed by the Labor party and many nonpartisans, has made a strictly independent campaign.

Big Field in Ninth.

The Ninth is scheduled for a second election. Ald. Govier has four opponents, one of whom is Charles V. Johnson, former Socialist alderman, who is admittedly a strong contender. Ald. McNichols will win easily in the Tenth and Leonard Rutkowski is unopposed in the Eleventh. The Twelfth has eleven candidates, splitting up the field against Ald. Novak. The Democratic organization, controlled by Ald. A. J. Cermak, has indorsed no candidate. It is a cinch that a second election will be required.

The fight in the Thirteenth seems to be between Ald. Horne and James A.

HALTS MUSIC TO RAP DISTURBERS; WINS APPLAUSE

A startling incident marked the concert of the Chicago orchestra last night. A little party of four young people, seated near the front, had been engaged in conversation—animated and giggling—through much of the program. Finally Director Frederick Stock could restrain his annoyance no longer and just before the last movement of the Brahms symphony he halted proceedings and faced the audience.

"Be quiet! You ought to be ashamed of yourselves—you four. Get out!" he said earnestly.

Everybody present—including the noisy four—knew just whom and what he was referring to. There was applause. The guilty quartet sank visibly in their chairs. They did not "get out," but they were intensely quiet during the remainder of the concert.

MEET FOR WAR ON RENTS, STAY TO ARBITRATE

Tenants, Owners, in Truce; Firm Hit.

Tenants and landlords, face to face before the aldermanic rent committee yesterday, called each other names, shook their fists under each other's noses, and finally, with a few exceptions, agreed to arbitrate.

In the case of Hendricks & Luken of 235 East Garfield boulevard, accused of gouging tenants for bonuses in addition to commissions, there will be no arbitration. The evidence was sent to the city law department and Assistant Corporation Counsel Cressy believes he has legal grounds for revocation of the firm's license by Mayor Thompson.

"It is a simon pure case of gouging," said Ald. Oscar Olsen. "The evidence shows tenants were asked for and paid bonuses which went into the pockets of the real estate firm."

From $85 to $110 to $115 to $110.

Howard F. Leopold and Ernest Block, tenants of the building at 604-608 East Fifty-first street, were the accusers of Hendricks & Luken.

"Mr. Hendricks raised the rent from $85 to $110," said Leopold. "I went to sign the lease. He then said it was $115 a month. I said I'd pay it. Then he showed me the lease. It called for $110. I asked for an explanation.

"Hendricks replied, 'Don't ask foolish questions. Give me a check for $60 now, and I will let you sign the lease for a year at $110.'"

When Leopold announced he had stopped payment on the check, but retained the $110 lease, he got a round of applause from the hundred renters who crowded the committee room.

Mr. Block said he had paid the $60 bonus demanded and retained the canceled check as evidence, on the advice of Attorney Cressy.

Rent Nearly Doubled.

Phillip Silberman of 223 East Fifty-third street said the Hendricks-Lukens firm informed him his rent would be $65 instead of $35 after May 1.

"But when the case came up for arbitration before the Chicago real estate board a representative of the firm said there had been a mistake and only $55 was asked," he said.

Several tenants refused to submit their differences to the real estate board. They said the board's committee "can see only the landlord's side." P. W. Jones, executive secretary of the board's renting division, was criticized for alleged statements that in certain cases 100 per cent increases are justifiable.

On motion of Ald. Hogan, Louis T. Orr and J. J. Carroll, who represented the board at yesterday's meeting, were asked to direct Jones "not to make statements unless he has authority." Mr. Orr said Mr. Jones is without authority in rent adjustment cases.

They Will Arbitrate.

Roderick Ross of 7731 Paulina street, tenant, and A. B. Ammon of 7730 North Paulina street, his landlord, seemed far from arbitration when they began their argument, but they finally agreed to it.

"He wants to raise me from $60 to $90," said Ross.

"I'm no profiteer," said Ammon. "Neighbors tell me I should have asked for $110. They think I'm crazy to let you off with $90."

"Will you arbitrate?" asked Chair. Mulcahy.

"He has three little girls who make a pig pen out of the front entrance," said Ammon.

"My girls are good girls," countered Ross. "They go to Sunday school every Sunday. What do you want me to do—kill 'em?"

"Will you arbitrate?" persisted the chairman.

"I can get $90—I have a tenant waiting," said Ammon. "Why should I arbitrate?"

Finally Ammon gave in and the facts were turned over to the board.

Lights Gas for Heat.

Mrs. Caroline Kelso of 4811 North St. Louis avenue complained against Plotke & Grosby, owners of the building.

"The light shows in around the windows and there is steam only when they feel like it," she said. "When my husband, who is in military service, comes home at night he has to light the gas to get warm."

Her case was referred to the board.

Mrs. Belle Salk, speaking for S. B. Weinberger of 1346 Granville avenue, said the rent had been raised from

SCORNS POLICE; RISKS $25,000 IN OLD 'CON' GAME

T. F. Dalton Says He'll Win $35,000.

Thomas F. Dalton, wealthy bachelor and an official of the Tablet and Ticket company, 624 West Adams street, missed the 6:35 train for Hot Springs, Ark., last night. At that hour he was being detained at the detective bureau while Chief Mooney preached a sermon on the text, "A Fool and His Money Are Soon Parted."

Mr. Dalton was unmoved by the sermon. He informed Chief Mooney that he intended to catch the 11 o'clock train for Hot Springs and carry out a $25,000 deal with a group of men who, the police are convinced, are some of the slickest confidence men in the country.

How It Started.

Dalton, who resides with John Laughlin, saloonkeeper, and the latter's sister, Mrs. Hannah Roelle, at 1900 South Hamlin avenue, went to Hot Springs about two weeks ago and at the Marquette hotel there met a man representing himself as a Detroit business man.

The Detroiter "found" a pocketbook containing $250, some stock reports in code and a telegram addressed to the owner whom they located at the Eastman hotel in Hot Springs. The owner of the purse stated he was a New York business man. He was overjoyed when the pocketbook was returned.

"That contains very valuable stock information," he said. "I am under $100,000 bond not to speculate on the information I carry, but as a reward I shall invest the $250 for you in a little deal right away."

"Proof" of Identity.

He produced letters and telegrams to prove his identity and showed a long clipping from a newspaper tending to show he had once appeared as an important witness in a congressional investigation. He excused himself to go to a broker's office and returned shortly with two credit slips for $750, representing the winnings of each man. He later took the credit slips, "reinvested," and returned with two other slips for $2,250 each.

"I don't like to do this, but I'll take just one more chance," said the New Yorker. "You invest your $2,250 and I'll invest a like amount."

The president and cashier of the "brokerage" concern arrived at the hotel a little later with a satchel supposed to contain $105,000. Dalton told the police last night he never had seen so many bills. Each of the three had won $35,000!

This Sounds Familiar.

"But," said the president, "while I do not doubt your honesty in this matter, I can't let you have this money until you establish credit with some local bank. I'll give you until March 1 to do it."

The New Yorker said he was ruined if his firm ever learned of his speculation. He wired to his wife to get the money. She replied the friend was abroad. Another friend who he tried was sick in bed. Something must be done. The Detroiter caught a train for home to get $25,000. Dalton caught the same train, arrived here Thursday, and drew $13,000 from the Ogden Avenue State bank, despite the protestations of Clyde C. Amsler, vice president, to whom Dalton unfolded the story.

"Why, man, you're in the hands of confidence men," Amsler insisted. Dalton was deaf to his arguments. He was sure of the men he was dealing with, he said. He drew $12,000 more and sent the total by draft to the Arkansas National bank at Hot Springs.

Detectives Argue in Vain

He was eating a hasty supper preparatory to catching his train last night when detectives induced him to go to Chief Mooney's office. He refused to disclose the names of the men with whom he was dealing but consented to view the photographs at the bureau of identification. He failed to identify any as the Detroiter or New Yorker.

"I won't tell their names until I'm sure they're not on the square," he said. "I'm going to take Laughlin with me tonight. I'm afraid I'll be left out in the cold unless I get there before the deal goes through.

Raid Vanderbilt Yacht; Seize Store of Liquor

Key West, Fla., Feb. 21.—United States customs inspectors seized about $1,800 worth of spirituous liquors aboard the auxiliary schooner-yacht Genesee, belonging to W. K. Vanderbilt Jr. of New York City, when the vessel arrived here from Havana yesterday. It is the first seizure of its kind and has created wide interest in the fashionable winter colonies of Florida and among Americans in Havana.

TIE UP CASH IN 500 BANKS FOR THEFT INQUIRY

New York, Feb. 21.—Five hundred banks and safe deposit companies, it became known tonight, have been served with notices on an order issued by Federal Judge Hand not to permit the removal of money or securities believed to have been deposited by Nicholas Arnstein, who is a fugitive charged with receiving stolen securities from Wall street messengers.

Arnstein, the police say, is the "master mind" in a plot to obtain $5,000,000 in stocks and bonds with the aid of dishonest bank employés. A bench warrant for his arrest was issued today by Supreme Court Justice Wadhams, but despite a diligent search no trace of him has been found.

The name of Fanny Brice, mentioned in Judge Hand's order together with the names of several other persons that may have been used by Arnstein in depositing money or securities derived from alleged thefts, was said by the police to be a well known actress now appearing in a Broadway production.

According to the police and members of the district attorney's staff, Miss Brice is alleged to have admitted that she was the wife of Arnstein. The actress is said by the police to have been married to Arnstein while he used the name of Borach, also mentioned in Judge Hand's order. The marriage took place in Brooklyn in 1918.

The police believe Arnstein may have fled to Europe and the police of London, Paris, and other cities have been asked to watch for him.

DEATHLESS TRIBUTE PAID BY LINCOLN TO WASHINGTON FOUND

New York, Feb. 21.—Seventy-eight years ago tomorrow, in Springfield, Ill., young Abraham Lincoln paid tribute to George Washington. The words he uttered then, perhaps as eloquent as his world famed Gettysburg address, have been lost for three-quarters of a century in the pages of a country newspaper hidden away in the files of the congressional library. They were brought to light to be given to the world for the first time almost on the eve of another birthday anniversary of the first president. Lincoln said:

"This is the one hundred and tenth anniversary of the birthday of Washington. We are met to celebrate this day. Washington is the mightiest name on earth—long since mightiest in the cause of civil liberty, still mightiest in moral reformation. On that name a eulogy is expected. It cannot be. To add brightness to the sun or glory to the name of Washington is alike impossible. Let none attempt it. In solemn awe pronounce the name, and in its naked, deathless splendor leave it shining on."

The text of this unknown example of Lincoln's eloquence was found in Washington by Lucien Hugh Alexander of Philadelphia, who gave it to the Associated Press today. An account of the ceremony at which Lincoln spoke was contained in the copy of the Sangamon Journal, published at Springfield on Feb. 25, 1842. A file of the newspaper for that year was found by Mr. Alexander in the library of congress.

Jerusalem Isolated by Snowstorm for Week

CAIRO, Feb. 16.—[Delayed.]—Railway and telegraphic communications with Jerusalem have been restored after a week's interruption due to storms. The weather in Cairo the last ten days has been unprecedentedly cold and stormy.

Three Foot Fall in Jerusalem.

JERUSALEM, Feb. 13.—[Delayed.]—An unprecedented snowfall of thirty-nine inches has crippled communications and caused great distress and hunger. The government has instituted relief work.

Pianos and Servants to Be Taxed by Paris

PARIS, Feb. 21.—Pianos and servants are to be taxed by the Paris city council. To balance a municipal deficit of 498,000,000 francs, the council today announced the new tax. Householders who employ servants will have to pay 40 francs for each domestic.

$15,000 DOCTOR BILL SLIPS ITS DRAWER'S MIND

A $15,000 doctor bill big? Pooh! Pooh! Dr. Alonzo C. Tenney has forgotten all about it. His attorney, Robert J. Nordhold, is bored at the mention of it.

The attorney filed the præcipe in a suit for $15,000 yesterday on behalf of Dr. Tenney, who lives at 742 Buena avenue and has offices at 25 East Washington street.

Mrs. Stephen M. Paine, widow of the secretary of the Chicago Portrait company, who lived at 1318 Ritchie street but is wintering in California, is made the defendant.

"The suit is to collect an old bill," said Mr. Nordhold, much ennui in his voice. "Nothing new in it at all. Just fees for the treatment of Mr. Paine during his last illness."

"How did the bill come to so much?"

"Really, I don't know."

"Was Mr. Paine ill long? Did Dr. Paine operate?"

"Really, I can't imagine."

Dr. Tenney said he didn't know anything about the suit. When told that Attorney Nordhold had filed the præcipe he said:

"O, I suppose he's collecting some old bills," and let it go at that.

Cop Mistakes De Valera for British Statesman

New York, Feb. 21.—A New York policeman, taking his cue from a Pullman porter, today mistook Eamonn de Valera, president of the "Irish republic," for Ronald C. Lindsay, British chargé d'affaires at Washington, when the latter arrived in New York on the same train with Vice President Thomas R. Marshall. Policemen had been detailed to meet Mr. Lindsay and Mr. Marshall, and one of them asked Mr. De Valera if he were the British envoy. De Valera laughed at the mistake.

Indecision Develops on Home Rule for Ireland

LONDON, Feb. 21.—The government is undecided as to the exact date on which the Irish home rule bill will be introduced in the house of commons. It had been hoped to introduce the bill at yesterday's session of the commons, but its presentation is expected to take place on Monday or Tuesday.

The Tribune presents on page 9 the text of the memorandum to Italy, indorsed by the United States, Britain, and France, which later was repudiated for the substitute to which President Wilson now objects.

UNION DEMAND OVERRIDDEN BY 250-150 VOTE

Senate 'Yes' Certain; Up to Wilson.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

Washington, D. C., Feb. 21.—[Special.]—Organized labor lost its fight to defeat the railroad bill today when the house, after a five hour debate, adopted the conference report on the measure by a majority of 100 votes.

The yeas were 250, nays 150, with one member "present." Previously a motion to recommit the bill, made by Representative Barkley of Kentucky, was defeated by a vote of 171 to 229.

The senate, where approval of the measure is assured, will act on it Monday. Organized labor's only chance of defeating it then will lie in getting President Wilson to veto it. A veto is not considered likely, although a formidable list of Democrats voted against the bill, only about twenty Republicans being included among the 150 recorded in the negative. Thirty-two Democrats voted for it.

The president will have several days to act on the bill before the railroads go back to their owners March 1 under the proclamation issued some time ago.

Esch Leads Fight for Bill.

Republican Floor Leader Mondell made the final appeal for the conference agreement, and the result showed nearly all the majority party members in line. Representative Esch of Wisconsin, chairman of the committee on interstate and foreign commerce and author of the original house bill, led the forces favoring the report. Champ Clark, minority leader, was not present. Representative Kitchin of North Carolina, former party leader, was among those attacking the bill.

Most of the opposition to the bill was based on the financial and labor provisions. Representative Sims of Tennessee, in charge of the fight against the measure, and Representative Barkley, the two conferees refusing to sign the conference report, dealt chiefly with the financial features, particularly the provision for rates giving an average return of 5½ per cent by groups of roads.

Midwest for Measure.

Most of the middle western members voted for the bill. Illinois, however, furnished eight opposing votes, Wisconsin six, Michigan four, and Minnesota three. There were no negative votes cast in the Iowa or Indiana delegations.

The vote of Illinois members was as follows:

YEAS—Madden, Mann, Wilson, Juul, Britten, Chindblom, Cooley, Fuller, McKenzie, Graham, Smith, Cannon, McKinley, Wheeler, Rodenburg, Brooks, Williams Yates.

NAYS—King, Denison, Mason, John W. Rainey, Henry T. Rainey, McAndrews, Sabath, Gallagher.

Wanted Public Barred.

The element of the house owing first allegiance to organized labor, including a number of union members, directed their fire against the wage adjustment sections. Representative Garland of Pennsylvania, a union man, declared the chief objection to the arbitration plan was that it provided for representation of the public on the labor board. Supporters of the bill especially commended it because of this feature, the board being made up of three representatives of the carriers, three of the employés and three of the public.

"I would be in favor of this bill if you would cut out all reference to the public," Garland said. "For forty years we have settled our own differences. If you bring in a disinterested party there will be no settlements."

"Too Weak" for Kitchin.

Representative Kitchin, also an opponent of the bill, based his objections on other sections.

"If I had my way," asserted Mr. Kitchin, "I would make the labor provisions even stronger with an anti-strike clause. I am against the bill because it is a guaranty to Wall street."

U. S. Loss $636,000,000.

Representative Esch in urging the approval of the conference report, quoted figures showing that taking over the railroads will have cost the government $1,900,000,000, of which $636,000,000 must be charged off as a war loss.

Defending the wage adjustment sections, Mr. Esch said that there is nothing in the bill of anti-strike or compulsory character, the only power given the labor board being the right to subpoena witnesses.

A large number of the members participated in the debate. Those speaking for the conference report included Representatives Esch of Wisconsin, Sanders of Indiana, Luhring of Indiana, Tilson of Connecticut, Goodykoontz of West Virginia, Cannon of Illinois, Cooper of Ohio, Johnson of South Dakota, Mondell of Wyoming, and Smith of Michigan, Republicans; and Dewalt of Pennsylvania, Black of Texas, Crisp of Georgia, Coady of Maryland, Welling of Utah, and Small of North Carolina, Democrats.

Those speaking against the conference report included Representatives Burke of Pennsylvania, Garland of Pennsylvania, and Denison of Illinois, Republicans; and Welty of Ohio, Sims of Tennessee, Barkley of Kentucky, Sanders of Louisiana, and Kitchin of North Carolina, Democrats.

A. F. OF L. PLANS "WAR"

The house action on the bill is believed certain to be regarded as a challenge by the labor leaders. And they have given strong evidence of an intention of entering the political lists.

The American Federation of Labor, to make effective its nation-wide campaign for election of a congress and state legislatures in sympathy with organized labor and its aims, is preparing to issue an appeal for funds.

To provide a political war chest of more than a million dollars is the task which the federation's nonpartisan political campaign committee has in hand at this time, and when the appeal goes out it will be accompanied by these slogans:

"Stand faithfully by our friends and elect them.

"Oppose our enemies and defeat them, whether they be candidates for president, for congress, or for other executive, legislative, or judicial office."

As outlined the campaign cost will run into the hundreds of thousands of dollars, and it is expected that these will be provided in the form of small monthly assessments, voluntarily levied. Contributions to this fund will be restricted to members of the labor movement.

Committee to Handle Funds.

The money thus collected will be expended under the direction of a subcommittee appointed by the executive council of the federation made up of Samuel Gompers, Frank Morrison, and James O'Connell. In general charge will be a committee of twenty-four, known as the American Federation of Labor national nonpartisan political campaign committee. On this committee are:

Mr. Gompers, James Duncan, head of the granite cutters' union; Joseph F. Valentine of the molders; Frank Duffy, general secretary of the carpenters; William Green, John L. Lewis, leader of the miners; T. A. Rickert of the garment workers; Jacob Fisher, head of the barbers' international; Matthew Woll, president of the photo-engravers; Daniel J. Tobin, national head of the teamsters; Frank Morrison, John Donlin, and William J. Spencer of the building trades; James O'Connell, head of the metal trades department, and A. J. Berres, its secretary; John W. Hays of the printers; John J. Manning of the clothing workers; James Lord, head of the mining department; Bert M. Jewell and John Scott of the railroad department, and John P. Frey, editor of the Molders' Journal.

Women's Branch Formed.

The woman voter will be looked after by Mrs. Sarah A. Conboy, the Misses Anna Fitzgerald, Melinda Scott, and Anna Neary.

Under the direction of this committee a national press bureau, a bureau on organizing, and a bureau of records will be established here. Already the press bureau is functioning under the direction of Chester M. Wright of New York, while Henry McInerney has been placed in charge of organization. The selection of a labor man of national note as director of speakers' bureau will be made shortly.

For the use of the committee an entire floor of the Federation building has been set aside. Additional room will be taken in the new building at the Machinists' union, directly opposite the Federation building, which will be ready for occupancy within a fortnight.

"GOD FORBID WAR ON CANADA, BUT ON MEXICO—?"

LONDON, Feb. 21.—Rear Admiral Harry S. Knapp, commander of the United States naval forces in European waters, in a speech before the London section of the Navy league of the United States, tonight said:

"God forbid that we should ever have war with Canada, but I don't know whether I would apply that plan to the country bordering the United States on the south."

Refutes Neglect Charge in Case of Death at Dunning

Coroner's Physician H. G. W. Reinhardt, investigating the death of Herman Wagner at the state hospital for the insane at Dunning, yesterday declared death was due to softening of the brain, caused by a street car accident Nov. 8, 1919. The inquiry was ordered by Coroner Hoffman at the request of Mrs. Theresa Munster, 6448 Prairie avenue, at whose home Wagner formerly lived. She alleged death was due to improper care. Dr. Reinhardt denied this after examination. An inquest will be held March 3.

LABOR TO IGNORE RAIL BILL; ASKS WILSON TO ACT

Unions Demand Commission to Adjust Wages.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 21.—[Special.]—Having repudiated the provisions in the railroad bill relating to labor and wage adjustment machinery, the organized railroad workers notified President Wilson today that the measure was absolutely inadequate to meet their requirements and intimated that they expect him to appoint a special tribunal to adjust their grievances at once.

A committee consisting of B. M. Jewell, Timothy Shea and E. J. Manion, representing the Big Four brotherhoods and the eleven organizations affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, delivered the unions' memorial at the White House several hours before the house had voted to adopt the conference report on the railroad bill.

Refuse Bill's Provisions.

It is expected the whole matter will be laid before the meeting of the unions called for Feb. 23, when the president's proposal for adjusting the wage demands will be submitted. At that time it is believed the workers will insist upon appointment of the tribunal or commission suggested in the correspondence with Mr. Wilson and that the organizations will absolutely refuse to submit their demands to adjustment machinery provided in the pending railroad bill.

The unions, it is expected, will demand that the comision be appointed at once and will pay no attention to the action of congres.

Bill "Entirely Inadequate."

In their letter to the president today, the union committee said:

"In our analysis of the labor provisions of the act we have set forth reasons, coupled with our years of practical application and experience in negotiating wage adjustments, which to us seem sufficient to warrant the definite conclusion that the congress has not proposed a method of proceedure acceptable at any time and entirely inadequate to meet the present situation.

"We feel sure that you can agree with us to the extent that there is little likelihood that congress will be able to reach an agreement that will insure a prompt disposition of the question."

Wage Adjustment Asured.

Assurance was given railroad labor organizations today by the railroad administration that return of the roads March 1 would not affect negotiations now pending as to interpretations of the various wage agreements which were made with the labor groups during federal control.

Woman's Lost Wart Only Casualty in Auto Crash

Mrs. Sam Doonbof of 7242 South Morgan street had a small wart neatly but painfully removed from her hand last night in an automobile accident. She was riding with Cornelius De Graff of 7753 Sacramento avenue in De Graff's car. A machine driven by Edward Novotny of 1551 West Garfield boulevard collided with the De Graff motor at Garfield boulevard and Lincoln street. Mrs. Doonbof was the only one injured and the removal of the wart was her only injury. Novotny did not stop, it is said, until W. A. Smith of 5200 Hermitage avenue, a member of the police reserve, punctured a tire with his first shot. Novotny was then arrested.

Pastor Identifies Captive as Gunman Who Robbed Him

The Rev. F. C. Bruner, 6619 Perry avenue, who was beaten and robbed of $25 and a valuable pin by three thugs under a viaduct at Thirty-first and Federal streets on the night of Jan. 12, last night identified James Mallon, a prisoner at the detective bureau, as the man who held the gun in the holdup. Mallon, Thomas Hamilton, and Edward Fibbell were picked up a few days ago by Detective Sergeants Fee, McCarthy, and McFaddon as suspects in the Amidon murder case.

MAN WHO WARNED CITY OF 1871 FIRE ILL IN THE WEST

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 21.—[Special.]—Fred D. Foss, the man who sent the first alarm of fire over the department wires in Chicago when the conflagration of October, 1871, started, is confined to his room in the Union League club here as the result of injuries sustained in an accident at Madison and Dearborn streets last October. He was hit by a taxicab and taken to his room in the Palmer house, where he remained in bed for four weeks. Then he came to California much improved. Tuesday night he complained of feeling bad. He called a physician, who said he had to keep off his feet as much as possible and stay inside.

Mr. Foss is 75 years of age. On the night of Oct. 7, 1871, a fire started near Canal and Van Buren streets and spread rapidly. This brought a loss of several hundred thousand dollars to John Foss, his father, who owned extensive lumber yards and business property in Chicago.

The next night Fred struck the alarm for the burning of Chicago. In that fire his father lost all his business property and Fred narrowly escaped with his life when the fire swept toward the old courthouse, where the fire alarm office was.

His partner on duty that night was John Barrett, for years general superintendent of the fire and police telegraph in Chicago. When he retired the fire and police alarm telegraph were incorporated in the city electrical department.

SEIZE OPIUM IN RAID ON CHINESE IN ARCHER AVE.

Four men paused before the building at 2123 Archer avenue in the center of Chicago's "Limehouse district," last night. It was the narcotic squad, led by Deputy Revenue Collector Jack Dennison.

From a window in the second floor of the barnlike building came a dim light. Dennison knocked on the door then pushed it open.

The light suddenly went out and the four men stumbled up a stairway. At the top they came to another door which they burst open.

Flashlights were snapped on and the thin beams traveled over the one big room.

On heaps of straw in different parts of the room were three Chinaman, sleeping, opium pipes clutched in nerveless fingers. In one corner sat an old Chinaman, nodding his head. Beside him lay a little white child, asleep.

One of the revenue men struck a match and lit the gas jet on a wall. The sleeping Chinamen were wakened. They said they are Yee Wah, 27 years old; Lee Ling, 43 years old, both of 2123 Archer avenue, and Yee Sing, 41 years old, of 2128 Archer avenue.

In the room the revenue agents found four opium pipes, as many layouts, two pounds of "Yen Shee," and several tins of opium. They also found four unloaded revolvers.

"Fight" Thus Far Futile, Official Inquiry Shows.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 21.—[Special.]—Efforts of the government to force down the high cost of living are still futile, the bureau of labor statistics announcing today that retail prices advanced 2 per cent between Dec. 15, 1919, and Jan. 15, 1920.

This rise of 2 per cent occurred despite a prediction made by Attorney General Palmer two months ago that the first of the new year would see a falling off in prices.

Figures From Fifty Cities.

The bureau of labor statistics figures are based upon the expenditures of the average family for food in fifty cities and show a 9 per cent rise since January, 1919, the highest rise for the year having been found in Minneapolis, where it was 16 per cent. Chicago and Detroit came next with an 11 per cent increase for the year.

Since 1913, the year before the world war began, the general cost of living increase up to Jan. 15, 1920, aggregated 104 per cent, Chicago's increase for this period being 102 per cent.

Articles of Food Involved.

The government's comparisons are based on the average retail prices of the following articles: Sirloin steak, round steak, rib roast, chuck roast, plate beef, pork chops, bacon, ham, lard, hens, flour, cornmeal, eggs, butter, milk, bread, potatoes, sugar, cheese, rice, coffee and tea.

Steamer Alabama Out of Danger; May Float Today

With all the water pumped from her holds and divers caulking the leak in her bow, the steamer Alabama, flagship of the Goodrich Transit company, was reported last night as out of danger. She is still resting on the sunken concrete crib, a quarter of a mile off Belmont avenue. Tugs will make another effort to pull her off either today or Monday.

STALEMATE ON TREATY PUTS IT UP TO PEOPLE

Hopelessly Split in Senate on All Reservations.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 21.—[Special.]—Three "acid test" roll calls today demonstrated beyond doubt that a majority of the senate still regards the original Lodge treaty reservations as the "irreducible minimum" and that all efforts to modify or weaken them in any way are doomed to failure.

They indicated with equal clearness that the Democrats are still standing behind President Wilson in sufficient numbers to prevent ratification with the Lodge reservations and that hopes of any considerable break in the administration ranks have been groundless.

Abandoned by the "irreconcilables," Senator Lodge met defeat in his efforts to change his own reservations. The first of his program of modifications was rejected by the narrow margin of 33 to 32, ten Republican, "irreconcilables" joining with the Democrats to produce this result.

Hitchcock Defeated Twice.

Senator Hitchcock, Democratic leader, likewise met two decisive reverses. An amendment to the first Lodge reservation which he proposed was beaten, 38 to 26, but on a final showdown on the original Lodge reservation the Democratic leader showed that he could still command sufficient support to block any ratifications not satisfactory to President Wilson.

The position of the senate was expressed with such emphasis and finality that Senator Lodge joined with Senator Borah in declaring that the treaty as a campaign issue was now inevitable and that efforts to keep it out of politics were futile.

First of "Acid Tests."

The pending question when the roll calls began was reservation No. 1, which reserves to the United States unqualified right to withdraw from the league of nations upon two years' notice and empowers congress, by concurrent resolution, to give notice of withdrawal.

Senator Lodge proposed to change this reservation so that either congress, by majority vote, or the president, without consulting congress, could withdraw the United States from the league.

How the Senators Voted.

Here is the way the senate lined up on Mr. Lodge's proposed modification:

Senator Hitchcock rallied the Democrats to the support of an amendment to permit withdrawal of the United States only by joint resolution, the effect of which would be to require a two-thirds vote of congress to get the United States out of the league if the president wanted to keep the nation in.

3 Democrats with G. O. P.

This amendment was voted down, 38 to 26. The Republicans stood solidly together on this question, all lines between "mild" and "strong" reservationists and "irreconcilables" disappearing. Three Democrats — Gore, Shields, and Smith, Georgia—joined with the Republicans against the amendment.

The original Lodge reservation was then adopted by a vote of 45 to 20. It showed more strength than it ever had before. At the same time the strength of the Democratic vote against the reservation made it plain that the administration forces, by allying with the "irreconcilables" on the final roll call, can muster the necessary one-third vote to defeat the treaty.

I'll Crush Rail Men Who Threaten Nation—Noske

BERLIN, Feb. 20.—[Delayed.]—Gustav Noske, minister of defense, in addressing the employés' councils and Socialists' delegates at Hamburg today, reiterated his previous statement that he would put down attempts on the part of the miners to introduce a six hour day at this time or attempts to paralyze the railways.

"When thousands of railwaymen declare they hold the state's throat and can close it if they will, then I, as minister of defense, have no hesitation whatever in crushing them," Herr Noske declared.

The minister said he had instructed the directors of wharves to discharge immediately all men who did not want to work eight hours a day.

Allies Seize German Guns They Found in Schleswig

COPENHAGEN, Feb. 21.—The Berlingske Tidende's Flensburg correspondent says the international commission has discovered forty-two German cannon and ten machine guns in working order on Sylt island, off Schleswig-Holstein. Officers commanding the batteries, the correspondent says, were dressed in civilian clothes and had forbidden the international police to enter their territory after 10 o'clock at night. It is said British troops will replace the Germans.

BIOGRAPHER IN GARB OF SHEEP IS FOUND WOLF

Gobbles Up Big Men's Cash, Then Trips.

James R. Perry of 1318 South Sixty-third avenue, Cicero, posing as a special agent for Town Topics, extracted all the way from $25 to $200 from prominent Chicagoans on the promise to print their biographical sketches, it was learned yesterday.

He was arrested and placed on probation for one year by Judge Hugh R. Stewart in the South Clark street court, after a plea for leniency had been made by one of the complainants, C. Furniss Hately of the Marine Iron Works.

Perry is married, and is said at one time to have been an employé of a Chicago afternoon newspaper.

A Bit of Psychology.

His scheme was to call only on leading and influential Chicagoans. Working on the psychological principle that no matter how small or big a man may be there is always an attraction to breaking into print, Perry reaped an abundant harvest, it is declared.

His price was determined by the space taken and prominence of the person visited. The sketches were to appear in a "special number."

Among the men known to have paid Perry money were: Daniel Hayes Jr., $200; Harold F. McCormick, $100; Charles Piez, former chairman of the United States shipping board, $100; Samuel Insull, $100; H. S. Johnson, $50; S. F. Letts, $50; H. Ickes, $25; Noble Crandall, $25; Clark N. Walton, $25; Ford R. Carter, $25; Alfred Grazer, $25; R. Upham, $25; C. Furness Hately, $25.

Hard Luck Yarn Spoils All.

According to the police, Perry began his operation last March. He called at the offices of the Marine Iron works about a week ago and sold Mr. Hately "$25 worth of space." On Tuesday Perry returned to Hately's office and told him a hard luck story to the effect that he was unable to make collections and wanted some help.

Hately, having become suspicious, told Perry to return later, and notified Assistant State's Attorney John P. Moran. The arrest followed.

Accuser Offers Him Job.

"I don't think Perry has done anything very bad," Mr. Hately said last night. "I have offered him a job, which I think he'll take.

"No, I don't think there's any doubt he got the money from the men mentioned, but, of course, they wouldn't prosecute, and passed the buck to me.

"I consulted with the state's attorney and got the parole granted."

FORGER DE LUXE, W. J. REID, GIVEN 30 YEAR TERM

William J. Reid, who used to live at the Congress hotel and was president of the National Automobile Protective association, with offices in the Steger building at 238 South Wabash avenue, who obtained $65,000 here through forged notes and has escaped from various prisons thirteen times, is again going behind the bars.

In the district Supreme court at Washington, D. C., yesterday Justice Stafford sentenced him to thirty years in the federal penitentiary for passing a $10,000 forged check on a realty firm there. Justice Stafford pronounced him "one of the worst criminals in the United States, who should never be at large again. Although I doubt if even a federal prison will be strong enough to hold him."

Reid is still wanted in Chicago. Between 1902 and 1912 he passed forged notes for $40,000 on the law firm of Gemmill & Foell, for $16,000 on the First National bank, and others of varying amounts on other banks and firms.

Using many aliases, he operated throughout the middle west for years. In 1912 Allan Pinkerton wrote to the Washington police that Reid was wanted in Seattle, Chicago, Denver, Aberdeen, and Minneapolis.

His last prison term was in Folsom penitentiary, California. He was released in 1917. He was then brought to Washington for trial on the $10,000 check charge. Jurists figure Reid would have to live 1,000 years to serve even the minimum sentences that could be passed upon him.

WASHINGTON NEWS —IN BRIEF—

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Washington Bureau of The Tribune.]

WASHINGTON, D. C. Feb. 21.—By a vote of 250 to 150 the house approved the railroad bill conference report. The senate will act on it Monday, and it is expected that President Wilson will sign it. Organized labor will make a final appeal to the president to veto it.

Prospect for treaty ratification is more remote than ever, the senate today defeating Senator Lodge's effort to revise his reservations in the interest of compromise. Even Senator Lodge admitted that the whole treaty issue has gone into the political campaign and said the people should be given to understand now that ratification by this senate on any basis but the Lodge reservations is impossible.

The American Federation of Labor is preparing to make an appeal for funds to carry on its elaborate political campaign in the interest of electing state and national legislators and judges who will favor the interests of the workers.

Despite government efforts to stop it, the high cost of living is still mounting, the bureau of labor statistics reporting today that there had been an advance of 2 per cent in retail prices since Dec. 15 last, a total advance since January, 1913, of 104 per cent.

Gov. Frank O. Lowden's Washington managers declared today that their candidate for the Republican presidential nomination fits the New York state Republican convention national platform suggestions better than any other, but they omitted to mention anything about the governor's stand on universal military training indorsed by the New York convention.

BATTLE ON FOR $20,000,000 LEFT BY H. S. HARKNESS

New York, Feb. 21.—[Special.]—Filing a bill of complaint bristling with sensational allegations, Mrs. Kennett Cowan, first wife of the late Harry S. Harkness, today began her fight to wrest the $20,000,000 estate from Mrs. Florence Steuber Gaines Harkness, the widow.

Producing the text of the "mutual contract" between her and Mr. Harkness, executed Nov. 5, 1909, Mrs. Cowan in her complaint alleged that the will the late sportsman wrote a few hours before he died on Jan. 23, 1919, at his home, 270 Park avenue, "was made and executed while said decedent was of unsound mind and memory, and while said decedent was under restraint and subject to fraud and undue influence then practiced upon him."

Relating the marriage of the complainant, then Mrs. Marie Moss Harbeck, to Mr. Harkness, the bill stated how "said Harry S. Harkness and the plaintiff entered into an agreement by the terms of which it was mutually covenanted and agreed that in consideration of mutual love and affection and the mutual promises then made that they should make mutual or reciprocal wills." These documents, the complaint sets forth, were to be "irrevocable" and were to be kept until the death of one or the other party to it.

CLOSE DEAL FOR GREATER ARMOUR INSTITUTE SITE

$6,000,000 Extension of School Assured.

Final arrangements for the new Armour institute have been completed. The new school is to be built on the old Windsor park golf grounds at Seventy-fifth street and Yates avenue, according to an official announcement yesterday by officers of the school. A total expenditure of $6,000,000 will be made before the institution will be completed, according to the present plans.

"The difficulty of obtaining a proper location within the city of Chicago has been great," says the official announcement. "Our problem has been to find and obtain title to a suitable parcel of land and it is now to improve it as a site upon which the institution may stand and progressively function as a center of engineering construction and training.

Will Occupy 80 Acres.

"The institution's buildings and campus will occupy the entire eighty acres near the lake and south of the South Shore Country club, formerly known as the Wentworth property. This tract has been known more recently as the grounds of the Windsor Park Golf club.

"The authorities have sought the advantage of a situation as easily approached as this one for some time. It is well located. Transportation facilities are good.

"The lake is within 500 feet and will furnish opportunity not only for water athletics but hydraulic engineering and marine engineering, study and training in which must be undertaken in time. The ample land and water at our service could not be more satisfactory for whatever may be judiciously done in military and naval training or shipbuilding.

Plans Carefully Worked Out.

"The tentative plans for our buildings and their arrangement constitute only a provisional study. The whole scheme has been worked out after a quarter of a century of experience in the central west and in Chicago. This means serviceableness in architecture as well as beauty and dignity. The buildings will constitute a piece of serious apparatus for the special work any such institution must do at this time and in this region.

"Commodious as the buildings and large as the location will be, the Armour Institute of Technology will limit its number of students to 1,000. The buildings planned at present will occupy about eight acres. The south forty acres of the tract will be devoted to such summer and winter outdoor sports as will make outdoor men supple and strong for their life work."

J. Ogden Armour purchased the tract of land at an expense of $1,000,000 and promised a gift of $5,000,000 when the transaction was completed.

Armour institute was founded in 1892 by P. D. Armour.

Fraternity Stunts

If you see a bunch of boys acting strangely on the street, don't ring up Dr. Hickson or call a cop. Possibly it's only a group of the Armour institute students being initiated into the Delta Tau Delta fraternity.

They have to do peculiar things before they can join the "frat." The initiation ceremonies will finish tomorrow.

They've had to clean the streets, play golf in front of their fraternity house, 3206 Michigan avenue, sing a song in front of the Art institute, propose to a girl picked out for them at random, dress up in weird and marvelous fashion, and—O, anything the initiators can think of.

52 More Crimson Aliens Reach N. Y. for Ark No. 2

New York, Feb. 21.—Fifty-two alien Reds, taken in department of justice raids throughout the west, arrived at Ellis island today to be deported. There are now only 130 alien extremists on the island. There are 530 cases awaiting deportation proceedings, but 400 are at liberty on bail.

LADY ASTOR O.K.'S VOTING U. S. DRY; NOT 'PROHIBITION'

LONDON, Feb. 21.—Lady Nancy Astor, member of parliament, said today she is not opposed to a nation like the United States voting itself dry, though she doesn't like the "word prohibition" and does not believe Britain is ready to vote out intoxicants.

"Speaking in support of state purchase of the liquor trade," she said, "I used the words 'I hate the word prohibition. I've enough devil in me that if any one prohibits a thing that thing becomes the thing I want.'

"This solitary phrase was reproduced in newspapers on both sides of the Atlantic, implying that I opposed England voting itself dry if given the opportunity to do so.

"My objection is not to abolition of drink by popular vote, but to the word 'prohibition.' That word does not seem to me a good description of what has just taken place in America, because there it was no arbitrary ruling by a despotic government, but an act of self-denial passed by the support of an overwhelming majority of the people.

"Personally, I look forward to the day when England will go as far as America has gone. In the meantime I believe it is impossible to impose prohibition successfully upon an unwilling people."

WARN 52 TOWNS OF SHIPMENT OF POISONED OLIVES

Officials and Chicago Firm Halt Sales.

Federal and state food inspectors in eight states made frantic attempts last night to locate and destroy dozens of bottles of stuffed ripe olives poisoned with the deadly bacillus botulinus. Fifty-two towns were searched for the poisoned relish.

A nation-wide warning was issued late yesterday afternoon by J. L. McLaughlin, state superintendent of food and dairies. The olives, packed by a California company, have been distributed innocently, through the western and midwestern states by a Chicago wholesale concern, Sprague, Warner & Co.

Fifty-two Towns Involved.

The towns to which the olives have been shipped are:

Illinois, seventeen towns: De Kalb, Bradford, Mattoon, Carthage, Freeport, Jacksonville, Winchester, Wyoming, Aledo, Geneva, Danville, Elgin, Griggsville, Beardstown, Clinton, Lake Forest, and Evanston.

Iowa, twelve: Atlantic, Des Moines, Indianola, Spencer, Boone, Sioux City, Marengo, Earlham, Waterloo, Ida Grove, Odebolt, and Denison.

Wisconsin, six: Marinette, Oshkosh, Beaver Dam, Madison, Fort Atkinson, and Richland Center.

Indiana, three: Fort Wayne, Indianapolis, Monticello.

Montana, two: Dillon, Kalispell.

Nebraska: Wahoo.

Kansas: Pittsburg, Holton, and Wichita.

New York state, eight towns: Auburn, Utica, Syracuse, Oneonta, Geneva, Lockport, Malone, and Gloversville.

Three Brands Involved.

The olives are of the stuffed type known as "pimento olives" and are in bottles. The brands involved are "Batavia," "Ferndell," and "Richelieu." Only the ripe and stuffed olives are infected, Mr. McLaughlin says.

The poisoned olives, Mr. McLaughlin says, will be soft, have a peculiar odor, and should be easily detected.

"While the situation is serious, I want to warn the public most emphatically against any hysteria because of this affair," he said. "Commercially canned goods are wholesome and nutritious and seldom dangerous. The general belief among scientists and food investigatotrs is that foodstuffs in tin or glass that are dangerous to health can be detected by a careful cook or housewife properly informed."

Five Deaths Point Danger.

A single case of olive poisoning, which resulted in five deaths, at Kalispell, Mont., led to the discovery of the present danger. From the company which packed the olives near Los Angeles, Cal., it was learned that dozens of cases had been sold to Sprague, Warner & Co. in Chicago.

Immediately Mr. McLaughlin and Maj. A. A. Sprague, head of the firm and the federal fair price commissioner of Illinois, secured a list of all the retailers in the middle west who had purchased the olives.

Salesmen for Sprague, Warner & Co. have been ordered to collect all olives they have sc[illegible] [illegible]ederal and state inspectors scurrie[illegible] [illegible]t all last night collecting and des[illegible]g the bottles and olives.

Bacillus botulinus, a deadly poison, first discovered in a ham in 1899, appeared in ripe olives last fall, when five persons died after a dinner at an Alliance, O., club. Several other fatal cases have since been reported.

Wholesalers Explain.

One hundred cases of the California "pimento olives" have been distributed by the Sprague-Warner company, according to A. F. Upham, manager of the shipping department.

"A big force of auditors has been assigned to go through the sales records for several months back," said Mr. Upham. "We intend to run down every bottle of the shipment sent out from Chicago. To date we have received no word of fatalities from the one shipment of this type that was sold by our agents during the last month or so."

Maj. Sprague, president of the firm, said:

"Our agents in every state have been advised and have laid aside all other duties to chase down their olive sales. Now it is up to scores of other distributors to run down their olive sales and recall the poison goods."

WASHINGTON HAS 437,414 PEOPLE; GAIN OF 106,345

National Capital Passes Cincinnati.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 21.—[Special.]—Washingtou, capital of the nation, has a population of 437,414, according to the first returns of the 1920 census made public tonight, an increase of 106,345 since 1910.

More important than this increase, however, in the minds of patriotic Washingtonians is the fact that Washington passed Cincinnati in population, the new population figures for the Ohio city given out simultaneously being 401,158.

In 1910 Cincinnati was the thirteenth American city and Washington ranked sixteenth. Of course the numerical rank of cities cannot be known until all the returns are in.

The war has been largely responsible for Washington's increase, which is generally regarded as permanent, it having been estimated in 1918 that the wartime population of the capital had passed the half million mark. The present figure, it is believed by experts, represents permanent growth.

In 1916 the census estimate for Washington was 363,980 and for Cincinnati 410,476. For Cincinnati, therefore, the count shows a falling off of 9,000 since 1916, while Washington shows a gain over the estimate of 73,434.

Cincinnati's population, according to the 1910 census, was 363,591, the population gain according to the figures of 1920 being only 37,567.

N. Y. HELLO GIRLS' STRIKE A WINNER

New York, Feb. 21.—Striking operators employed by the New York Telephone company tonight won their fight for increased pay when officials announced that a readjustment of the wages had been granted. The agreement was reached at a conference between officials of the company and representatives of the operators.

The statement issued by the company, however, indicates that no increase for operators employed outside of the city has been considered.

Finger Prints Required on U. S. Navy Pay Checks

Washington, D. C., Feb. 21.—Chances of successful pay check forgeries in the navy were reduced to a minimum today. The department ordered that the indorser of every such check must place the impression of the four fingers of his right hand on the back thereof before it will be cashed. As a record of the finger prints of every man in the service is kept, it will be practically impossible under the order for a forger to escape identification, officials said.

'BIG TIM' HOSTILE AT ENRIGHT QUIZ; IS REFUSED BAIL

Denies He Knows 3 Men Accused with Him.

"Big Tim" Murphy, dictator of certain branches of newly organized labor and alleged principal conspirator in the murder of Maurice "Moss" Enright, his rival, will stay in jail until he and his three co-defendants are brought to trial in the Criminal court, Judge Robert E. Crowe ruled yesterday, after Murphy and his counsel had made a futile effort to give bail.

When questioned by Assistant State's Attorney John Prystalski, the indicted labor leader exhibited a faulty memory, while his young and pretty wife, who occupied a front seat in the courtroom, is declared to have sought by gestures to assist him.

Hostile Toward State.

Toward Mr. Prystalski and Assistant State's Attorney John Owen Murphy's attitude was mildly hostile. He reminded them on one occasion that he was "not on trial." He was questioned in part as follows:

Q.—Weren't you in the office of Mike Carozzo, president of the street cleaners' union, at 11 o'clock on the morning of the day Enright was killed? A.—No.

The state alleges that Murphy and Carozzo were in consultation at the union headquarters when Ralph Buglio, who owned the car from which Enright was shot to death, delivered it there for the executioners' use.

Q.—Where were you then? A.—I don't know; in the city hall, maybe.

Denies Knowing Trio.

Q.—Do you know Tony Cifaldo, who says he was offered the job of killing Enright before you handed it to Vincenzo Cosmano and Jimmy Vinci? A.—I don't know him, but he may know me. I can't remember all the men I meet.

Q.—Do you know Cosmano? A.—No: but I've heard a lot about him since I've been in jail.

Q.—Sure you don't know Cifaldo? A.—Well, it seems to me I met him about two months before the murder. I can't recall exactly.

Q.—Do you know Vinci, who drove Buglio's automobile to Enright's house. A.—He's a stranger to me.

Charges "Theft" of Books.

Q.—Who is the treasurer of the street sweepers' union—you or Carozzo? A.—Both of us. We sign the checks together.

Q.—What became of the books of the union?

Murphy glared at the prosecutor.

"You stole them!" he declared.

"How do you know?" Mr. Prystalski demanded.

"A fellow in jail told me. You'll find out who he is when I get out of here."

Responding to the questions of his own attorney, Joseph A. McInerny, Murphy denied quarreling with Enright or discussing Enright's death with any one before it occurred. He said he was in the office of former State's Attorney J. J. Kern in the Woods Theater building from noon until 5 p. m. of the day Enright was killed trying to adjust a labor dispute concerning the gas house workers. Col. Milton J. Foreman was named as also having been present.

Tells Alibi Story.

"Tell us just what you did and where you were on that day," Attorney McInerney told him.

"I left Kern's office about 5 o'clock," he said, "and went over to Henrici's to buy a coffee cake to bring home with me. I met a real estate dealer friend of the name of Kelly. We talked awhile and then I went over to a fruit store at Randolph and State streets. Then I took an Englewood elevated train home and got there about 6 or 6:30.

"When I got home Harry Diggs, my brother-in-law, and William Diggs, my father-in-law, were there. We had dinner and then I left home. I was to meet my brother and we were going over to the north side with some flowers. A friend of ours had died. Before I left home I told my wife I had heard that 'that fellow' was shot."

"That Fellow" Enright.

Asked whom he meant by "that fellow," he said it was Enright.

After he left home he said he could not remember the address of the house to which they were going, so he called up his wife.

"She told me then that 'that fellow' was dead," he said. "That's the first time I had heard he was dead."

"Then what did you do?" he was asked.

"I went over to my mother's house at 815 West Fiftieth place and called up Kern, because I wished to make arrangements to meet him. Then Kern told me he had called up Hoyne and had made arrangements to meet his secretary at Peoria and Fiftieth streets. He said he wished to make arrangements with Hoyne to turn me over to him."

Judge Crowe announced that Murphy, Cosmano, Carozzo, and Vinci would all be arraigned before him on Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock and a date set for their trial.

SIMS VEXED BY GREAT AMERICAN TRAINING OSTRICH

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 21.—Admiral William S. Sims, orator at the university day exercises of the University of Pennsylvania today to celebrate the birthday of George Washington, drew lessons from the career of the first president and criticised the tendency of Americans to resent adverse comment upon military unpreparedness of the United States.

"The missing element in Americanism," said the admiral, "is that it does not include adequate solicitude for our safety. The government, and to a certain extent our people, resent criticism of anything American. This is a dangerous attitude that has cost us many thousands of lives and many millions in treasure."

GERMANY BEGINS PROSECUTION OF WAR CRIMINALS

Evidence Gathered for Leipzig Trials.

BERLIN, Feb. 21.—[By the Associated Press.]—Preliminary proceedings in several cases of Germans accused of violations of the laws of war have already begun, and progress is being made in the collection of documentary material, Dr. Schiffer, minister of justice, told the representative of the Zvoelf Uhr Blatt yesterday.

Dr. Schiffer energetically emphasized the fact the government regarded it "an affair of honor to punish those really guilty." The government, however, was not obeying the entente's will in carrying out this trial, he asserted, but was fulfilling the requirements of any "ordered state and its own feeling of what was just."

It has been suggested that where a defendant's interests demand it he be permitted to visit the country where his alleged offense was committed and be guaranteed safe conduct for the journey.

'SONNY' DUNN TO SURRENDER TO HOYNE TOMORROW

Gives Up to Face Two Auto Theft Trials.

William [Slippery Sonny] Dunn will surrender himself at State's Attorney Hoyne's office tomorrow. He will be accompanied by a bondsman.

The brother-in-law of the late "Moss" Enright, named by Jack O'Brien as the "real" slayer of Detective Sergeant Richard Burke—a crime for which O'Brien was hanged on Friday—completed the arrangements for his "capture" yesterday afternoon. He will be tried in the criminal court on charges of stealing two automobiles.

For several days warrants for his arrest have been in the hands of two deputy sheriffs—one capias from Judge Sabath's bench, the other from Judge Zeman's.

Reports of Flight Exploded.

Reports said that "Sonny," alarmed by O'Brien's revelations, had left Chicago for a far distant refuge and his bonds in the two larceny cases had been forfeited.

But it became known during the day that he never left the west side.

Thomas T. Freeman, in charge of the north side branch of the sheriff's office, explained that circumstance was not the two deputies' fault.

"Two men are assigned to find bond fugitives," he said, "and they have other cases besides Dunn's. They have not time to hunt for him alone. I suppose they stop at his house and try to pick him up during the afternoon. If he's not there, they return at night."

He seemed certain nothing like a twenty-four hour vigil would be maintained before "Sonny's" door.

Jail Prospect Annoys Him.

Friends declare "Sonny's" surrender would have been immediate but for the fact no courts were in session, and he might have had to remain in jail over the week end.

The same difficulty, so far as the courts are concerned, will exist on Monday, but "Sonny" professed to believe a judge could be found who would approve his bond, after Assistant State's Attorney John P. Moran, in charge of Mr. Hoyne's bond department, had declared the sureties satisfactory. Mr. Moran left his office at noon yesterday and did not return.

Two Cases, Same Surety.

The complainant against Dunn in Judge Sabath's court is Miss Margaret Peacock of 352 Diversey parkway, whose motor car was stolen while it stood in Michigan boulevard on Sept. 23.

A week later Detective Sergeant Frank Hartigan arrested Dunn, Henry Killhan, William Jones and James Hughes as they alighted from the machine at Forty-eighth and Wood streets. Killhan and Dunn were armed. Bail was fixed at $4,000 each, Dunn's bond being signed by James Connell of 1113 Albion avenue. Connell scheduled a $30,000 residence.

The same surety was accepted for Dunn's appearance before Judge Zeman, where the Baldwin Piano company is ready to press a complaint. "Sonny," Edward Hawley, and Fred Jamas have been identified as a trio who drove away with one of the firm's motor cars.

Witness Fails to Appear.

The machine broke down near Lemont, and its occupants appealed to H. R. Andrews for assistance. After the latter's suspicion had been excited, he summoned Chief Michael Venard of Downers Grove, a trap was laid, and the men were arrested.

When the case was called last Monday Andrews did not appear; the judge demanded that some disposition be made of it, and it was stricken from the calendar. Mr. Hoyne ordered it reinstated the following day, and investigation was begun to ascertain whether Andrews had been intimidated.

Wife Defends "Sonny."

Mrs. Lottie Dunn, wife of "Sonny," said last night she did not like some of the things that have been said about her husband.

"'Sonny' is not a gunman, because he has a mother, wife, and baby to love," she said.

"He is not implicated in some of the crimes they accuse him of.

"It would be a disgrace to be mixed up with 'Tim' Murphy, as 'Sonny' is far above Murphy. Murphy put the O'Brien boy up to say all the things he said about 'Sonny.'

"A number of letters have been written to newspaper offices and to Mrs. Enright linking the names of 'Sonny' and a girl named Lillian and accusing 'Sonny' of nearly every crime committed on the south side. Those letters were written by Tim Murphy and some of his burglar friends."

Son Who Died in France and Mother Who Fought Adversity to Bring Body to Chicago.

JAMES DE VERE.
MRS. JAMES T. DE VERE.

WAR SHYLOCKS IN FRANCE, TOO, MOTHER FOUND

Mrs. De Veré Relates Her Experiences.

New York, Feb. 21.—Difficulties she encountered in reaching her son's grave in France and in getting the body aboard the steamship Brittania for transportation to America were related today by Mrs. A. Devere of Chicago.

Mrs. Devere, who left today for Chicago with the body, declared she would have failed in her mission had it not been for the assistance of the American Red Cross and the Knights of Columbus. She declared her success in getting past the French regulations was due to an "unstinted use of American dollars" among the employés of French bureaus.

Find "Hands Out."

"There are no arrangements whereby an American parent can get a casket out of France except by the tipping process," Mrs. Devere said. "There are scores of relatives of dead Americans now in France attempting to do as I did. The Knights of Columbus and the American Red Cross are doing everything possible. They have located scores of graves, but are powerless to do anything except with the consent of the French authorities.

Stopped Automobile Graft.

Drivers of privately owned automobiles, she said, charge an average of 150 francs to take an American visitor to an American cemetery. The Knights of Columbus, in an effort to prevent this profiteering, Mrs. Devere added, have turned over their machines for such purposes and forbade the chauffeurs to accept tips.

BRITISH SEND ENVOY TO SOUND OUT CARRANZA

Mexico City, Feb. 21.—Persistent reports that diplomatic relations between Mexico and Great Britain were about to be resumed were partially confirmed when it was learned from semi-official sources that Robert Leech, British minister to Cuba, is to be sent to this city.

Gen. Candido Aguilar, it is said, will go to England as soon as formalities are completed.

Gen. Aguilar has been granted unlimited leave of absence from the army for the announced purpose of engaging in politics. He recently visited Europe as a confidential agent for the Mexican government.

Mexicans Locate Yank's Captors.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 21.—Mexican federal authorities have located the bandits who kidnaped Joseph E. Askew, an American citizen, near Lerdo, state of Durango, on Feb. 2, and troops have been sent in pursuit in the hope of effecting Askew's release, the American embassy at Mexico City has been informed by the Mexican foreign office.

WILSON'S NOTE HELD UP; PARLEY DOOR STILL OPEN

Italy Afraid to Let Troops Go; Crisis Reappears.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 21.—President Wilson's note on the Adriatic settlement did not go forward to the entente premiers today. It probably will be cabled early next week. It is reiterated that the note will not close the door to any further negotiations through the usual diplomatic channels.

The question of making public the text of all the notes on the situation still is being discussed between the various foreign offices. Objections to publication have been made by one of the participants.

The situation in Italy is again reported here as serious, with both labor and Socialist leaders anxious that the Adriatic question be settled so that normal conditions may be resumed as rapidly as possible.

Poet Is Fly in Ointment.

D'Annunzio's presence in Fiume is being represented as the principal obstruction to an agreement among the allied and associated powers which would be acceptable to the Jugo-Slavs. It was said today that if D'Annunzio left Fiume a settlement could be reached in a day.

Demobilization in Italy is reported to be proceeding with extreme care and slowly because of the fear among the people that the Adriatic situation may lead to another war, and also because of the scarcity of work for the demobilized men.

Financiers, it is said here, have given Italy to understand that they will not invest while the Adriatic question remains unsettled.

ALLIES TOLD TO GO SLOW.

PARIS, Feb. 21.—[By the Associated Press.]—John W. Davis, American ambassador to Great Britain, spoke in London last night of "certain instructions" he had received from President Wilson, although the president's note to the supreme allied council has not as yet arrived at the British capital, says "Pertinax," political editor of the Echo de Paris.

"In order properly to follow the course of events," he writes, "it should be said that the note received by the council from President Wilson on Feb. 13 was in answer to a statement sent to the state department in Washington on Jan. 24 by Earl Curzon, British secretary of state for foreign affairs.

Wallace Utters Warning.

"Hugh C. Wallace, American ambassador to France, attended meetings of the supreme council in this city last month and in the name of his government expressed formal reservations in regard to the demand sent to Belgrade on Jan. 20. On that occasion, speaking as much in regard to Turkey as the Adriatic, he said: 'You are going much too far and much too fast. President Wilson cannot follow you.'

"Earl Curzon then drafted his note which was intended to calm Mr. Wilson's anxiety, assure him that greatest deference would be shown his views, and that Ambassador Wallace would be kept fully informed.

"Apparently, after three weeks of patient waiting, President Wilson felt these soft words would not be enough. It can thus be seen the note of Feb. 13 was not a 'bolt from the blue.'"

Premier Millerand discussed negotiations at London before the foreign affairs committee of the chamber of deputies yesterday and read to the committee the supreme allied council's answer to President Wilson regarding the Adriatic.

5,000 See Steeplejack Fall from Building

Streator, Ill., Feb. 21.—Five thousand persons saw Frank Randolph, a Chicagoan, fall three stories to the sidewalk today. He was working on the Murray building here. He landed on his feet, but was so injured that he probably will not recover. He is a steeplejack. His father and two children live in Wisconsin.

PREMIERS SPLIT; PLOT AGAINST WILSON FAILS

Scheme to Cripple Him Is Beaten.

BY FLOYD GIBBONS.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

[Copyright: 1920: By the Tribune Company.]

PARIS, Feb. 21.—Premier Lloyd George of Great Britain led a recent attempted offensive against the further American participation in European affairs. The inside story of the acrimonious Adriatic negotiations between Wilson and the "Big Three"—Premiers Lloyd George, Millerand, and Nitti—are coming to light through French diplomatic circles.

Threatened Loan Call.

Millerand objected to the attempt to exclude America from European affairs. The British premier attempted to swing him into line by threatening to bring economic pressure to bear against France. One French diplomat declared Mr. Lloyd George threatened to call upon France for the immediate payment of 3,000,000,000 francs war debt, thus crippling the French war loan, which had just been launched, and shooting the value of the franc further downward, unless Millerand coöperated in the original Nitti-Lloyd George answer to Mr. Wilson.

The British premier made secret arrangements with Premier Nitti to settle the Adriatic question without consulting the United States.

Under this Anglo-Italian secret agreement, Premier Nitti promised Italian support to Premier Lloyd George in the negotiation of a Turkish treaty along the lines of the secret Anglo-Italian-French pact.

Feared Effect in Turkey.

The British premier feared Mr. Wilson's interference in the plan to cut up and parcel out the Ottoman empire under this secret pact. Lloyd George therefore entered willingly into an arrangement with Nitti and framed the original defiant reply to Mr. Wilson's postscript which virtually told the president the "Big Three" had definitely decided to settle the Fiume question without him, and if he didn't like it, he could get out as threatened.

Millerand's objection and his ruination of the scheme by publishing it, has caused the modification of the answer which was really sent to the president, but the row it caused between Lloyd George and Millerand still is flaming.

DANIELS DENIES U. S. ADMIRAL IN ADRIATIC IS OUT

PARIS, Feb. 21.—Rear Admiral Philip Andrews, commander of the American warships in the Adriatic, has been recalled, according to a Rome dispatch to the Havas agency, because of disorders which have occurred at Spalato.

DANIELS DENIES REPORT.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 21.—Reports from Rome today that Rear Admiral Andrews, commander of the American naval forces in the Adriatic, had been recalled because of fresh disorders at Spalato, the American naval base, were denied by Secretary Daniels, who said no report of any fresh disorders there had reached the department.

Officials of the department attributed the report of Admiral Andrews' recall to a source of Italian propaganda that has sought for some time, they said, to create the impression that the Jugo-Slavs were responsible for the disorder.

A Dreamland Night

It was a mer-ry danc-ing par-ty at the Win-ter club in Lake For-est. It was the an-nu-al car-ni-val for the boys and girls, and they came in fan-cy cos-tumes. There were "Babes in the Wood," Span-ish girls, French girls, I-tal-ian bam-bin-os, a boy in burnt cork, and lots of o-ther char-act-ers.

They had lots of fun, and those who were old e-nough, danced quad-rilles and things.

Pri-zes were giv-en for the best cos-tumes, and the chil-dren were giv-en a din-ner at 6 o'clock and then they were tak-en home and put to bed to dream of clowns and sol-diers and Red Cross nur-ses and Cin-der-el-las. Mrs. Ed-ward L. Has-ler was in charge of the ar-rangements.

RAID BURR OAK INN; NAB LIQUOR AND NEW OWNER

Weinstein Didn't Know He Had the Booze!

They held a little surprise party out at Burr Oak inn last night; a little affair arranged by Joseph Thoney of the sheriff's office, Walter P. Stuart of the department of constabulary, some representatives of the Committee of Fifteen, and a sprinkling of internal revenue agents.

There were about thirty of the self-invited surprisers, and they slipped into the inn with their pistols drawn, and shouted, "You're under arrest!"

Abe Weinstein, who was at the bar, accidentally knocked over a whisky bottle—due to his excitement, probably—and its contents spilled on the floor.

Where Did It Come From?

"Who runs this place?" asked Thoney.

"I do," said Weinstein. "Bought it from Mike the Pike Heitler a month ago for $8,000."

Coleman ("Dutch") Heitler, Mike's brother, chipped in to say he was Weinstein's manager.

The greetings over, Thoney began to search for evidence. In an addition in the rear, presided over by a colored woman giving the name of Mary Brown, they found three couples.

In the living rooms upstairs they found five cases of whisky, champagne, wine, vermouth, and a lot of fancy drinks.

"What do you know about that?" said Weinstein. "That must have been here when I bought the place. And I didn't know a thing about it."

Three men, investigators, who had been in the place before the arrival of Thoney, said, however, that liquor had been served to the customers, some for 75 cents a drink, some for $1.25. Drinks had been served also, they said, to three sailors.

Mike Not Found.

The authorities held the owner, the manager, the colored woman, the three couples, the three sailors, and about twenty others who had been found in the place. Thoney got four warrants from Justice McKee of Oak Park, one for Mike Heitler, one for Coleman Heitler, one for Weinstein, and one for Mrs. Brown. The woman was charged with being the keeper of a disorderly house. Mike, however, was not found.

Thoney then permitted everybody to stay until Judge P. W. Heitz of Blue Island could arrive and approve bonds, $100 for the three principals on the disorderly charge, and $25 for those charged with being inmates, but he released the sailors. Heitler furnished the bonds; then he and Weinstein were taken to the Englewood station to be held for the government authorities.

The surprise party ended when the crowd left with the liquor—headed for the federal building.

There was a big safe there, but Weinstein had refused to open it.

"It contains my money and papers," he said.

"And," said Thoney, "I suppose the bill of sale from Mike Heitler, eh? Well, we'll just seal this safe up and keep it safe for the federal folks."

AIRPLANE RUSHES EUROPEAN TRIBUNE TO WARSAW YANKS

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

[By Special Cable.]

PARIS, Feb. 21.—When Capt. Charles H. Veil, an Ohioan, formerly of the Lafayette squadron, then in the American air service, took off for Warsaw at 9 o'clock yesterday morning he carried a package of fifty copies of the European edition of THE TRIBUNE tucked in the fuselage of his Breguet machine. These papers, when distributed through Thomas Stewart Ryan of THE TRIBUNE foreign staff, to Americans in Warsaw, will give them the quickest news from Paris they have ever read.

THE TRIBUNE is chosen because the flight is entirely an American enterprise. It was planned by Col. Howland, American attaché to the Polish mission in Paris; Col. Bentley Mott, attaché of the American embassy; and other military men in Coblenz, Berlin, and Warsaw.

The money was furnished by the Knights of Columbus, who loaned the money to Col. Howland in consideration of relief and speedy transportation for medicine and dispatches to and from Poland. It will allow other flights to be made at the rate of one weekly until the practicability of the service is established. It is expected the United States government then will use the service as a substitute for the costly slow courier service now maintained between Paris and Warsaw.

Steal the Dining Room Right Out of House

When the family of William Adams of 9326 Pleasant avenue, Longwood, left to winter in the south, they should have taken their furniture with them. Several men in an auto visited the house early yesterday morning, carried out the dining room—all but the floor, the walls, and the ceiling—and departed. The police were notified by Frederick Mowry, a neighbor, but did not arrive in time to prevent the burglary. Mr. Adams is the president of the William Adams company, builders, 209 South La Salle street.

Evanston Votes $300 Raise to Teachers

Teachers of the Evanston school district will receive an average annual increase of $300, with a minimum of $1,400, as a result of an election held yesterday, in which taxpayers voted to increase the levy from 1½ to 1 2-3 per cent to provide funds for the advance. Out of 1,017 votes only forty-six were cast against the proposition. A bond issue of $125,000 for an addition to Lincolnwood school and one of $22,500 for additional land for the Noyes street playground also carried.

WALKER MAKES HONOR OF WARD ELECTION ISSUE

Voters of 21st Urged to Prevent Frauds.

The formidable nonpartisan forces that are determined to get a majority vote for Ald. Earl J. Walker Tuesday in the Twenty-first ward are equally determined to scratch off the "fraud" tag that repeatedly has attached to elections in the north side ward.

Murry Nelson of the citizens' committee that is handling Ald. Walker's campaign, said:

"The citizens of the ward have grown tired of having the ward referred to as one in which fraudulent votes are cast at elections. It is the intention of the committee, with the coöperation of State's Attorney Hoyne, to prevent election frauds. I do not anticipate any trouble on election day, as every polling place will be watched, and if any 'stinger' tries to vote in the Twenty-first ward, his case will be taken care of by the grand jury. The instances of fraudulent registration are many and the facts will be presented to State's Attorney Hoyne."

Seek Majority Vote.

The managers for Ald. Walker are all the more determined to get out a majority vote for him Tuesday, because it is pretty well conceded that if a second election is held, Ald. Walker will be elected by a large majority in April, the idea being that the City Hall and the Litsinger forces are using their aldermanic candidates, Agnew and Scherwat, in a preliminary heat for the ward committee fight that will be disposed of April 13.

Statement Is Issued.

The following statement has been sent out in behalf of Ald. Walker:

"The undersigned voters of this ward, some of whom are Democrats and some Republicans, ask your assistance to reëlect Ald. Earl J. Walker, as a recognition of his four years of efficient and honest service in the city council," the signed circular begins.

CHIEF IN EUROPE

Illinois Woman Appointed American Red Cross Leader on Continent.

HELEN SCOTT HAY.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 21.—[Special.]—Miss Helen Scott Hay, of Savannah, Ill., formerly chief nurse of the Red Cross commission to the Balkans, has been appointed chief nurse of the American Red Cross commission to Europe, according to a cablegram received at Red Cross national headquarters here.

Miss Hay, a graduate, and later superintendent of nurses, of the Illinois training school for nurses, Chicago, began her Red Cross service in September, 1914, when she was placed in charge of 126 Red Cross nurses who sailed on the relief ship "Red Cross" for active duty in Europe.

Miss Hay was decorated in 1915 by the Russian government with the gold cross of Saint Anne. The King of Bulgaria bestowed upon her the Bulgarian royal red cross.

As chief nurse of the Red Cross commission to Europe, Miss Hay will have charge of all Red Cross nursing activities in Poland, the Balkans, Czecho-Slovakia and France.

M. V. L. APPEALS FOR JENKINS IN TWENTY-SEVENTH

The Municipal Voters' league yesterday issued a special bulletin concerning the aldermanic election in the Twenty-seventh ward, urging support of Newton Jenkins. The bulletin, in part, said:

"To the Voters of the Twenty-Seventh Ward:

"This, the first nonpartisan campaign for alderman, finds the ward with six candidates for the seat to be vacated by Ald. Watson.

"Studying the candidates in the light of essential qualifications, by far the most promising is Newton Jenkins. When we entered the war in 1917 he enlisted, did his bit, and when discharged from service settled in the Twenty-seventh ward.

"His military service is that of thousands of other young Americans. He earned a lieutenant's rank at Fort Sheridan training camp, standing so well that in France he was assigned to the corps school. Picked men were sent to serve in the French 5th army on the front line as observers. Jenkins was one of these, serving at the front, stringing barbed wire, constructing advance posts, etc. He then did trench duty three months with the American army at Verdun and was afterwards sent home as instructor at Camp Sherman in front line fighting. He was discharged Dec. 5, 1918.

"Mr. Jenkins is a man of energy and integrity, with an independent and democratic spirit exactly in keeping with the ward he seeks to represent."

CITY TO TODDLE OUT OF PARTIES' GUIDING HANDS

Ready for First Election Under New Law.

Creighton, with four other starters. Ald. Horne, with a formidable nonpartisan organization headed by County Clerk Sweitzer, is striking for a clear majority. David W. Clark and most of the city hall Republican organization are with Creighton. A second election may be required here.

Smith Is Handicapped.

Ald. Joseph Higgins Smith, marked for slaughter by the city hall in the Fourteenth, has been kept out of active campaigning by the death of his wife and sickness of his children, and Republican and Democratic aldermanic colleagues have made his fight for him. The effort has been made to combine the Deneen and Thompson organizations in the ward behind Charles E. Graydon. Charles Dold is a third candidate and a close finish between Smith and Graydon may necessitate a supplementary election.

Ald. Oscar H. Olsen is expected to get a majority on Tuesday in the Fifteenth over three opponents, Morris N. Friedland being the runner up. John M. Collins, Socialist, is a distinct factor. Ald. Piotrowski has no opponent in the Sixteenth and Ald. Walkowiak has a clear field in the Seventeenth.

City Hall for Grogan.

The Eighteenth is a real battle ground between Ald. Kavanagh and Bernard J. Grogan. Two other candidates are running, but either Kavanagh or Grogan is figured to land a majority, with the chances now said to be favorable to Kavanagh, although the city hall organization, strong in the ward, is reported to be for Grogan.

Ald. Bowler has no opposition in the Nineteenth nor has Ald. Franz in the Twentieth.

The verdict of north side experts is that Ald. Earl J. Walker clearly holds the lead in the Twenty-first, and the busy nonpartisan organization that supports him is bending last minute energy to converting that plurality into a majority. Ald. Walker's election at a second election, if one should be required, is conceded. His opponents are Charles J. Agnew, city hall; William C. Litsinger; and Evar Anderson.

Ald. Bauler is battling for a majority in the Twenty-second over Leo C. Klein, but a second election is probable because of the strength of Andrew Lafin, Socialist.

Ald. Steffen has no formal opposition in the Twenty-third, but there have been rumors of an attempt to write in the name of a candidate against him, and he and his friends are taking no chances, but expect to get out a heavy vote for Steffen.

Close in Twenty-fourth.

The Twenty-fourth ward has a horse race between former State Representative Joseph A. Weber and Ald. Haderlein, with three other starters that almost certainly will force a second election. Weber, with an excellent legislative record, stands a chance to defeat Haderlein, with a ten year service in the council. Ald. Link has nobody against him in the Twenty-fifth.

Ald. Pretzel in the Twenty-sixth is up against three competitors, and a second election may be required, although Pretzel is picked as a certain ultimate winner. Thomas R. Caspers is said to be running second.

The Twenty-seventh ward is a sureshot second election ward. Newton Jenkins, who fought at Verdun, has made a spirited campaign and has the indorsement of the M. V. L. Ald. Watson was not a candidate for reëlection. The partisan and factional organizations are split several ways.

Ald. Adamowski, it is believed, will negotiate a majority over two candidates in the Twenty-eighth. Ald. Thomas F. Byrne has no opponent in the Twenty-ninth.

Bitter in Thirtieth.

The Thirtieth ward will see the fur fly, where the contest is between Ald. O'Toole and Thomas J. O'Grady, with Joseph P. Flanagan a third starter. Flanagan may get enough votes to force a second election. The M. V. L. is behind O'Grady and the regular Democratic organization is with O'Toole. O'Grady claims to have a chance to win, but O'Toole's managers claim his election by a majority Tuesday.

Ald. Terence F. Moran, in the Thirty-first, was marked up by the M. V. L. as "finishing first term with generally good record, characterized by industry and honesty." His only opponent is David I. Swanson, who was brought out by the Deneen Republican organization. Both are indorsed by the M. V. L.

In the Thirty-second Ald. Lyle had comparatively easy going until the last few days, but it now looks like a second election in the Englewood bailiwick with Lyle and John L. Wellington as probable contenders in April. There are five candidates Tuesday.

Need Second Election.

Ald. A. O. Anderson in the Thirty-third has a long lead over four opponents, it is claimed, and he may get a majority Tuesday, but an April election is a distinct possibility.

Ald. John Toman, chairman of the streets and alleys committee of the council, is figured as a certain winner Tuesday. He has only one opponent. Factional Democratic disturbances have been involved to some degree in the aldermanic campaign, but Ald. Toman's managers will not be satisfied with less than a two-for-one victory. In the Thirty-fifth Ald. Lynch has one contestant, Robert H. Howe, Socialist.

WEIRD SKIN GAME BY BOOTLEGGERS YIELDS $60,000

Saloon Men Fleeced in "Kidnaping" Plot.

In solving the mystery of the "kidnaping" of R. Kaszubowski, a former saloonkeeper at 857 Fulton street, the police say they have uncovered a conspiracy through which a large number of Polish and Lithuanian saloonkeepers, merchants and citizens of the northwest side were fleeced of between $60,000 and $70,000 by a bootlegging syndicate.

Kaszubowski was found bound and gagged in an automobile at Randolph and Canal streets Jan. 22. He told the police he had planned to return to Poland and was on his way to the First National bank with $14,800 to have changed into the currency of his native country when he was seized by three men, hurled into the automobile and robbed.

Fake Holdup Framed?

The next day the automobile was identified as one stolen from Mrs. John D. Shoop, widow of the former superintendent of schools, and when the police went to look for Kaszubowski he had disappeared. It was learned he had applied for a passport at the federal building a few weeks before, and all ports were warned to be on the lookout.

Yesterday the police arrested Bruno Swiertnek, 3129 North Hamlin avenue, who appeared as a witness for Kaszubowski when he obtained his passport, and who, the police say, drove the automobile in which Kaszubowski was found.

According to the police, Kaszubowski and several other men collected a large fund for an alleged bootlegging syndicate which was to have delivered bonded whisky for $115 a case. Swiertnek is said to have framed the fake holdup with Kaszubowski. He claims he sold the automobile to Kaszubowski for $900.

Kunz Active in Inquiry.

Ald. Stanley H. Kunz has been active in the investigation. He denies he lost any money through the scheme, but declares many of his constituents were fleeced. One of them, N. A. Waterloo, saloonkeeper at 2756 West Chicago avenue, obtained a warrant for Kaszubowski's arrest, charging him with having obtained $2,400 through a confidence game. The federal authorities, who have watched passports closely, says Kaszubowski has not left the country.

'WASHINGTON'S 1 ERROR: DIDN'T GO TO HARVARD'

"George Washington made one mistake in his life," said President A. L. Lowell of Harvard last night. "He didn't go to Harvard."

President Lowell spoke at the dinner of the Harvard club of Chicago, held at the University club. He told of some of the new methods of handling students at Harvard.

"We are attempting now," he said, "to treat each man as a unit. Then we are trying to test what a man is when he gets through, what he knows, and what he is able to do. We are interested in the result instead of in the process. When a man comes to graduate he must submit himself to a general examination on the subject he has taken."

President Lowell said $11,966,000 had been given the university by the recent endowment fund campaign.

"It has raised salaries nearly to the point at which they were six or seven years ago from the standpoint of buying power," he said, "and that is enough to make the professors happy."

'FRONT GARDEN' OF CITY, BIG IDEA ON SOUTH SIDE

More Important than Alderman Election.

Chicago's "front garden" project is the transcendental issue in Tuesday's election for all voters in the south park district. It is vastly more important than the aldermanic contests themselves, and it goes to the electors under quite unusual circumstances.

In three wards in the district the present aldermen are without opposition and there is no fight to bring out the votes. Thus in 229 of the 835 precincts—more than one-fourth—an extremely light vote will be registered unless the citizenry wakes up to its opportunity to vote for the bonds that will start the lake front development between Jackson and Grant parks. It has been Chicago's dream ever since the World's Fair year.

Opposition Shows Up.

Yesterday the south park board learned that in some of the Englewood and stock yards sections opposition was being organized against the bond propositions. Reports were circulated that the old town of Lake wards would pay more than half the cost of the improvement, which would be made miles away on the lake shore. Figures were at once prepared to counter this misrepresentation. They set forth the following:

The town of Lake wards will bear only 14 per cent of the proposed bonds aggregating $20,000,000. Of the total issue $3,000,000 is to be spent almost entirely for new small parks in the old town of Lake itself. Thus these four wards—the Twenty-ninth, Thirtieth, Thirty-first, and Thirty-second—stand 14 per cent of the total bond charge and get 15 per cent of the $20,000,000 for improvements in their own particular territory.

Big End on Loop Owners.

The big end of the bonds falls on the loop property owners and those in the rest of the old South Town. The assessed valuation of taxable property in the south park district is $952,872,000, and of this $616,641,688 is in the South Town wards. It amounts to 64 per cent. The assessed value of property in the town of Lake is $130,336,674, or 14 per cent.

The bonds of $20,000,000 are on a twenty year basis. Yearly redemption and interest at 5 per cent will make the average amount necessary to raise by taxation about $1,525,000 a year. Spread over the district, it would amount to a tax rate of about 1¾ mills on the dollar of assessed value, or about 15 cents on each $100 of assessed value. To reduce it further it would be the equivalent of 7½ cents on each $100 of actual property value.

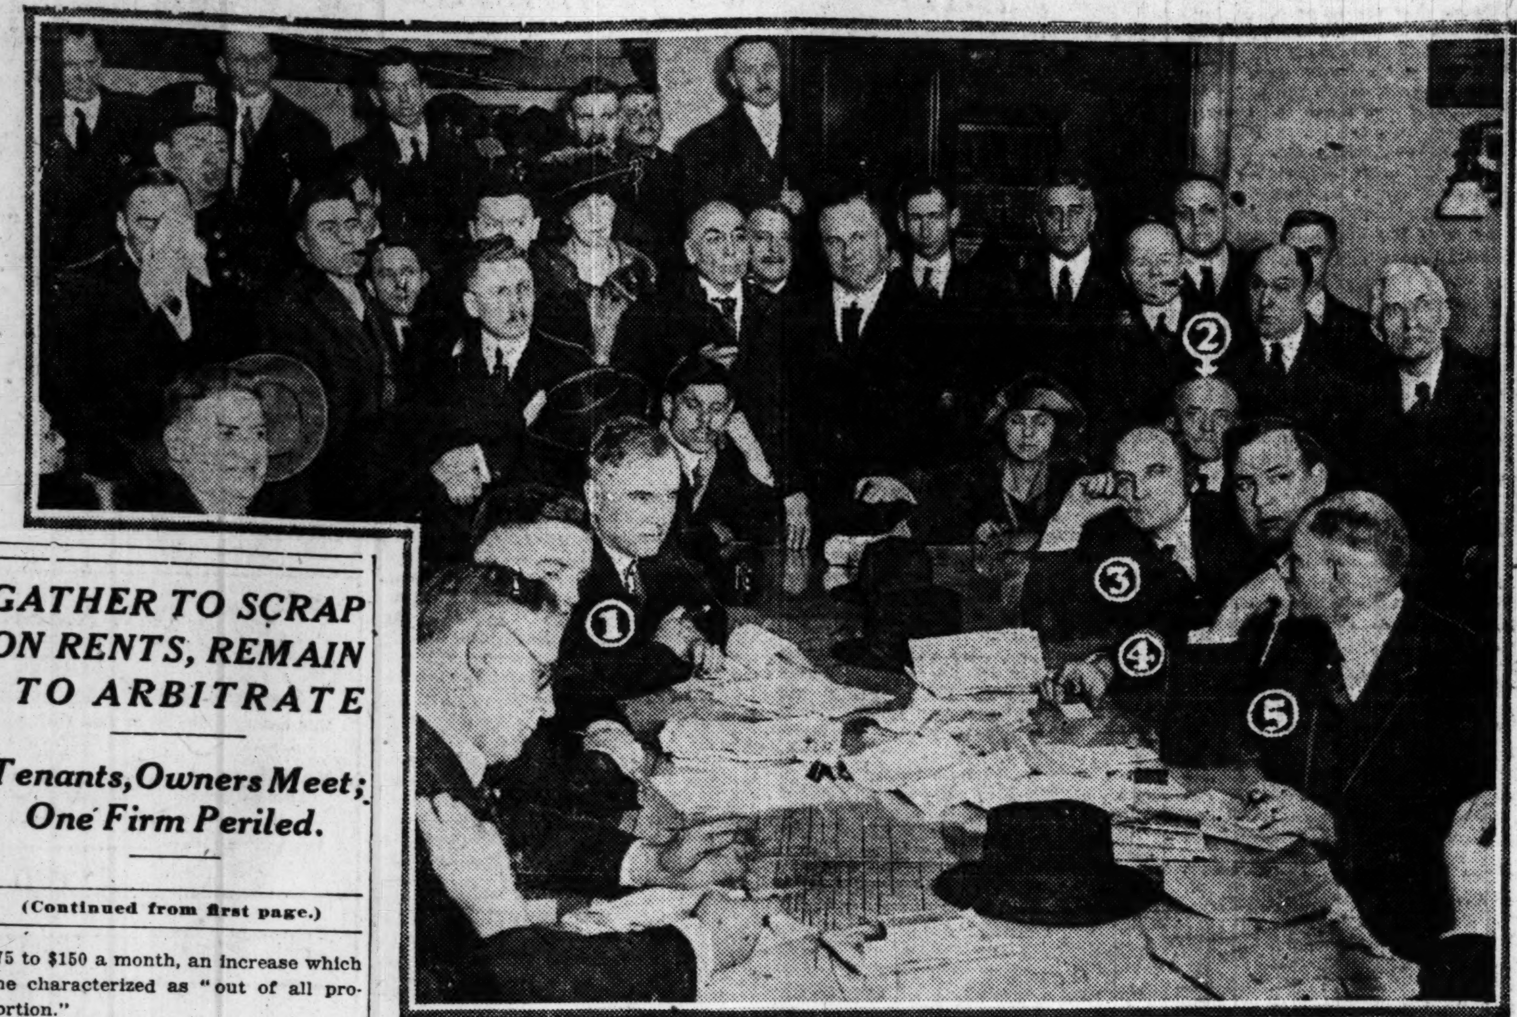
As an example, the south park board figures that on a piece of property with a real value of $20,000, which is $10,000 assessed value, the yearly tax on account of the proposed park bonds would amount to not more than $15, this to continue for twenty years.

Man Crazed by Flu Leaps to Death from Window

Crazed by the effects of influenza, Edward E. Campbell, 65 years old, a laborer, jumped from a fire escape on the fifth floor of the Acme hotel at 311 South State street, shortly after 3 a. m. yesterday, to his death.

The Battle of the High Rents: A Closeup

Chicago Landlords and Tenants Meet Face to Face Before the Aldermanic Committee, Scrap a Bit, and Then Agree to Arbitrate.



[TRIBUNE Photo.]

GATHER TO SCRAP ON RENTS, REMAIN TO ARBITRATE

Tenants, Owners Meet; One Firm Periled.

$75 to $150 a month, an increase which she characterized as "out of all proportion."

Miss Helen Simons of 425 North Central avenue told of the difficulties of keeping a lease and a roomer at the same time.

"The landlord wants $60," she said. "We pay $39 and have a roomer. He says he doesn't want people who keep a roomer. 'I'm going to get wealthy people into my building,' he told me."

The board was asked to investigate.

Tenant and Owner Clash.

Near the close of the meeting Mrs. Josephine O'Connell of 1424 East Seventy-first place got into a warm dispute with Edward E. Kakken, her landlord.

"He insulted me when I went to his office," she said. "I admit that I finally called him a contemptible pup."

"She made false complaints to the health department—" began Kakken.

"That's a lie," shouted Mrs. O'Connell.

Ald. Olsen threatened to call a policeman before the irate tenant was quieted.

This Owner Has a Heart.

A case of a flat building owner with an anti-profiteer conscience was revealed yesterday—not at the hearing of the commission. He owns a large building containing many low priced flats.

A sale was under way. The would be purchaser and the owner met yesterday in an agent's office. The papers were all ready for signing, when the buyer thoughtlessly remarked that he expected to raise the $35 and $40 flats to $70 and $75 and the $50 flats to $100.

"Then I won't sell," the owner exclaimed. "The deal is off. I won't be a party to such extortion even to the extent of selling the building to you."

And the sale wasn't made.

GENERAL STRIKE AT HIGH RENT IS GOTHAM THREAT

New York, Feb. 21.—Unless the "rent profiteering" bill is passed by the legislature within six months, a general strike of all workmen will have to be called here in violation of all agreements, Edward I. Hannah, president of the Central Federated union, predicted today.

"We are willing and anxious to work, we want to live up to our agreements," he said, "but we cannot meet the rent increases that are being put through and those that are contemplated on the wages we now receive."

The bill urged by Mr. Hannah is designed to amend the code of civil procedure so that no exaction may be brought against a tenant unless the rent sued for is "reasonable." The burden of proof would rest upon the landlord.

"We are willing," Mr. Hannah said, "that a landlord should receive a reasonable return upon his investment. This bill is aimed against landlords who have equities of only a few thousand dollars in the property they own, and are attempting to make profits of 80 to 100 per cent."

Rope and Poison Failing, Farmer Shoots Himself

Elgin, Ill., Feb. 21.—After two attempts at suicide—one by taking poison and one by hanging—had failed, yesterday afternoon Swain Wilkinson, an Elburn farmer, shot himself through the heart last night.

I. C. WILL BEGIN WORK ON SHORE PLAN IN SPRING

New Cars First Move in Electrification.

New steel cars which can be used in electrified service are to be purchased shortly by the Illinois Central railroad. They will be the first tangible evidence to the public of the railroad's fulfillment of its part in the electrification and lake shore improvement plan.

Markham Tells of Plans.

Charles H. Markham, president of the road, issued the following statement yesterday:

"The magnitude of the work involved in carrying on the improvements covered by the lake front ordinance, approved by the secretary of war, will require a separate organization. The work will be in charge of A. S. Baldwin, vice president, who is already developing plans, estimates, etc., for an early commencement of the different stages of the work as required by the ordinance. The ordinance gives us two years for the development of plans and establishment of the roadbed and tracks in permanent positions for electrification, the actual work of electrifying the tracks and the construction of new passenger stations to be entered upon at the close of that period.

To Build Subways.

"The first piece of construction required is a subway under Michigan avenue at Randolph street, for the benefit of pedestrians crossing Michigan avenue to reach the Randolph street suburban station. Plans for this subway are now in preparation, a permit for its construction will be obtained from the commissioner of public works and, as soon as the weather permits thereafter, the actual construction will be started. This will be of material benefit to the public pending the reconstruction of the suburban passenger facilities in connection with the electrification of that service.

"There is immediate need for additional passenger cars to take care of increased suburban service, and the requirements will be met by ordering a type of steel car which can be used in electrical service. Appearance of these cars within a few months will be the first tangible evidence to the public of the real beginning of this great work."

THE BROTHERHOOD'S MEMORIAL.

The objections urged against the pending railway measure by the brotherhoods seem to us intended to confuse a difficult situation rather than to clarify it, to obstruct merely rather than to assist. The attack comes a few days before the time set for the return of the roads to private operation and gives no indication of a desire to consider the problems involved from any point of view but that of the brotherhood leaders who have committed themselves to the Plumb plan and are admittedly bent upon forcing nationalization of the roads.

The memorial, therefore, is not marked by much consistency or fairness. One of its chief objections is to the plan for the arbitration of differences by a tribunal consisting of representatives of employés, employers, and the public. Even the Plumb plan adopts this tripartite theory with plan of control in recognition of the fact that after all the public has some interests and some rights in transportation. But the memorialists, having been conceded the omission of the Cummins strike prohibition, now object to the arbitration provisions because the bill proposes to require a resort to it.

The public, therefore, is to be denied any defense if the objections of the brotherhoods are to prevail.

The memorial shows the hand of the radicals throughout. It is not intended to assist the establishment of harmonious relations between employer and employé; it is not intended to help establish a system of private ownership and operation which shall protect capital, labor, and the public. It is unfair in its statements and assumptions, and its clear purpose is to obstruct the solution of the railroad problem and to prevent peace in this field.

The attack on the proposal to guarantee a minimum return of 5½ per cent on invested capital is a case in point. It entirely ignores the fact that railroad revenue has been restricted by law through the agency of the interstate commerce commission's rate making powers. It ignores the fact that capital will not, and by fair minds cannot be expected to, go where its returns are limited by law but not protected.

Congress knows that the country wants the roads returned promptly to private operation on terms fair to all parties. The railroad radicals want to prevent this or, if that fails, to complicate conditions and inflame discontent so as to make private operation inefficient. The duty of congress, which it seems ready to fulfill, is to consider not the covert threats of a minority but the interests of all the nation. A fair plan protecting the legitimate interests of labor, capital, and the public will be given the country's approval and support. The pending measure is the result of months of deliberation and should be as acceptable as any we can obtain in the circumstances. If it proves defective it can be amended.

PERILOUS PARALLELS.

The close of the Napoleonic wars a century ago left England the most powerful nation in the world, both economically and politically. By unremitting industry and use of every resource, natural and artificial, England not only had been able to bear a share of the conflict but had supplied the continental nations fighting against Napoleon with food, arms, clothing, and funds. England had prospered and grown more powerful throughout the conflict. At the end she was preëminent while other European nations were left ruined, exhausted and gasping.

Today, 100 years later, we find the United States in much the same position. This country has gained wealth and power while the nations of Europe have brought themselves to the verge of bankruptcy and in some cases to actual starvation. Every one of Britain's allies owed her money at the close of the Napoleonic wars. Every one owes the United States money today.

With the wrecking of Napoleon's power in 1814 Britain's exports doubled those of the preceding year. The next year showed further increase. This situation lured the British merchant to overreach himself. He crowded the European markets with goods to such an extent that the ruined peoples to whom he wished to sell were unable to absorb the supply. British goods brought a lower price on the continent than they did in England.

Specie payments had been suspended in England since 1797. Vast quantities of paper money had been issued. Currency was plentiful but comparatively worthless in purchasing power. Workingmen were enjoying unprecedented prosperity and were showing it by unprecedented extravagance.

What was the result of these conditions?

Heavy losses and frequent business failures ensued. Multitudes were thrown out of employment. The price of bread advanced. The crops of 1816 were the worst in years. The price of wheat doubled in the next twelve months. The working classes had saved little from their prosperity. There was hunger and misery abroad in the land.

Then it became necessary for England to resume specie payments. There was sudden contraction in the volume of currency. This step, taken suddenly in the midst of a period of extravagance, speculation, and high prices, plunged business into liquidation and placed it on an entirely different basis of value. The ultimate effect was to restore confidence and stability, but the immediate effect was suffering among the needy. That was a century ago.

Conditions today are almost if not quite parallel. Our own exports in 1919 were $8,000,000,000, as compared with $6,140,000,000 in 1918. Our cities are hives of industry. Wages have never been so high. Prices have never been so high. There has never been so little unemployment.

Is it not sane to profit by the lessons of history? Those who save now from their plenty will say it is and will give thanks for the 50 cent dollar put away today when it becomes a 100 cent dollar in the days threatening.

THE TUESDAY ELECTION.

The most important thing for the voters of Chicago to do at the polls on Tuesday is to vote the bond issues necessary to pay for the great south shore improvement. The amount is twenty millions and the people of Chicago could not make a better investment. Many times the required sum will be repaid in benefits to public health, in dividends of pleasure to us all, in great savings through better transportation facilities and in advantages pecuniary and social derived from making the city an attractive center for visitors.

The election will be the first under the new nonpartisan law and its results will be analyzed with special interest. Voters should remember that partisan lines are abolished and that no one need specify his party allegiance. It is to be hoped citizens will vote without regard to party and solely for the best interest of the city.

For those who seek public spirited and well informed guidance at the polls, we recommend a careful study of the Municipal Voters' league report.

In some wards hard fights are on and good judgment is especially called for. This is the case in the Twenty-first ward, where Ald. Walker is seeking reëlection on grounds of good service. In THE TRIBUNE's opinion that service should be acknowledged and approved by a substantial majority. The same is true of Ald. Richert of the Fourth ward, who has served eight terms in the council and given admirable service as chairman of one of the most important committees, that of finance.

In the Seventh ward Ald. Guernsey, in the Eighteenth Ald. Kavanagh, in the Twenty-sixth Ald. Pretzel, in the Thirty-third Ald. Anderson, and in the Thirty-fifth Thomas J. Lynch all have won recognition by good and faithful service and deserve good majorities.

In the Twenty-fourth Joseph A. Weber and in the Twenty-seventh Newton Jenkins give promise of being useful men in the council. Mr. Jenkins saw service overseas and we believe is the only A. E. F. candidate at the election.

With Chicago entering upon what we hope will be a period of broad construction, which will in striking and useful ways transform the appearance of the city, and with a constitution in process of revision, which is likely to bring to city government new powers and opportunities, we need not preach the importance of maintaining the character of the city council and wherever possible of raising it.

SWIFT MURDER TRIALS.

Judge Robert E. Crowe should be commended for directing the immediate trial of "Tim" Murphy and his fellow prisoners.

It is only through fair trials swiftly called and through certain penalty that justice can be established in Chicago. It is for the court to determine if Murphy and his co-defendants are guilty. But an essential of this determination is celerity. It is just neither to the prisoner nor the people to involve criminal charges in intolerable delays. If an accused man is innocent he should have his liberty. If he is guilty, the good conduct of the community requires that he be quickly punished.

Swift, implacable justice is the only medicine that will cure Chicago of its malady of murder. Endless delays have made killers scornful of the law and indifferent to human life. Gangs have expanded their authority into political circles to such an extent that the word of a doughty gunman has stood against the power of the state.

Mr. Hoyne has shown that it is possible to beard the Camorra and take a murder confession from its midst. Judge Crowe has shown a disposition to let the law take its shortest course.

If the prisoners are found innocent, the state should not complain, but set itself to find the guilty. What is most needed is an efficient machinery of justice. Trials should be swift. Expedient continuances should be frowned upon.

The promise of swift trials and certain punishment of guilt, if established, ought to go far in abolishing the present disregard of law in Chicago.

Editorial of the Day

ADVERTISING CHICAGO.

[From the Peoria Transcript.]

Mayor Thompson of Chicago proposes that $1,000,000 annually for four years be subscribed by business men of that city for the purpose of advertising Chicago in national magazines, newspapers, on billboards, in the movies and in any other way calculated to bring Chicago into the limelight as "the greatest city in the world."

"Chicago has been much maligned at times," Mayor Thompson tells a group of business men. "It has shortcomings, but if its advantages and greatness are told to the world, the shortcomings will sink into insignificance. I ask you in the name of the people to join me in attempting to make Chicago the greatest city in the world."

In population, Chicago is the second city in the country and the fourth city in the world. It is beyond the need of general propagandist advertising. Mayor Thompson's proposal to make it "the greatest city in the world" by the expenditure of $4,000,000 is a species of buncombe which will excite suspicion in most metropolitan centers that Chicago is a "rube" in big company suffering from the embarrassments of a mining town whose stock certificates are a drug on the market.

Chicago's chief advertisers are its newspapers. No million dollar subscription to a boosters' fund will prevent them from telling the news or deploring the fact that Chicago lacks a subway, that its railroads still have downtown terminals, or that it is one of the dirtiest cities in the country on account of a long tolerated smoke nuisance. The world need not be told again that Chicago is "the sixth largest German city of the world" or that it is a conglomeration of still undigested alien colonies.

The industrial and commercial facts about Chicago are known throughout the world. Its commercial enterprise always has outstripped its "hick" politics and its press is the most cosmopolitan on earth. It is great in controversy and great in public spirit, but these facts cannot be impressed by paid advertising.

When Gen. Horace Porter said Boston was "not a place, but a condition of mind," a cynic replied, "So is hell." Chicago is still money-mad and socially unstable. It has no great public works or works of art. Its water supply is illimitable, but its distribution system is inadequate and its streets are still torn up whenever a public utility finds it necessary to lay or repair a conduit. It has no housing or zoning system and the packing industry, which was once a "rubber neck" objective, is in the decline.

Mayor Thompson's booster plan is provincial, and were it not for the fact he is mayor of Chicago it would not be given passing consideration.

Come, come, and with you bring a basket large Enough to hold a treasure far more sweet

Nor Cleopatra such bright tribute meet
When borne unto her high imperial barge.
Here, under this great maple, scoop aside
The shallow snow and last year's leaves. Behold!
What living green, what fragrant starriness!
Drop down until in bloom you wholly hide
Your face; breathe deep, deep, and venerate old

This sale marks the triumph and the reduction to the absurd of book-collecting. The absurdity of picture-dealing is already manifest; prices have long ceased to have the least relation to the merit of the work purchased. It is out of mere snobisme and not from any love of art that people will give fifty thousand pounds for a picture by a second-rate eighteenth-century artist. The same spirit has invaded the book-collecting world. The amateur who collects books out of a genuine love of literature had better retire as gracefully as he may. There is no place for him in the topsy-turvy universe where fifteen thousand pounds is paid for a little volume of poems. One left the sale with a curious feeling of bewilderment and indignation, almost vowing that one would never look at an old book again.

HEALTH FOR MIDDLE AGED.

WHAT is middle age? A difficult question. In a certain sense if the average length of life is divided into thirds, the middle third is middle age.

Under that division middle age might be said to begin at 20. If we take the life expectancy of a person 21, the age of legal maturity, and divide it into three parts the middle age of mature life would begin at 41 and extend to 61.

A more helpful division of life is that of Southey, who placed the middle age at 49 to 63. Others have placed it at 40 to 60.

It has been suggested that we should count the beginning of middle age as the period at which men are disposed to put on a stomach, to acquire a waist line. The theory is that when a man acquires a "waist line" in excess of his chest measure he can no longer trust his automatic or instinctive activities to burn up as much nourishment as he takes. He cannot hold his hunger, appetite, eating capacity within the limits which his physical activities set. He has arrived at the period when he loads his frame with what may be termed unneeded tissues. When that time comes, regardless of a man's chronological age, he has reached middle age. With most people that period would be reached before the forty-ninth year.

In our younger years we can let our bodies, so far as eating, exercise, rest, sleep, and worry are concerned, take care of themselves with a reasonable degree of safety in the great majority of cases. The margin of safety is so large that a man must be a fearful spendthrift to exceed it.

Health men are accustomed to refer to the egotism of youth in relation to health. The youth can violate the laws of right living with a considerable degree of impunity because of this wide margin. Knowing that he is no bankrupt because he has a large inherited reserve on which he draws, he regards himself as unbreakable.

A physiologic point at which to set the beginning of middle age would be the period in which it becomes apparent that the balance is getting low or at the period in which a man finds it necessary to begin to govern his personal hygiene by experience, observation, logic, and reason rather than leaving it to instinct.

But this would mean that the beginning of middle life for each person would be established for that person alone. Suppose we say somewhat arbitrarily that middle life extends from 45 to 65, but that some reach middle age before 45 and some show no signs of senility until well beyond 65.

The middle age, according to Dr. Southey, is the age of new growths, cancer, and obesity. It is the period in which obesity becomes especially a menace. During this time men and women become short winded, stiff, and slow physically. The limits of endurance are more easily reached. The man commonly expresses his recognition of conditions by saying: "I cannot stand what I used to stand." It is plain that athletes are through at middle life.

Dr. Seymour Taylor concludes his booklet, "Health for the Middle Aged," with a summary of which this is an abstract:

Never neglect any slight ailment. Even a common cold should be nursed and tended. The diseases which are common in the cold weather of winter and spring are more fatal to middle life than the ailments of summer.

On the other hand, it is bad judgment to magnify the importance of slight chronic organic diseases. Many a person has been pushed into premature old age by being told that he has something wrong with his heart, kidneys, or other organs.

Care without fussiness is all that is required of such patients. The cracked vase often survives its sounder fellow because ordinary precaution is taken with its handling.

A physical examination once or twice a year is highly advantageous, provided the individual will adopt a method of living fitted to his status and will dismiss his physical condition from his mind further than is necessary for the carrying out of the new method.

Dr. Taylor's rules for passing safely through middle life are as follows:

1. Not to eat too much, neither of proteids nor fats nor starches and sugars.
2. Consume alcohol sparingly.
3. Smoke in moderation only. Especially avoid the cigaret habit.
4. Take exercise in moderation so as to keep the body fit, but not in order to create a false appetite for more food than is necessary.
5. Do not worry or fret. The stress of ordinary life is unavoidable and should not be unnecessarily increased.
6. Secure good sound sleep and plenty of it.
7. Manage your affairs so as to build up a competence against poverty in old age and against leaving dependents unprovided for.
8. Do not neglect even a minor ailment.

To which I think at least one other should be added:

9. Do not neglect any tumor or growth of any kind, but have its nature determined promptly.

There are scores of tests for liver function. The one which is held to be most promising is the Rowntree-Horwitz-Bloomfield test, using phenoltetracglorphthalein. This has been used for about seven years, and Chesney, Marshall, Rowntree, Krumbhar, and Barton say that it demonstrates outspoken changes in the liver and that it has "greater value than all other tests."

The pancreas helps in the digestion of lean meat, fats, and starches. It also secretes substances which are absorbed directly into the blood. There are several tests of pancreatic functioning, but none of them are very well established, nor are their findings accepted as of great value by the majority of diagnosticians. The field is a new one, and the tests are promising. No more definite statement can be made in the present state of the art.

There are a considerable number of tests of the heart capacity. A simple one consists in counting the pulse and judging its quality when the subject is lying, sitting, and standing. The scales show the increase in rate when the heart is capable and also when it is incapable.

Another, called by Barton the Russian test, is also known as the "holding the breath" test. If a person cannot hold his breath for fifteen seconds, it is held that his heart muscle is impaired. A common modification of the first of these tests is to note the effect on the pulse rate and quality of jumping up and down on one leg for a fixed number of times.

There are a great many more complicated and technical tests. Practically every one of the heart tests is of value. Hirschfelder points out that the "findings" of these tests must be interpreted in connection with the man's daily work. Testing of functional heart insufficiency is a matter of sociology as well as physiology.

The important question is not what the person can do in a gymnasium, but what he can do and what he cannot do in everyday life. Each man must be fit for his own mode of life, or he must be made to change it. His cardiac power must be studied with reference to that mode of life.

More general tests consist in determining a man's limitations as to certain foods. The test for limitations as to sugar are well known. These consist in giving a certain definite excess of sugar and testing the urine for sugar. Likewise, an excessive amount of white of egg is given and the urine is tested for albumin.

There are many tests to determine the amount of work being done by the thyroid. A comparatively simple one consists in catching all of the breath expired in fifteen minutes and analyzing it for carbonic acid. If this is done when no food has been eaten for fifteen hours, and when the subject is lying quietly in a warm room, it furnishes a fair index of the rate of oxidation in the body, which in turn gives an index of thyroid activity. In certain types of goiter this rate is very high. In cretins and persons of a cretinlike type it is very low.

There are other methods of testing the thyroid functioning capacity.

It is possible to test the adrenal glands to a limited extent. When adrenalin is injected into the blood in a good sized dose sugar appears in the urine. The sugar tolerance is held to have some bearing on adrenal function.

There are specialists who are expert in determining the functional capacity of the sex organs.

The usual method of testing the lung capacity is to measure the chest in deep inspiration and in complete expiration. This test is of very limited service. A large "expansion," as it is termed, is principally due to capacity to advantageously contract the muscles of the chest wall and back. The spirometer is an instrument for measuring the amount of air which can be blown from the lungs. There is considerable "trick" in "doing" this test, but at that it is much the more dependable of the two.

A test of tendency to acidosis which is in considerable use consists in determining whether a given dose of bicarbonate of soda will cause the urine to become alkaline.

URGES AN EXAMINATION.

"Anxious Mother" writes: "1. Diphtheria antitoxin was given to a child of 8 years as a preventive, when the child had another sickness, and two days later he had convulsions, and was unconscious for seven days. Could that possibly be the reaction of the antitoxin? The child continues to have convulsions occasionally. 2. Is it possible that the antitoxin is still in his blood? The amount given was 3,000 units."

REPLY.

1. No.
2. Some antitoxin remains in the blood as long as four weeks. Have the child examined for epilepsy or other cause of convulsions.

WANTS TO BUY HOME.

Galesburg, Ill., Feb. 18.—[Friend of the Soldier.]—I am a discharged soldier and would thank you for any information regarding financial aid from the government. Is there any such a bill, whereby a man can get a $4,000 loan from the government for the purpose of buying a home? What securities are required and what system is used in returning the money? C. W. T.

Such a bill was introduced in congress by Representative Dick T. Morgan of Oklahoma, proposing the loan of $4,000 to any honorably discharged ex-service man for the purpose of buying a home. Loans may run for the entire time limit of sixty years, with an interest of 3½ per cent on the unpaid principal. The loan was to be made on the full appraised value of the home and its improvements. This bill is still pending.

A DAY'S PAY; A DAY'S WORK.

Toloedo, O., Feb. 16.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—I believe it is an unquestioned fact that men in this country who work have better food, better clothes, a better time, better education, and better opportunities for their families than they ever have had before. Yet you must be impressed, as I have been, by the fact that newspapers today are filled with reports of unrest, bolshevism, I. W. W. utterances, high cost of living, strikes, etc.

And this talk about unrest unquestionably has had a powerful influence in turning men's minds from the old American ideal of a full hour's work for a full hour's pay. Too many men today are thinking rather how few hours they can work, what they are going to do with their leisure hours, and how much more pay they can obtain for each hour. The result is that increased wages have come to mean very generally decreased production per hour. In this situation there is a great menace for the future of our country.

But suppose you should play up and emphasize every instance and every fact which tends to center men's minds on greater production, greater loyalty to one's work, greater contentment, and greater appreciation of the tremendous prosperity which is ours. Suppose you should help bring out a universal campaign to educate every one of us on the importance of doing a real day's work each day.

I am confident that within a very short time such a universal action on the part of the newspapers would help greatly to put the country on the road to even greater and more substantial prosperity, and this prosperity would touch every family in the land. There would be greater happiness and greater content everywhere, and that means greater enjoyment by every one of the wealth with which this country is blessed.

The chief menace of bolshevism and other "isms" is their perverted economies. If they could be dropped from the public eye, and if in their place could be taught the sound doctrine that dollars won't buy bread unless somebody bakes it, these menacing "isms" would wither and die through sheer lack of sustenance.

I hape you will concur with me in believing that the country is ready for this kind of message now. J. N. WILLYS.

FRENCH, OUTSIDE.

Madison, Wis., Feb. 17.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—After reading the articles on bringing 1,000,000 French girls to this country, I wish to assure you it would be a great mistake, because after spending sixteen months in France and having seen the country from north to south and from east to west, I can truthfully say that I have seen not one French girl that can come up to the real American girl in any respect. And as far as eats go they can't beat mother, and she's a real American girl. Ask anybody who has been in France and got out among them and they will tell you what they think of them. I am sure they will agree with me that the American girl is plenty good enough. J. J. L.

THAT'S WHAT THEY'RE DOING.

Tomah, Wis., Feb. 16.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—A great wail is going up every few days through your paper by some of the disgruntled "wets" about this grand and glorious country of ours going dry. One would think that every good thing in life had been taken away. What a terrible calamity that we should be deprived of our personal "liberty."

Well, it is just about the same thing as taking away swill from a farmer's hog. And I don't know as a hog is entitled to any personal liberty.

I knew of several good women who don't have to take in washing any longer to support their families, and they are enjoying a little more of this personal liberty stuff than they ever did under a wet form of government. So there is no great loss without some small gain.

Now, if the poor wet boys don't like a dry form of government, why don't they take a boat for some other port. There is a boat leaving every few hours. And no doubt the poor things can find plenty of personal liberty and happiness somewhere else. E. H. N.

THE BREATH OF HEALTH.

San Pierre, Ind., Feb. 16.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—One onion a day will keep the flu away.

An onion sandwich and two or three glasses of water at supper time will clear the throat and act as a mild laxative, and will induce a sound sleep. Drinking lots of water with onions removes the disagreeable odor, using garlic often is also good.

Bake onion with peel on, squeeze juice, make into a sirup with sugar by boiling for little children.

MRS. JEAN A. EICHHEIM.

THAT'S WHY HE IS A KING.

Waukesha, Wis., Feb. 16.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Are you not rather severe on his royal highness, King George, for his generous use of the pronoun my? You overlook the ameliorating fact that although he does say "my army, my navy," he manifests his well known democracy by deferentially referring to the "national debt" when he might have said "my debt." FIRST ADRIATIC PACT SIGNED BY U. S., BRITAIN AND FRANCE

RIBUNE GIVES EXT PRESIDENT AYS IS VIOLATED

aly's Demands at First Held as Excessive.

BY EDWIN L. JAMES.

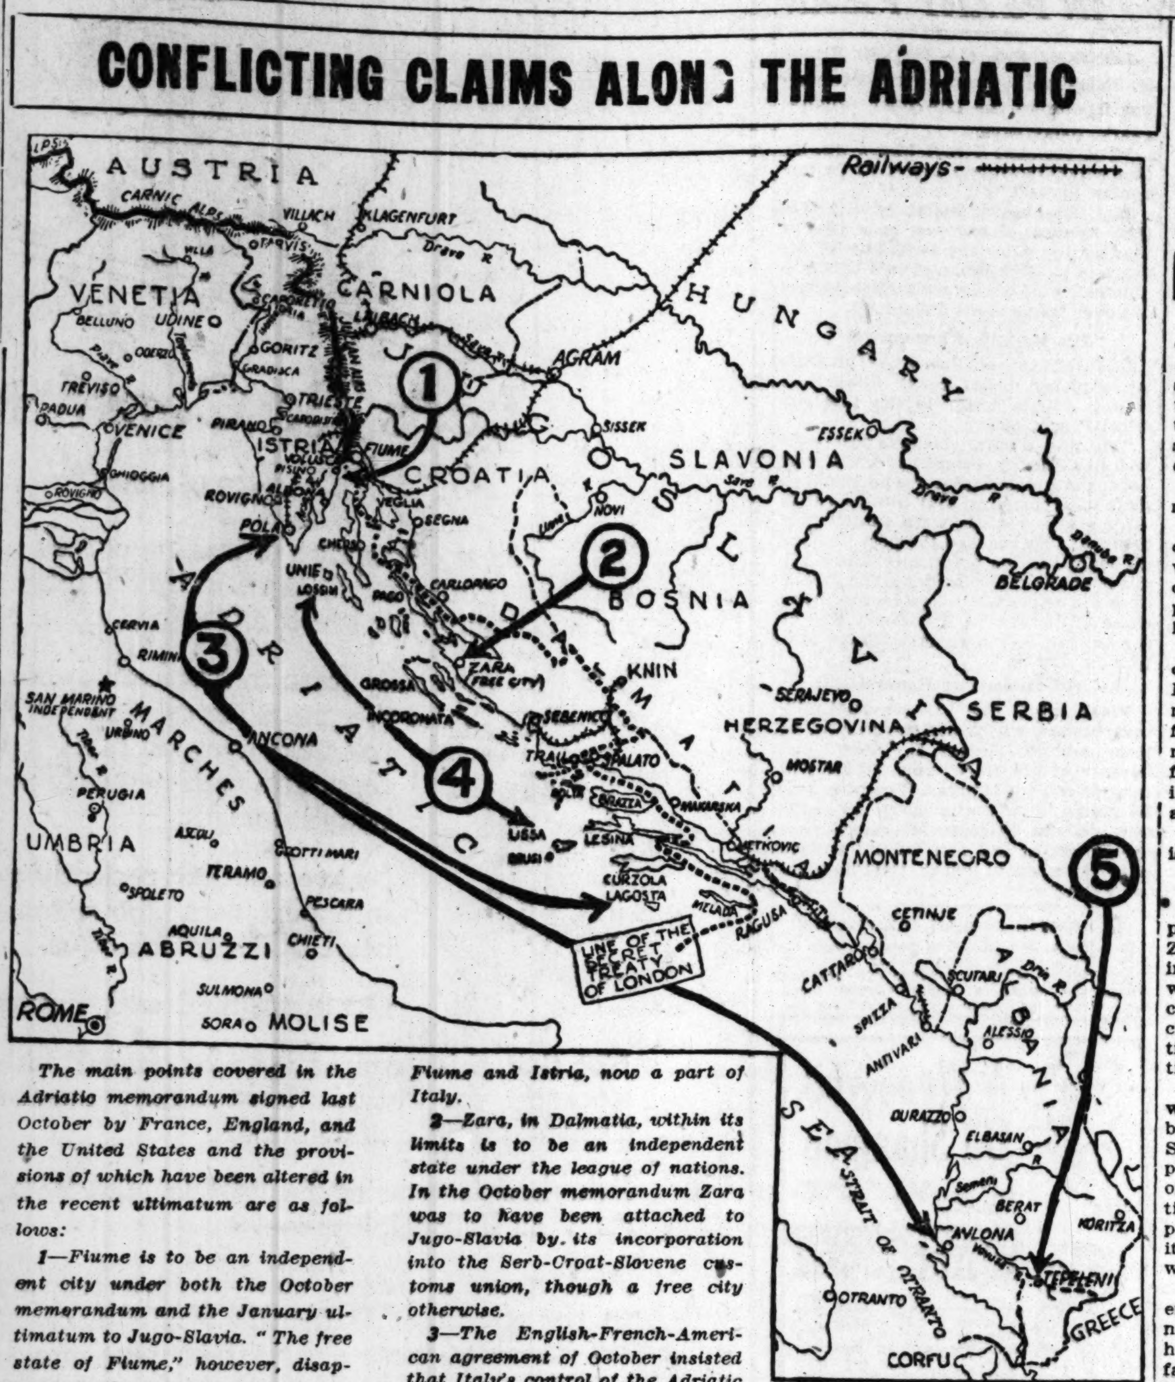
[Copyright 1920.]

CONFLICTING CLAIMS ALONG THE ADRIATIC



The main points covered in the Adriatic memorandum signed last October by France, England, and the United States and the provisions of which have been altered in the recent ultimatum are as follows:

1—Fiume is to be an independent city under both the October memorandum and the January ultimatum to Jugo-Slavia. "The free state of Fiume," however, disappears in the new plan, the city of Sussak going to Jugo-Slavia. All the ports and railroads of Fiume, Sussak, and in the proposed "free state of Fiume" are to go to the league of nations for administration in the interests of Serbia, Croatia, Slavonia, Hungary, and Transylvania.

There is to be a direct connection along the coast between Fiume and Istria, now a part of Italy.

2—Zara, in Dalmatia, within its limits is to be an independent state under the league of nations. In the October memorandum Zara was to have been attached to Jugo-Slavia by its incorporation into the Serb-Croat-Slovene customs union, though a free city otherwise.

3—The English-French-American agreement of October insisted that Italy's control of the Adriatic was assured by possession of Pola on the north, Avlona on the south, and the island of Lagosta in the center.

4—The granting of the island groups of Lissa, Pelagosa, and Lussin is covered in both the October memorandum and the ultimatum to Serbia. The former draft suggests complete local autonomy for the Jugo-Slavs of Lissa. This is not mentioned in the January note to Belgrade.

5—The October memorandum gives to Greece a portion of Albania to the north of Epirus, and Italy is to assume a mandate for the rest of Albania. The new plan suggests the administration of Albania to a local autonomous government.

PARIS, Feb. 21.—The Adriatic morandum signed last October by ance, England, and the United tes develops at length the arguments against the decisions contained the communication handed to the go-Slavs on Jan. 20, and which they re called upon to accept or the pact London would be resorted to. In cember, England and France signed agreement against doing what they ught to do in January and later.

In the plans submitted to the Jugo-avs on Jan. 20 by Lloyd George Clemenceau, Fiume is made a free y under the league of nations and nected with Italy by a narrow strip ng the coast, and Italy is given all Istria. Fiume, which would be given right to choose its own diplomatic resentatives, having a majority of lians, it is plain what would be its and independent attitude.

Conflict in Italian Claim.

The December memorandum goes at t length into the reasons why me should not be a free city of lf and be connected with Italy per by a road along the coast at memorandum also denies Italy's ht to all of Istria. But the proposal Jan. 20 makes Fiume a separate e city, connects it to Italy by a lway, and gives Italy all of Istria. Thus Mr. Wilson has the signature France and England to a document ying the justice of the main features of the plan which they later ught to enforce.

In order to increase the strategic rantees of Italy President Wilson accord with the Italian government proved the creation of a buffer state ween Italian territory in Austria the Serb-Croat-Slovene kingdom, tate in which about 200,000 Jugo-vs on the one hand and on the other d less than 40,000 Italians would placed under the authority of the gue of nations.

TEXT OF MEMORANDUM

The text of the memorandum signed Dec. 9 by Premier Clemenceau for nce, Sir Eyre Crowe for England, Frank Polk for the United States handed on Dec. 13, in London, to Scialoja, former minister of Italy, s as follows, translated from nch:

The last phase, it is hoped, of the k undertaken by the conference to clude peace with Germany, Aus-a and Hungary has begun. But ritorial settlements remain in suspense for regions where the state of ertainty is of a nature to do grave age to the vital interests of coun-s which have direct interests there-and is at the same time easily sus-tible of putting in danger the peace Europe and the world.

Persuaded that this danger will y increase if the peace conference urns before arrangement is made ng the principal allied and asso-d powers in the question of the iatic, representatives at the confer-e of the United States, Great Brit-and France desire to draw the ntion of their Italian colleague to urgent necessity of finding a solu-n.

Realize Rome's Difficulties.

They take into further considera-the difficulties which the Italian ernment experiences in treating problem, but it is precisely for reason that they would be lack-in loyalty to all the parties con-ed—Italy first of all—if they hesi-d in placing before the eyes of the ian government an exposé of the ation as it appears to them after eral months of examination and re-ction.

The friends of Italy feel constrained make a new effort to reach an ar-gement which will conciliate the lization of the legitimate ambitions aspirations of Italy with the just ims of the neighboring states and, the same time, with the supreme erests of the peace of the world.

The representatives of the United tes, Great Britain, and France per-themselves, then, to invite the Ital-government to proceed to a new mination of the question in the ht of the exposition which they e the honor to make today.

The British and French representa-es have followed with the most se-us attention and lively interest the otiations which have taken place ween the Italian government and President of the United States.

Hoped for Early Accord.

If they have up to this time ab-ained from giving their advice upon s subject to the Italian government was because they had hopes that latter would put itself into accord th President Wilson upon an ar-ngement to which the British and ench governments would be quick adhere.

The British and French govern-ents have made efforts to facilitate s accord which appears possible on all essential points after the an-er of President Wilson. It has not n possible to reach a complete agree-ent up to this time, but the points divergence, which now exist, have sufficiently reduced so that one hope that it will now be possible find ground for agreement on all the iculties which remain.

To this end it is perhaps fitting recall first the essential points upon ch an agreement has been reached. It is more desirable since, to judge m the recent and official declara-s, some misunderstanding appears exist upon questions which can be ckly explained, such as exact de-iption of the line which is common-called the line of President Wilson.

The points upon which an agree-t exists are for the greater part merated in the American memoran-communicated on Oct. 27 to the an delegation in Paris.

First—In that which concerns Austria, President Wilson has from the beginning accepted the frontier line running from the River Arsa to Mont Karavanken, a line which encroaches considerably upon the ethnical frontier between Italy and Jugo-Slavia and the adoption of which would have the effect of annexing to Italy more than 300,000 Jugo-Slavs.

"The geographical situation of Italy, at the same time as her economic needs, have been invoked to justify this grave violation of ethnical principle. President Wilson, desirous of giving to these grave considerations all the importance they merit, has gone still further in accepting the displacement of this frontier eastward in a manner to give to Italy the region of Albona, in spite of the additional considerable number of Jugo-Slavs thus annexed to Italy.

Agree on Buffer State.

"Second—There is complete agreement upon the creation in the interests of Italy of a buffer state, which will be known as 'the free state of Fiume,' placed under the authority of the league of nations. Considerations of an ethnical character demand that there be given to this state, including 200,000 Jugo-Slavs, an oportunity to determine by plebiscite its own fate.

"With regard to the objection made by Italy that the incorporation of this region in the Serb-Croat-Slovene state by the free act of its inhabitants could constitute an effective menace, we accept now that the task of arranging the future of the free state be left to the league of nations, which, conforming to Italy's demands, will not fail to reserve to the city of Fiume all the autonomy which it exercised under the Austrian-Hungarian domination.

Settlement on Dalmatia.

"Third—The representatives of America, of France, and of Great Britain are pleased to remark how much they have appreciated the wisdom and moderation which have characterized the attitude of the Italian government with regard to the difficult question of Dalmatia.

"They believe the government has had a clear conception of the superior interests of Italy in renouncing officially territorial claims, the realization of which would have resulted in permanent discord with the inhabitants of the Serb-Croat-Slovene state, and would have made impossible all friendly relations with them. However, in order to safeguard all Italian interests of race and sentiment, it has been decided that the city of Zara will be placed under a special régime.

"The geographical position of Zara designs it to be a part of the Jugo-Slav state, but on condition that the city will be part of the Jugo-Slav customs union it will be given complete rights and sovereignty under the authority of the league of nations and liberty to control its own affairs.

Islands in Adriatic.

"Fourth—The same wisdom and moderation which have characterized the attitude of the Italian government in the question of Dalmatia likewise characterize its attitude in that which concerns the islands of the Adriatic. The Italian government appears in accord with President Wilson and takes account, as he does, of the necessary bond which, from the point of view of race, of geography, and of national policy, unites to the Jugo-Slav states the islands of the Dalmatian coast.

"On the other hand, possession of certain coastal islands which are, it is true, ethnically Jugo-Slav and economically united to Jugo-Slavia, is considered by the Italian government as necessary to the strategic control of the Adriatic. This claim has been recognized as reasonable.

Islands Go to Latins.

"The following islands will, therefore, be attributed to Italy, but demilitarized:

"(a)—The group of Pelagosa.

"(b)—Lissa and the islands situated to the westward.

"(c)—Lussin and Unie.

"These islands will be transferred in full sovereignty to Italy, which on her side ought to conclude an arrangement with the Jugo-Slav population of Lissa, leaving to it complete local autonomy.

"Fifth—Italy will receive from the league of nations a mandate to administer the independent state of Albania. We have joined to present a memorandum project of the form which, in the opinion of the three representatives undersigned, such a mandate ought to take.

"The frontiers of Albania on the north and on the east will be those which were fixed by the London conference of 1913. The meridianal frontier will be the object of negotiations."

Here the boundaries of Greece are set down in great detail.

Italy Will Get Valona.

"Sixth—The city of Valona, with the hinterland strictly necessary to its defense and to its economic development, will be attributed to Italy in full sovereignty."

A short review of the principal points in the hinterland is made and the statement that Italy's rights are protected continues:

"They assure her from a strategic point of view the absolute control of the Adriatic. They give her complete guarantees against any aggression Italy could fear in the future from her Jugo-Slav neighbors, an aggression which for their part the representatives of America, of France, and of Great Britain consider as entirely improbable if we reach agreement upon a fair and definite settlement.

OTHER DEMANDS OF ITALY

"Desirous, however, of taking into consideration in a most sympathetic spirit all the Italian interests and sentiments, the three allied representatives have carefully examined in all their aspcts the other demands presented by the Italian government under the four following heads:

"A—Control by Italy of the diplomatic relations of the city of Zara.

"B—The arrangement by which the city of Fiume, the 'corpus separatum,' would be detached from the free state of Fiume and become completely independent, the port and railroad being, however, left to the free state.

"C—Direct contact between the city of Fiume and the Italian province Istria by annexation to Italy of the narrow tongue of land along the coast from Fiume to Volosca between the railroad and the sea, the Italian frontier being moved more to the east in a manner to encircle in this frontier all of Austria.

"D—Annexation to Italy of the island of Lagosta.

Zara to Be Independent.

"In that which concerns the first point, diplomatic representation of Zara, there should not be any difficulty in satisfying the national Italian claim which tends to safeguard the Italian character of this historic little Italian city rather in its interior administration than in its exterior representation.

"It is already agreed that Zara, while being attached to Jugo-Slavia by its incorporation to the Serb-Croat-Slovene customs unions, will be completely independent under the league of nations. The city will then be entirely free to decide, save for the approbation of the league of nations, how its foreign diplomatic representation will be assured.

"If, as it is pretended, the city is entirely Italian, its choice will conform naturally to the demand of Italy. We hope that in this manner entire satisfaction will be given to the Italian government.

The Question of Fiume.

"The Italian proposal to separate the city of Fiume from the free state with the exception of the railroad and port has created serious difficulty. The principal object in creating a buffer state between Jugo-Slavia and Italy was, in effect, to guarantee the strategic security of the latter and, on the other hand, the prosperity and development of Fiume.

"Fiume and the buffer state are absolutely dependent on each other and any arrangement which separated Fiume from the buffer state would put an end to the prosperity of both town and hinterland.

"Cognizant of the sentiment which has aroused Italy on the question of Fiume, the three allied representatives have always considered that an arrangement which appears practicable might be made assuring to the town of Fiume a privileged position in a buffer state.

Fiume to Have Autonomy.

"It is to attain this end that they propose to give to Fiume an autonomy in every way similar to that which the town enjoyed under the Austro-Hungarian domination and they are convinced that this disposition and vigilant and sympathetic interest which the league of nations will have for the town will guarantee to Italy complete protection of her nationals.

"The league of nations will exercise absolute sovereignty, and, with Italy represented in the council of the league, how could Italian interests not have full safeguards?

Any separation of the town of Fiume and the buffer state could scarcely fail to provoke a protest against the formation of this state, which would be in consequence almost entirely composed of Slav people.

Need Not Annex Fiume.

"With regard to the new proposal by Italy which seeks to annex to Italy the narrow tongue of land to the gates of Fiume, serious practical difficulties arise. The reasons for which the Italian government has presented this claim are of a purely sentimental character. It fulfills the desire that the town of Fiume should not be separated from Italy by foreign soil.

"Sentimental arguments of this kind may assuredly have in the eyes of the Italian government great importance, but it seems to rest on a misunderstanding as to the real situation of Fiume. The creation of a buffer state which will be completely independent of Jugo-Slavia was intended among other reasons to safeguard the situation of Fiume, the free state of which has been indicated in the preceding paragraph.

"Fiume already is attached to the kingdom of Italy not only by sea but a long land-frontier of about one hundred kilometers. The proposition already made takes account, then, of the sentimental considerations to which the Italian government attaches so much importance. In fact, the new proposal will not so well attain the same end, as in practice it is to be feared that it may be entirely inapplicable.

RAILWAY TO THE NORTH

"The Italian government does not bring forward the question of the railroad which is to connect Fiume with the north; it admits that the railroad shall continue to belong to Jugo-Slavia. For a long distance this line is parallel to the coast and the Italian proposal amounts in this district to a separation from the free state and annexation to Italy of the sandy barren beach which extends between the railroad and the sea strip."

The memorandum here sets forth the strategic and economic reasons why these dispositions afford Italy ample security, and goes on:

"In these circumstances it is necessary to recall the attitude taken by President Wilson, with the cordial approbation of Great Britain and France, with regard to the claims successively made by Italy with the object of absorbing the territory inhabited by non-Italian people opposed to absorption.

Quotes Lansing Message.

"On this point the following telegram sent on Nov. 12 by the secretary of state at Washington to Signor Tittoni can be cited:

"'Your excellency cannot fail to recognize that the attitude of the American government during the negotiations has been dictated by sincere sympathy for Italy and by most sincere desire to deal fairly with her claim.

"'Italy has claimed the Brenner frontier; this claim has been adjusted in such a way as to assure to Italy the greatest possible protection on the northern frontier, and that even though it entailed the annexation to Italy of a vast territory inhabited by alien people. Italy has further claimed the eastern frontier; that also has been franted, although it was necessary in order to obtain this result to include other territories also peopled by foreign peoples.

Take In Other Peoples.

"'Italy has claimed the deliverance of her irridentist brothers placed under foreign yoke and all possible efforts have been made to satisfy this desire, even in cases in which by acting in this way a much more considerable number of people of another race have been placed under Italian sovereignty.

"'Italy has claimed naval control of the Adriatic and this has been accorded by giving her control of the three keys to this sea—Pola, Valona, and a central insular base. These concessions have not suficed to satisfy the Italian claims. Other concessions have been added—at Tarvis, Alrona, in the Lussin islands, on frontiers of the free state of Fiume, and elsewhere. In our desire to act always most generously towards Italy, we have yielded to her claim for a mandate over Albania, hoping always that our efforts at conciliation would produce a generous response on the part of the Italian states.'"

The rest of the memorandum reviews and admits Italy's important part in the war, but holds that the kingdom's interests are amply protected by the above provisions.

ORIENTAL SHOW-YOU is an old Japanese condiment. Ancient poets sang of far famed SHOW-YOU in verse. Their tales told of travelers who, after tasting this delicacy at the table of the Oriental courts, would forget home and kindred and ever linger on the shores of Japan.

TURK VICTORY IN DEFEAT AROUSES BRITISH PUBLIC

Return of Constantinople Hotly Attacked.

LONDON, Feb. 21. — The London papers today displayed large advertisements headed "Menace to the peace of the world," appealing to trades unionists and public to forward protests to members of the house of commons to use their influence "to prevent handing back Constantinople to the blood stained rule of the Turks."

This protest will be echoed in many of the Protestant and Catholic pulpits of the United Kingdom tomorrow.

Decision Causes Surprise.

The supreme council's decision to keep the sultan on the throne at Constantinople has surprised the country. Influential parliamentarians, notably Viscount Bryce and T. P. O'Connor, have started a campaign against the policy. Many prominent papers are supporting them.

The Times says that while to expel all the Turkish race has never been dreamed of, "the Turkish flag, the Turkish ruler and the Turkish government have no longer a place in Europe."

Some newspapers describe the cabinet as divided, Earl Curzon, secretary for foreign affairs, and the liberal wing opposing the retention of the sultan, while the secretary for India, E. S. Montagui, with the conservatives, except Curzon, favor it.

For American Mandate.

T. P. O'Connor, in a statement to the Associated Press, said:

"A great section of American citizens will join the British public in demanding that this betrayal of Christianity and civilization be not effected."

Mr. O'Connor deplored that America did not accept the mandate for Constantinople.

Mr. O'Connor called attention to Premier Lloyd George's work in condemnation of the Turks in 1914, in which he characterized the Turk as "a human cancer—a creeping agony of the flesh," and he declared he was "glad the Turk was to be called to account for his long record of infamy against humanity."

The situation, said Mr. O'Connor, is the same today, adding:

"There is no justification for giving these vandals the right to continue butchering subject peoples."

Mr. O'Connor advocated the placing of Constantinople under the guardianship of the league of nations.

Decision Delights Turks.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Feb. 19.—Delayed.—[By the Associated Press.]—The dispatches announcing that the London conference has agreed to the principle maintaining Turkish sovereignty at Constantinople are hailed joyously by the entire Turkish press and officialdom, which declare the retention of Constantinople is most vital to the peace negotiations.

Bootblack Sketches and Paints During Odd Moments.

Which?

Harry Danos, another great bootblack or another great artist—which?

Harry himself doesn't know. But he knows what he likes. It is art. Meantime he is blacking shoes in a little shop at 6254 Ellis avenue.

Nearby, as he applies his pigments and ointments to the footgear of the chance patron and makes his brushes fly to the lilt of a merry whistled tune, stands a crude easel with a half finished sketch of a pastoral scene in his native Greece—a beskirted, lovelorn rustic, gaudy in his swish of colors, wooing a maid taken bodily from a Grecian vase.

To this sketch the snapping, alert eye of the youth artist wandered frequently yesterday as he told of his modest aims and ambitions and deftly rubbing the finishing gloss on a patron's shoes.

"I don't care to be rich," he said. "I just want to earn enough to live comfortably—and to draw pictures. Shining shoes is good enough for me just now. It gives me a living and when I am not busy I can go to the easel and draw out my ideas. And then maybe some day I'll have enough money to go to school and study painting."

BRITISH LEAVE, TURKS MENACING U. S. PROPERTIES

New York, Feb. 21.—American hospitals, orphanages, refuge houses, and other property in the Marash, Aintab, and Malatia provinces of Asia Minor are menaced by the renewed assaults of the Turks upon the Armenians, the Near East relief announced here tonight.

Since the withdrawal of British forces the Turks have launched their massacres again with fanatic viciousness, it was stated, and American built and financed institutions are imperilled.

In Marash alone Americans are operating hospitals for adults and children, four orphan asylums, a rescue home for girls, industrial plants, such as bakeries, shoe shops and weaving houses, the theological seminary of the Central Turkish mission, and the Central Turkey Girls' college.

The girls who were bitten were rushed to the Pasteur institute for immediate treatment.

Raimondi Manhssuci, 22 years old, living at 9551 Avenue N, died yesterday in the South Chicago hospital after he had been struck by a falling cable of a hoisting elevator in the plants of the Iroquois Iron company of 3267 East Ninety-fifth street.

WORLD'S NOTED EXPLORERS JOIN IN PEARY PÆAN

LONDON, Feb. 21.—Maj. Sir Ernest H. Shackleton, Antarctic explorer, paying tribute to the late Rear Admiral Peary, today says:

"The moment I met him I got an idea which never left me—that he was a man apart."

Maj. Shackleton instanced the fact that Admiral Peary had only two of his toes left after the hardships of his years of exploration, and said this was illustrative of his determination to win out over tremendous difficulties.

"His Records Phenomenal."

COPENHAGEN, Feb. 21.—The Danish explorer, Capt. Ejnar Mikkelsen, paying tribute today to the late Admiral Peary, said:

"He was a man. He was thorough and, like Stanley, somewhat brutal perhaps; the Arctic explorer who achieved most with comparatively meager funds—his sledge records were simply phenomenal. He reached the pole. I have no doubt on this point, although I admit it was extraordinary his not telling even his comrades before he made the claim of discovery. But Peary was of a silent, and to a certain degree suspicious, nature."

All Honors at Funeral.

Washington, Feb. 21.—Unusual military honors will mark the funeral of Rear Admiral Robert E. Peary, discoverer of the North pole, which will take place here Monday. The body will be placed in Arlington National cemetery on the Virginia Heights across the Potomac, and last tribute will be paid by a naval firing squad and a navy bugler.

By Anita Allison

The Chinese conception of making oneself attractive has, thank goodness, gone out of vogue in this country. Dame Fashion has finally come to her senses and signed a peace pact with Comfort.

We may now sally forth in low-heeled shoes and comfy woolen stockings. And the masculine eyes on the Boul Mich look with tolerance even on black galoshes. One wears them and feels perfectly au fait because everybody's doing it.

I have another perfectly good tip to whisper into pink ears, about something close to the heart of every one of us.

Get acquainted with Futurist.

Not that this garment is to be classed with galoshes and wool stockings, for Futurist is supremely comfortable without the slightest sacrifice of daintiness.

Everybody's wearing Futurist in New York, in Boston—yes in staid old Philadelphia, too!

And many a dainty miss you see tripping to the strains of Dardanella at the Blackstone thé dansante, were she to take you into her confidence, would tell you she wears them, too.

By no means are you to consider Futurist in the same breath with the so-called athletic underwear for women. That unpleasant phrase has too often been associated with garments intended only for gymnasium and sport wear.

Futurist garments are most fastidiously made and they fit divinely. They are delightful garments for every occasion, and once you have worn them you will never dream of going back to the old, over-the-corset variety.

Honestly, they are the most comfortable garments you have ever imagined; made in a wide variety of textures to suit every conceivable purse and fancy.

You'll find Futurist for sale at all of the better stores and shops. But if you have the slightest difficulty in locating just what you want, drop a note to me, care of the Futurist Company, or, phone Superior 1655.

YMPATHY FOR ETRAYED GIRL EXES ALDERMAN

fends Policeman Client and Himself.

Ald. Louis B. Anderson of the Sec- d ward expressed himself before dge Steik in the Municipal court terday as vexed at the women's ls and other organizations which e espoused the cause of 16 year l Bertha Wiebeck, now dead, against rvey Chambliss, the Negro police- an.

The alderman specifically repudiated intent to use the influence of his e to free Chambliss of the white l's deathbed charge that he be- ed her into a house of ill fame. If the officer were guilty," Anderson ared, "I'd be the first to say 'Con- him!' But the truth is, judge, t both I and my client are pure as Alpine cloud."

Lyle's Partner Active.

Active in Chambliss' defense was P. Harrold of the law firm of , Harrold, Hoover & Devitt. Adrian L. Hoover, one of the part- , was in the courtroom, but Ald. n H. Lyle, the senior member, did t appear.

Judge Steik continued the case ten ys and announced that when it is came up for hearing he probably ld be sitting in another branch of e tribunal.

"I wish it to be understood," he d "that I do not desire to shirk my y; yet I regard the letters and other resentations concerning this matter ch have come to me from persons o are not immediately involved as t unfair to the defendant."

Refers to Letters.

He said he referred to a sheaf of let- s from women's clubs and stories of rtha's dying statement which have peared in newspapers. Both the al- rman and Mr. Harrold agreed at e that Chambliss' interests were ng prejudiced.

"We demand an immediate trial," . Harrold asserted.

But the judge reminded him that the te must have an opportunity to pare its evidence, and when the yer referred to the bringing of wit- es from Bertha's home town in nsas as "a mere excuse" the judge uired where he got his information. . Harrold admitted he might have ken hastily.

"On the other hand," he declared, is policeman is being denied the t to work at his calling."

Chamberlin Watches Case.

Henry Barrett Chamberlin, operating ctor of the Chicago crime commis- , was a spectator. He declared the mission desired Chambliss sent to e penitentiary as an object lesson to y one who might seek to misuse a ice uniform.

It is understood that Assistant te's Attorney James T. McShane l ask grand jury action against ambliss and two alleged accomplices Wednesday. Should indictments be d, it is likely that the Municipal rt cases, which accuse the police- merely of a misdemeanor, will be pped.

WHERE'S SANTA?

She Started Out with Chum to Find Him, but "Got Losted" in Loop Instead.

MABEL JOHNSON.

Santa Claus usually drives out of the loop with his reindeers right after Dec. 25, but he never passes beyond the ken of his knee high worshipers. Mabel Johnson, 9 years old, went back to the loop yesterday to find him, but "got losted" instead.

Her school chum, Eunice West, aged 11, also "got losted" somewhere "around the swingin' doors."

The post-Christmas expedition started from Mabel's home at 3848 Hirsch avenue in the morning at 9 o'clock. When Mabel was picked up in front of THE TRIBUNE building at 5 o'clock she had a bad case of the snuffles. Finally a big policeman, with six little girls of his own, came along and Mabel was taken home. Eunice is still looking for Santa, but Mrs. West is looking for Eunice with a slipper.

Spray Boy's Throat with Cocaine; Death Follows

When surgeons at Augustana hospital sprayed the throat of Elmer Langiver, 18 years old, of Barrington, Ill., with cocaine preparatory to removing his tonsils the poison affected his heart and he died. The surgeons, Dr. Nelson Persey and Dr. E. Schmidt, notified the coroner's office.

"We sprayed the boy's throat with a 4 per cent solution of cocaine," said Dr. Persey last night. "His heart could not stand the strain and he died."

Young Langiver had been taken to the hospital in the morning by his father, a farmer.

MORON, DRAGGED FROM BASEMENT, ADMITS ATTACKS

Assailant of a Dozen Women Identified.

A moron who has confessed to attacking more than a dozen women recently in south side neighborhoods was dragged out of a basement at Sixty-first street and Calumet avenue yesterday.

To Detective Sergeants Ryan and Gooch of Englewood, who arrested him, he gave the name of Rudolph Breytung. He said he is 29 years old, that he was once in the army, that he has no regular address, no regular occupation, that his father is a farmer employed by Arthur Cutter in Downers Grove, and that he has a sister, Mrs. Anna Kost, who lives at 911 West Sixty-third street.

Victim Identifies Prisoner.

Mrs. Anna Lantry, 6134 South Mozart avenue, was asked to look at the prisoner. She identified him at once as the man who assaulted her last Saturday night.

"I beat some of them," he said, "dragged some of them into prairies or basements, attacked some of them, and robbed some of them."

Among other women who will be asked to identify the man are Miss Mary McMillan, 16 years old, 6511 South Francisco avenue, beaten and assaulted Saturday night; Mrs. G. H. Rearich, 7638 Cregier avenue, robbed of two rings and $4 near her home Jan. 27, and Miss Minnie Epemeyer, 19 years old, 314 East Fiftieth street, assaulted after being dragged into a prairie and robbed of $45.

"Confessed to Please Captain."

"I confessed to please Capt. Ryan," Breytung said later in his cell. "He seemed to want to have me tell all about it, so I did."

"It was not hard to get him to confess," said the captain. "We had his description—furnished by a number of the victims, and we were sure he was the man we wanted. I belive Breytung has been the assailant in practically every case of this kind we have had in the last month or so."

Edwin Ellert of 3424 West Sixtieth street was arrested by the Englewood police on complaint of the parents of many school children. They accused him of annoying their children.

Superb

Magnificent, stately, splendid, is how Webster defines "superb."

No better word, therefore, could be used to describe the Steger Piano.

For in rich, beautiful tone and artistic design, it is truly magnificent—an incomparable musical instrument among all other pianos.

Yet it is priced at a figure which makes it, without exception, "the most valuable piano in the world."

'LATIN TEMPERS' LOSE RICH WIFE TO CUBAN FLYER

Savior's Picture Saved Life, Woman Says.

Her husband's "Latin temperament" was blamed yesterday for the marring of her marital career by Mrs. Ora Mabel Hinson Campuzano, said to be the daughter of a wealthy eastern steel magnate.

She said Santiago Garcia Campuzano, from whom she was granted a decree after telling a long tale of cruelty to Judge Rush, is half Spanish and half Cuban and this was the foundation of her trouble.

Tells of Knife Attack.

Displaying a large knife to the judge, together with a small picture of the Savior, Mrs. Campuzano said the latter had saved here from the former.

"He came the length of two rooms with the knife in his hand and struck at me," she said. "I grabbed this picture from the table, showed it to him, and stopped him with it. It was the only thing that saved me."

Shortly after this the bill for divorce was filed, and Campuzano, then in Cuba, immediately returned to New York, where his wife was staying at the St. Hubert hotel.

"I told him I had filed suit," she said. "It seemed to madden him. I went through a hundred tortures. He said I would be his wife if I got a thousand divorces."

Campuzano, an aviator in the French army during the war, received numerous decorations for bravery. During 1918 he was an aviation instructor with the Cuban army.

"He also used to torture me by taking his walking stick and pressing it down on the sensitive part of my toe," his wife testified. "This act could not be seen by onlookers, but it caused me to cry out in pain."

In November, 1918, when in New York the Campuzanos joined a week end party on an estate on the Hudson. That evening Señora Campuzano, taking a stroll about the grounds, asked for a scarf. A 16 year old boy assisted her in placing it about her shoulders in the presence of her husband.

Lively Time Had by All.

"His Latin mind," said Señora Campuzano, "caused him to look upon this as an act of endearment. He struck the boy in the jaw, yelling at the same time.

"Our hostess remonstrated with him and he attacked her. She hid in another room, whereupon he attempted to batter down the door with a telephone and a chair.

"I ran from the house and crouched down behind a tree. He saw my light dress, seized a necklace and jerked it so strongly it cut deeply. He then dragged me across the lawn and gravel."

Senora Campuzano said she did not wish alimony, as she owned considerable real estate in Chicago and Palm Beach. Campuzano is said to be 29 years old and lives at 5 Prado, Havana. The senora was permitted to resume her maiden name of Hinson. Attorney Benjamin F. Ehrlich appeared for her.

BOY'S RECITAL TO AID SICK MOTHER, PAY FOR SCHOOLING

COE PETTIT.
[Moffett Photo.]

Coe Pettit is giving a recital at the First Congregational Church of Oak Park next Thursday evening. With the proceeds he intends to keep himself in school, pay for music lessons, and support his mother, who is ill.

Who's Coe Pettit? A boy 15 years old, one of a family of musicians, who came from Mason City, Ia., three years ago to start his career. He lives at 346 North Austin avenue, Oak Park, and is a junior in the Oak Park High school. He's a pianist and he toured the cantonments during his vacations and played to the soldiers.

He's played the game alone, studied day and night, practiced in cold churches for the long hours he had to have at the piano. He manages all his own recitals and is called the most professional and businesslike man in Oak Park when he's managing a big stunt.

Coe also is a composer and at the recital on Thursday you may hear his "Pershing's March."

FINED $10 FOR STREET ROW.

Dr. David Silverstone of the Sher-Lak hotel, osteopath, accused of making an insulting remark to Mrs. Robert Newman and hitting Mr. Newman on the nose in a quarrel on the street, was fined $10 and costs yesterday by Judge Hugh Stewart in the South Clark street court.

COUNTY REFUSES TO SET PACE ON UNION PAY RAISE

Boosts Workers Instead to Existing Scale.

It was "labor day" before the county board yesterday. Simon O'Donnell, president of the Building Trades council, other labor union men, and women, appeared before the commissioners, which is sitting to fix a budget facing a $2,000,000 deficit.

"Mechanical labor," so-called, asked for an advance of 25 cents an hour over its present $1 an hour. Spokesmen for the increase said the additional twenty-five cents an hour was asked in anticipation of May 1 demands to be made of industrial concerns by the unions.

Refuses to Set Pace.

Commissioner Dan Ryan, chairman of the finance committee, sat stolidly and argumentatively at the head of the conference board, with President Peter Reinberg nearby, each with a report of the 1920 budget estimates at there pencil tips.

Said Mr. Ryan: "Representatives of the labor unions: The county board will not fix labor standards. It necessarily will follow the union schedule. You will present your data and take your just due, no more, no less. We face a deficit as it is, and, in justice to the great group of unorganized employés the county must treat all equitably. Union labor will get its proportionate share, according to the scales set."

Whereupon Commissioners Frank J. Wilson and Robert W. McKinlay made addresses in agreement, Commissioner McKinlay wondering why the rank and file of county employés and the higher officials caught without organization, had not caught up with the procession.

One commissioner said the union's demand was at "the point of the pistol," but added, "What are we to do?"

Grant Union Scale.

By the board's action workers in all building trades who are employed by Cook county are granted the union scale. The men have been receiving considerably less than the amounts granted to union men not employed by the county, it was stated. Next week the board will consider the demands of union employés outside of the building trades.

The mechanical trades—electricians, plumbers, and steamfitters—have a union scale of $215 per month, and this sum will now be granted to the county men. They have been receiving $200.

Other trades affected are painters, bricklayers, machinists, carpenters, and plasterers, who will receive a uniform rate of $1 per hour. They have been receiving from 80 cents to $1.

These wages, it is said, will be in effect only until May 1, when the unions contemplate seeking new increases. The board is under obligation to meet these. With the next increase the mechanical trades expect to receive $275 a month and the other building unions $1.25 an hour.

Many to Lose Jobs.

President Reinberg said in order to meet the new increases many employés would have to be dropped and their wages distributed among the remaining ones.

Henry A. Zander, superintendent of public service, said it would take $75,000 a year to pay all the men their additional wage increases.

Meantime the county budget for 1920 must be passed at midnight on Feb. 29.

DIPLOMATS WILL BE DRY MISERY'S POLITE COMPANY

Washington, D. C., Feb. 21.—[Special.]—Diplomatic representatives of foreign nations in Washington have decided not to exercise their privilege of importing wines and liquors under the immunity from the prohibition law accorded diplomatic agents.

The reason given is that the decision is intended as a courtesy to the laws of the United States.

But it is known that the demands of the thirsty upon the oasis found in embassies and legations have made it rather expensive for the diplomats. This was admitted by a diplomatic officer to be one reason for the decision to go on the water wagon.

Some Spanish-American diplomats explained that ever since the prohibition law went into effect they have been swamped by requests to import wines and liquors for Americans. Many of the younger diplomats, it is said, have been besieged particularly by women.

ST AT 'DEATH OOZE' FEAST ARRESTED HERE

used of Killing Two at Elroy, Wis.

k Bouchard, 2831 South State , a Northwestern railroad bag- an, staged a little party on the of Feb. 14 in Elroy, Wis. To the occasion, he took a quart ine" and a bottle of "alcohol" him on his run and distributed it and women guests when he d Elroy.

chard was found yesterday after days' search by United States ition agents. He is slowly re- ing from a severe illness. He arrested on a charge of man- hter on a warrant issued by Elroy orities.

baggageman will be taken to nsin to stand trial for the deaths rs. Nellie Ward and Raymond , two of his guests.

Discover Wood Alcohol.

. Ward, a church organist, and d Hart, son of a bank presi- died last Sunday. Physicians and coroner's jury announced that death had been caused by poisoning in some food they had taken at the home of Mrs. Ward's mother, Mrs. Charles Hart, the evening before. Several days later post mortem examinations disclosed the presence of wood alcohol as the real cause of death. Then the local police began their search for Bouchard, whose "liquors" had been hailed as the feature of the party.

"We began searching for him at once," said Maj. A. V. Dalrymple, "on a charge of transporting liquor. The manslaughter warrant is far more important, however, and we will be glad to coöperate with the Wisconsin authorities.

Shows Moonshine Perils.

"This is simply another instance of the deadly menace held in this bootleg booze. Any man who gives moonshine to friends is a criminal these days and the sooner we get convictions on this score in state and municipal courts the better it will be for every one."

Bouchard was held by federal authorities without bail.

Capt. Hubert Howard, Illinois prohibition director, announced yesterday that hereafter the issuing of permits for the transfer or sale of "nonbeverage alcohol" will be taken out of the hands of the internal revenue department and handled by a special force in his own office.

Death of Aged Woman Ascribed to Auto Crash

Mrs. Purcell Henry, 70 years old, a widow, living at 7916 South May street, died early yesterday of internal injuries believed to have been sustained several weeks ago when the automobile driven by her son-in-law, H. G. Lippert, crashed into a Fifty-ninth street car.

THE INQUIRING REPORTER

Every day the inquiring reporter asks five random strangers the question of the day. Today's question:

Should the chief of police be succeeded by three police commissioners?

CHARLES SCHMITZ, 1721 Roscoe street, clerk—Three minds always are better than one. Although the chief does his work well, he has too much of it to do. The commission system should solve a majority of our police problems.

E. T. HIRST, 4217 Ellis avenue, merchant—It's all right for a small town to have a one man police leader, but Chicago needs a flock of 'em. Three probably would be sufficient. The commission idea should have been put forth a long time ago.

JOHN ENDERS, 72 West Adams street, local baseball leader—I'm for the chief. Too many cooks might spoil the broth if a commission was established. Let well enough alone. He has the goods and is performing in big league style.

S. ROSE, 5604 Calumet avenue, clerk—Let the commission have a trial. Anything that will kill politics in the police department will have my vote. Give the commissioners a salary, too—commensurate with their ability and their work.

HARRY GREBEN, 1357 South Springfield avenue, telegrapher—In all our big murder cases it has been proven that coöperative unity is a winner. If three commissioners can be selected who will rate 100 per cent for service and 0 for petty politics I'd prefer it to the present order of things.

BRIDE OF STAGE FINDS SHE WAS BRIDE TOO QUICK

Judge Tells Her She Is "Guilty of Bigamy."

Mrs. Georgiana Hewitt, playing the part of the bride in "Betty Be Good" at the Princess, appeared yesterday before Judge Rush expecting to have her marriage to Frederick B. Manatt, movie star, annulled.

With many smiles and a rather frivolous air, she told the judge about her first marriage with Charles G. Oldham, an actor, and how, on Jan. 31, 1917, she married Manatt. But it was not until June 15, 1917, that she received her divorce from husband No. 1.

Judge Silences Giggles.

The seriousness of having two husband at the same time weighed but lightly on her blonde head; in fact, she giggled frequently during the recital. Very unexpectedly Judge Rush caused her smiles to disappear when he spoke rather sharply about such proceedings.

"Undoubtedly your marriage with Manatt is void, but I am arbitrarily going to refuse your annulment. You have come into a court of equity with unclean hands.

Guilty of Bigamy.

"I will not allow the annulment because it will act as an invitation to many others to do the same as you have done. Indiscriminate marriages are not to be sanctioned by any court. You, young lady, are guilty of bigamy."

Whereupon, the blonde curls did not bob about any more and the sweet smiles were noticeably absent.

Martial Law Due to Fatal Riot Ends at Lexington

Lexington, Ky., Feb. 21.—Martial law, instituted here following rioting Feb. 8, in which six persons were killed and many wounded in a mob's vain attempt to capture and lynch William Lockett, Negro, will end tomorrow morning.

Lockett, who was convicted of the murder of 12 year old Geneva Hardman, is at Eddyville prison, awaiting execution of the death sentence.

Announcing

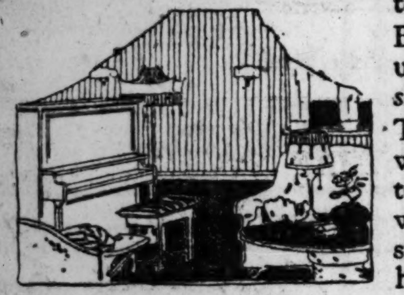
CABLE'S Annual AFTER-OPERA SELLING of MASON & HAMLIN PIANOS and others used during the winter musical season in Recital Halls, Clubs, Hotels, Music Rooms and Schools

NOW the Opera and winter musical season are over. Back from the Opera Company come the Mason & Hamlin Pianos which the artists used during the past months. Back from Recital Halls, clubs, hotels, music rooms and schools come pianos which were selected here at piano headquarters for Chicago's winter of music.

These instruments have been used by professional musicians for practice and concert work. Although they have had good care, each piano has been carefully gone over inside and out before being placed on our floor. Most of them cannot be told from brand new.



But because they have been used, we offer them now at sharp price reductions.

This selling is an annual event with us. We are not addicted to the sale-holding habit, but when we announce our annual sale you may be sure to find here unequaled values.

If you are planning to own a piano this year, buy here and now. You'll not only make a worth-while saving, but you'll get an instrument of assured quality.

The sale opens tomorrow morning. Come early and make your selection. Even a day's delay may mean disappointment. Values such as these will be disposed of quickly.

If you cannot call, mail the coupon for full descriptions, prices, terms of payment, etc.

Two Special Bargains in Brand New Instruments

Heretofore we have not included in our Annual Sale specially priced new instruments. But this year we have saved for this occasion two great values so tempting as to make them extra special.

A Great Upright Value, $385

This instrument is the product of one of America's most reputable makers, who builds after our own specifications but one type, one size and one style, thus enabling us to offer you the biggest possible dollar's worth.

Compare it point by point with other instruments costing much more. We'll leave the decision to your good judgment.

Come in and see this piano. You'll say it is the greatest value in the city. Priced specially for this sale at

A Great Player Value, $585

This big value player-piano has all of the improvements and features found on instruments selling up to $700—yet we offer it to you during this sale for the low price of $585.

ADMIRAL BENSON NEARLY ADMITS 'TWAS NICE DAY

Garrulous Seadog Predicts an Early Spring.

In the order of their appearance:

The Sphinx, Col. House—and Admiral William S. Benson, chief of American naval operations during the war and the man who has been selected by President Wilson to succeed John Barton Payne as chairman of the shipping board. There has been much discussion concerning the shipping board lately over the rumored sale of the German fleet. The subject was broached to the admiral. He smiled for reply.

Almost Says Something.

In reply to a question touching on the Daniels-Sims controversy, he told the one about the Irishman and the Englishman. In commenting on the presidential elections, he predicted an early spring—although he did qualify a little later by prophesying that the next president is still a dark horse.

Concerning the division of the fleet, he said the Pacific fleet had been created to give the boys on the Atlantic a little competition. &

After a great deal of coaxing he declared the present navy bill before congress, increasing the pay of the enlisted personnel of the navy, would solve the problem presented by diminished man power since the armistice.

Nice to be Decorated.

When the Sims-Daniels medal controversy was again brought up the admiral perked up a little, but disposed of the subject with the evasive comment that it was nice to get decorated by foreign governments, and that undoubtedly they held the same high opinion of American decorations.

By degrees then the admiral warmed up until he was advocating a merchant marine, adequate for any national emergency, a great navy, and universal military training. He declared that the naval training station at Great Lakes should be turned over to the naval reserve each year for the training of student officers from the middle west.

The admiral is in Chicago as a guest of the Knights of Columbus, and will address the La Salle assembly of the fourth degree of the order this evening at the Hotel La Salle. He is accompanied by his wife.

CITY'S GUESTS

Former Director of Navy and His Wife.

ADMIRAL AND MRS. WILLIAM S. BENSON.

Rob Elevator Passenger in Broadway (N. Y.) Building

New York, Feb. 21.—Two holdup men placed a revolver at the head of an elevator operator in a Broadway building today, ordered him to stop between floors, and took a $500 diamond pin from one of the passengers. Then they ordered the car lowered and with a final injunction to "shut up" left the building.

A pin corresponding to the stolen one was found shortly afterward by the police in the possession of a man who was exhibiting it to a crowd of boys.

'TIPS' OF INCOME TAX COLLECTOR LEAD TO ARREST

Confesses Aiding Citizens Doctor Schedules.

Heads of the federal internal revenue department began gunning for wholesale petty graft in the filling out of income tax schedules yesterday when Henry R. Wallace, a deputy collector assigned to the south side, confessed that he had accepted "tips" amounting to $50 for doctoring the schedules of tax payers.

Wallace was arrested by federal agents yesterday in the office of R. L. De Bolt, at 150 West Seventy-fourth street, general agent for the Metropolitan Life Insurance company, after special investigators learned that he had accepted $25 for trimming down another tax return. Agents declared that he met De Bolt to go over his schedule before it was returned to the collector.

Defends His Conduct.

"I took a few dollars," he told Collector Harry Mager after Commissioner Mark A. Foote had ordered him held on the charge of receiving petty bribes, "but I took them in the light of tips for personal services. It is true that in some schedules tax payers can be helped to reduce their tax somewhat by scheduling the amounts of money they have paid out to charities, the Red Cross, and the like. The government has not been cheated by any large amounts."

Only three weeks remain in which to complete the filing of the income tax returns for the entire country, and there are still several hundred thousand in the Chicago district alone who must file and who have not yet done so. If you are one of these do not delay until the last, as the rush will be great and the penalty for failure to file within the allotted time is severe.

During the first five weeks of the filing period, which ended yesterday, THE TRIBUNE'S income tax bureau gave out more than 30,000 schedule blanks and gave advice and assistance to all who came for it.

Service to Continue.

This service will continue until the end of the filing period and is at the free disposal of the public. The bureau is on the ground floor of the Tribune building, right off the street, and is open from 9 to 5 daily, except Saturday, when it closes at noon.

Questions and Answers.

J. L. writes: "Will you please answer the following questions: I rent an apartment, paying $50 per month. [1] I rent out three rooms, making $60 per month, do I pay tax on $60 or just on the $10 profit? [2] A relative makes me a small allowance of $10 per month, do I have to include that in income tax? [3] I am a widow, the head of a household, am I allowed $1,000 or $2,000 exemption?"

Answer: [1] The $10 per month is the taxable income. [2] If this is a gift it is not taxable income. [3] If you actually support and maintain in one household one or more relatives you are entitled to a $2,000 exemption as head of a family, plus $200 for each dependent under 18 or mentally or physically incapacitated for work, of whom you are the chief support, otherwise your exemption would be $1,000.

H. R. T. writes: "I have been told that the interest I have to pay on money borrowed to buy Liberty bonds is not deductible under the head of "interest on indebtedness." Will you kindly inform me if that is correct?"

Answer; Interest on money borrowed to pay for the first Liberty loan bond is not deductible. This does not, however, apply to the other issues.

WOULD BE RESCUER KILLED.

Peoria, Ill., Feb. 21.—George Heilman died here today of injuries suffered last night when he was struck by an automobile as he stepped from the sidewalk to go to the aid of John Floreman, who a moment before had been run down by another machine.

GIT DAT POSSUM! SKINS BRING $15 EACH AT AUCTION

New York, Feb. 21.—[Special.]—All previous high record prices for opossum were broken here today, when long, dark Tasmanian skins brought $15 each at the annual winter auction of raw furs in the Masonic hall, Sixth avenue and Twenty-third street.

The new mark was the result of some unusually active bidding. The poorest Tasmanian skins brought $3.80, and the average prices received were 100 per cent higher than those obtained for the article at the fall sale here last October. Australian opossum went up 65 per cent as compared with fall prices, and fetched from $1.50 to $6.70 each. Wolf prices ranged from $4 to $60. Total sales for the day were $1,500,000, bringing the grand total for the first six days up to $6,700,000.

The sale will continue Monday, with American opossum, ring tail opossum, kolinsky, ermine, otter, and house cat among the offerings. The collection of cat skins totals nearly 19,000. At the fall sale the best cat pelts sold for $1.50 each.

THIRTEEN DIE IN MEXICAN WRECK.

Laredo, Tex., Feb. 21.—Thirteen persons were killed and a score injured, according to the Mexico City newspaper Excelsior, when a passenger train en route from Jalapa to Vera Cruz, ran into the rear of the scout train preceding it, near Rinconada, last Wednesday.

Jiffy-Jell made with Sun-Maid Raisins or None Such Mince Meat. Made with Style C Mold—Pint Size.

Half a Pineapple
Crushed to Flavor One Jiffy-Jell Dessert

Here is one example of the wealth of fruit in Jiffy-Jell desserts.

We crush pineapples in Hawaii—fruit too ripe to ship. The juice of half a fruit is condensed and sealed in a vial to flavor one pint dessert.

Yet the whole dessert costs but a few cents, ready at your call.

So with eight rich fruits which come in Jiffy-Jell. All are made from crushed fruit, all are abundant. All come in liquid form, condensed and sealed in glass—a bottle in each package.

Real-fruit flavors in bottles

Mark this Jiffy-Jell distinction. Note how it differs from old-style quick gelatine desserts. Jiffy-Jell alone has these bottled fruit-juice essences.

Jiffy-Jell desserts are fruit-made dainties, rich in fruit. The fruit taste is not mere flavor and not artificial.

People need fruit daily. Now, when fruit is costly, this is an ideal way to serve it.

Complete desserts

Jiffy-Jell comes ready-sweetened. It is acidulated with evaporated fruit acid. A rare-grade gelatine is in it, and the fruit-juice essence in a vial.

You simply add hot water as directed on package, and let cool. Then a package of Jiffy-Jell serves six people in mold form, or twelve if you whip the jell.

Yet this fruit-made dainty, rich in fruit, costs a trifle. It costs less than serving apples.

'Twill delight you

Try Jiffy-Jell in various fruit flavors. Try lime fruit flavor for a tart green salad jell. Try mint for a mint jell to serve with meats.

Learn what these dainties mean to you. Compare them with old-style desserts of this type.

We offer you choice of several 50-cent molds if you will do this, and at once. Cut out our offer so you won't forget.

*In the contested Fourth Oklahoma district one set of delegates is instructed for Wood, the other uninstructed. In the Fifth Oklahoma two sets of contesting delegates are uninstructed. Two complete sets of uninstructed delegates are in contest in South Carolina. The Georgia delegates at large are uninstructed and will be contested.

Insistent reports of a new and formidable dark horse Republican candidate for president have reached Chicago during the week over the political grapevine. His identity and his geographical situation are not even faintly intimated but the activities of the insiders who will sit in along about the second night of the Coliseum convention next June and attempt to determine a nomination indicate that there is something doing.

The developments of the week just ended show that the real contest is just beginning to bubble above the political surface. Twenty-seven national convention delegates were elected during the week, each one of them uninstructed, which fits in perfectly with the original plans of the party leaders.

G. O. P. Developments.

Summary of the chief Republican events follows:

New York determined, officially, to have an uninstructed delegation of eighty-nine at Chicago. Elihu Root declined to be a delegate at large and will not be in Chicago. Nicholas Murray Butler, who for a time was a presidential candidate, took himself out of the race. Charles E. Hughes sent formal declination to Nebraska of the petition that was being prepared for him, as a candidate in that state's direct primaries. This apparently leaves New York without a candidate.

Senator Boies Penrose, in a formal statement, said that Pennsylvania will be unitedly for the nomination of its governor, William C. Sproul, but he gave particular approval, without discrimination, to the candidacies of Senator Harding and Gov. Lowden.

Harding in Tactical Jam.

Senator Harding appears to have been caught in a tactical jam in his own state of Ohio, by the freshly-arrived legal necessity he faces of being a candidate for president and senator simultaneously. The Harding candidates for delegates, it is asserted, are about to announce themselves for J. Warren Keifer of Ohio, for second choice, in order to stave off the Wood candidacy in the Ohio direct primary. Wood managers now claim to be able to carry Ohio.

Gov. Lowden and Gen. Wood are fighting fiercely for the preferential vote and instructions in South Dakota, where the first real direct primary will be held March 23. Gov. Lowden finished his personal campaign in the state yesterday. Gen. Wood reaches there Wednesday. Senator Johnson will be there next week.

Hoover's Problem.

Herbert Hoover's name will be on the Republican ballots both in Michigan and Indiana, petitions having been filed for him in each state. His friends want him in the Minnesota voluntary primary of March 15, but the rules are such that Mr. Hoover is in the position of having to say that he is a Republican, if he wants to get in the running. Strangely enough the Georgia Democratic state committee, Thursday, served notice on the Hoover managers there that Hoover cannot appear in the Georgia Democratic primaries in May unless he acknowledges his Democracy. The Minnesota primary, according to gossip, was formulated as an aid to the Wood candidacy. Gov. Lowden's managers immediately put him in as a contender and started his campaign in the state where he was born.

New Hampshire for Wood.

Gen. Wood now appears as likely to get New Hampshire, his native state, with instructions, at the primary that will be held March 9.

Oklahoma, on the surface, is a total loss to the Wood manager. It was all set to instruct the twenty delegates for the general. He now has a chance to get only the two delegates in the Fourth district, that are in contest. The state's delegation was completed Friday by the election of two contesting and uninstructed delegations in the Oklahoma City district. All others are controlled by Jake Hamon, who is anti-Wood to the finish.

Nebraska settles down to a straightaway contest at the direct primaries of April 20, between Gen. Pershing and Gen. Wood, with Senator Johnson as a third contender. Gov. Lowden and Senator Harding have eliminated themselves on the ground that Nebraska is Pershing's home state.

Senator Johnson's campaign managers failed to effect satisfactory negotiations during the week with the La Follette forces in Wisconsin.

The McAdoo letter to Georgia asking that his name be kept from the Democratic primary ballot was the important Democratic development of the week. Senator James A. Reed of Missouri undoubtedly will be a candidate in Georgia. Petitions were filed to make a primary candidate of Gov. Edward I. Edwards of New Jersey in Michigan and Nebraska. Senator Pomerene of Ohio voluntarily eliminated himself as a presidential candidate, and Ohio Democrats redoubled their activities for the nomination of Gov. James M. Cox. Oklahoma has indorsed and instructed its twenty delegates for Senator Robert L. Owen of that state. The Iowa state convention will be held in Des Moines Wednesday.

South Side Smith College Girls Who Are Vying with North Side at Fund Raising "Stunts."

HELEN GRANT AND MARION COHN.
[TRIBUNE Photos.]

And now the south side Smith college girls are vieing with the north side "grads" to see which section of the city will produce the most shekels toward the $4,000,000 endowment fund.

On the north side the girls have opened a fashionable tearoom just off Lake Shore drive. When the south siders heard of that, of course they had to "start something."

So they adopted the idea of giving a series of Saturday morning entertainments for "the kiddies," and went out and buttonholed Mr. Thurston, the magician, and a number of other notables, and induced them to donate their services.

The first of the series of entertainments will be held next Saturday morning at the Chicago Beach hotel. Miss Helen Grant and Miss Marion Cohn are among those selling tickets.

ONE SWALLOW DOESN'T BRING SPRING, NOR TON OF COAL END WINTER

THERE are at least two more months during which the poor must be supplied with coal. One springlike day doesn't mean that there are not more cold snaps to come. Even in this kind of weather you'd be mighty uncomfortable if the steam radiator stopped sizzling. There are lots of persons—many of them ill—who do not have the proper amount of warmth every day. The TRIBUNE coal fund brings relief to as many of these sufferers as the generosity of the readers will permit. Yesterday's contributions to the fund follow:

WRIT FAILS TO RELEASE CHILD BRIDE OF DU BOK

The writ obtained by the attorney for 50 year old George Du Bok to get his 16 year old wife out of the Juvenile detention home failed to secure the young bride for the stepfather husband. Judge McKinley said yesterday that if the Juvenile authorities can produce the evidence they promise, that Du Bok has told witnesses he is the father of Nellie Osterhof, the girl wife—the marriage is null and void and the girl cannot be released on any writ.

Attorney Gabel, for Du Bok, told Judge McKinley that the girl's marriage to her stepfather, Du Bok, ended the court's control over her, even though a criminal charge against him was pending and she was a ward of the Juvenile court. Judge McKinley said: "Not if the girl is proved to be his own daughter."

Du Bok through representatives tried to get the consent of Judge Victor Arnold of the Juvenile court to marry Nellie, then in the Florence Crittenden home with her three weeks old baby. Judge Arnold refused that permission. Mrs. Mary Belle Spencer then became the child's guardian and granted permission for the ceremony, which was performed. The hearing on the writ has been continued to next Friday.

MRS. SHOREMAN DIES FROM BURNS; $1,261 IS FOUND

Mrs. Mary E. Shoreman died yesterday of burns received in the fire which destroyed her home at 3140 Fulton street on Friday night. The investigation begun by the fire department on the report of Battalion Chief Touhy is expected to disclose evidence of arson, it was said.

Mrs. Shoreman died crying about her money, unaware that firemen had recovered $1,261 in soiled bills of various denominations in an old mattress in her room. Neighbors called the home the "old curiosity shop" because of the quaint relics she had collected.

At the inquest yesterday John and Phillip Edler, brothers, and Emma Edler, a sister, said they had not seen Mrs. Shoreman for nearly ten years. The coroner's jury's verdict was that death was accidental.

WOMEN'S VOTE IN 1920 RACE NOW UP TO 3 STATES

Connecticut, Vermont and Washington Decide.

The chance that women of the United States are to vote in the 1920 presidential election now hangs upon the action of three Republican states—Connecticut, Vermont, and Washington.

Thirty-two states have ratified. Oklahoma undoubtedly will ratify tomorrow, and West Virginia is scheduled to become the thirty-fourth state at a special session at Charleston on Friday.

Chicago suffrage headquarters yesterday received the news that Gov. Holcomb of Connecticut is on the point of calling an extra session. It is largely up to Senator Brandegee, it is reported, the senator being the controlling force, in the last analysis—and he hasn't been for suffrage. Majorities of the legislature and of the Republican state committee have asked Gov. Holcomb to issue the call, but he has taken no action.

Vermont Awaits Word.

Vermont awaits some word from Gov. Clement. He is pronouncedly against ratification, but his legislature is understood to be ready to ratify as soon as it can get together.

Washington is in the hands of an acting governor, who refuses to call an extra session because of Republican factional disturbances. He wishes the assurance that the special session will ratify and adjourn immediately.

Nothing is hoped for by the women from the Democratic states of North Carolina South Carolina, Florida Louisiana, and Tennessee in 1920 Florida and Tennessee are precluded by their constitutions from acting on the federal amendment until new legislatures are chosen.

Want 37 Ratifications.

The suffragists really desire thirty-seven ratifications, to be on sure ground, due to the Ohio situation, where a state law recently passed may require the action of the legislature in ratifying to be submitted to popular vote in November.

The "antis" expect to make an issue of the Ohio matter. They have several cards up their sleeves should the thirty-six states be obtained for ratification, including a plan to invalidate the presidential election if the suffrage amendment is declared in effect, giving the women full participation next November

DOCTORS WILL COMPARE NOTES ON FLU RESEARCH

The fourth annual meeting of the American Congress on Internal Medicine opens tomorrow at the Congress hotel. It will continue throughout the week, and more than 500 delegates from the United States and Canada will be in attendance.

Reports covering a year of research in connection with flu and various other diseases, contagious and hereditary, will be submitted, and there will be a series of clinics in more than a score of hospitals.

The meeting will be under the auspices of the American College of Physicians.

Ousted Mason Gets Sixty Years' Term for Forgery

It was told some time ago how Charles V. Zernack, expelled from the Logan Square lodge, No. 891, A. F. and A. M., wandered out to Los Angeles, Cal., and began signing the name of his former fellow lodge member, Dr. T. J. Peterson, 3756 Fullerton avenue, to checks varying in size from $50 to $100. These checks Zernack cashed with members of the Masonic order. Yesterday, according to dispatches from Los Angeles, Zernack was found guilty on four charges of forgery. His total sentence amounts to sixty-four years in prison, which he may cut down to thirty years by good behavior.

Suffrage Demonstration in Japan "Falls Down"

TOKIO, Feb. 11.—Delayed.—The universal suffrage demonstration, which had long been planned for today in the hope of influencing pending legislation, proved something of a disappointment. It had been announced that 100,000 persons would engage in it, but those actually participating were less than one-quarter of this number.

Stinson, 4607 South Sacramento avenue, appealed to The Tribune yesterday to assist her in a search for her father, John Alicz, 55 years old, who has been missing during the last four years. Mrs. Stinson says her mother, Mrs. Gertrude Alicz, is dying and that she is crying for her missing husband.

When the PENDULUM Swings Back

HIGH prices for potatoes invariably produce a tremendous increase in potato planting, with the result that an enormous crop is thrown on the market—prices drop—and only a few growers make money.

The following season many of the growers quit, claiming that "potatoes don't pay"—the crop is small—prices rise—and the pendulum swings again.

This principle applies to all commodities. It is the law of supply and demand.

It would appear at the present time that many American manufacturers are deliberately closing their eyes to this immutable law. Their actions indicate that they believe the present abnormal market is permanent.

Because sales now overbalance production by a big percentage, these manufacturers are straining every nerve to expand their factory capacity and to increase their output.

At the same time many sales organizations have been allowed to deteriorate.

Some manufacturers are even pursuing the policy of cutting down sales effort, laboring under the delusion that they are economizing.

BABSON says, "Business consists of two functions—production and distribution. Great efficiency has been obtained in production. Comparatively little has been done toward efficiency of distribution. This, however, is the coming field of opportunities and reward. When the big change in business comes, manufacturers will have to go out into the market and compete for business."

In fact, all keen observers predict that the present abnormal market situation must inevitably change.

Far-seeing business men are right now preparing for the day when competition will again be keen and when the best prepared sales plans will be needed to get the business.

Undoubtedly 1920 will be an exceedingly prosperous year. But, nevertheless, we are convinced that the surest guarantee of peace lies in instant readiness for war; that no manufacturer can afford unduly to allow his sales department to lag.

In the coming MARATHON of business no weakling, no "short horse" can hope to lead.

Only the manufacturer who enters the coming competitive period with a thoroughly organized and trained sales department and with the prestige of solidified consumer-demand will thrive.

A LEADING magazine publisher asks manufacturers: "Are you well 'oversold'—or badly 'oversold'?"

To book thousands of dollars worth of "straw" orders, placed by shrewd retailers who over order so that they may be sure of delivery by some manufacturer of the goods they really want——to predicate production needs on soap-bubble sales volume that a pin-prick may puncture—

—to be blinded by the delusion that you are the chosen Child of Fortune—

—this is to be badly oversold.

To be well oversold means that you are represented by the best jobbers or dealers or both; that they fully understand and use your advertising and selling plans; that your sales force enjoys the full respect and confidence of the trade; that your orders are legitimate and capable of immediate increase whenever you have more goods to supply; that you are working on the established principle that your product is not really sold until it is in the hands of a satisfied customer.

If this is your position then you are "well oversold."

THERE is one form—and only one—of commercial insurance which is as certain as fire or life insurance.

Ample sales and advertising effort is that insurance.

When the period of relentless competition returns, the battle for leadership will be fought—not in the work shop—not in the office of the general manager, but on the firing line—out on the salesman's territory—where buyers are met and where orders are won or lost.

Inevitably the pendulum will swing back. Inevitably we must return to normal economic conditions. Inevitably the buyer—not the seller—will control business.

When the pendulum swings back will it find you prepared to wage battle with competition—and what

REGIMENT GAMES WON BY I. A. C.; C. A. A. IS SECOND

Two Central A. A. U. Marks Are Broken.

Table of Points

With the result hinging on the last event, the pole vault, Knourek and Rademacher scored five points, which gave the Illinois A. C. team a victory in the twenty-sixth annual indoor track and field games of the First Regiment A. A. last night in the Michigan avenue armory with 53 points. The C. A. A. finished second with 50 markers.

Two Central A. A. U. records were broken and one track mark shattered. A. Desch of Notre Dame university won the forty yard low hurdles in a blanket finish with Jo Loomis in the fast time of :04 4-5. This mark not only broke the former central association record of 5 seconds, but equalled the world's indoor mark.

Ames Set Hurdle Mark.

Waldo Ames, the former University of Illinois athlete, competing for the C. A. A., established a new central mark in the 40 yard high hurdles by winning the event in :05 2-5. The former record was one-fifth of a second slower. Joie Ray of the I. A. C. reduced the regiment track record to 4:19 4-5 in the one mile.

To Tom Hoskins of the C. A. A. went the honors of being the individual star. He scored 13 points by winning the standing hop, step, and jump, 40 yard dash, and finishing second in the standing broad jump. Strawn, a Northwestern university freshman, who competed unattached, counted 8 points by scoring in five points. Joie Ray garnered 10 points by winning the one and two mile runs.

Pole Vault Develops Battle.

The pole vault resulted in a battle between Graham and Knourek. They cleared the bar at 12 feet 6 inches and were trying for a higher height at late hour. The result of the event would not affect the outcome of the meet.

In the Wake of the News

GIRLS.

I confess when I write of a squared circle fight
My heart isn't in the endeavor;
The pugs may be princes—to me they are quinces
In spite of the fact they are clever;
I can't stir much pep when I seek to put hep
The nuts to the ways of the squir'ls,
For the one, only thing that I glory to sing
Is the song of the marvelous girls.

The neat, the sweet girls,
And their curves and their curls,
I love to sing of 'em—the girls!

When I warble of ball—basket, base, foot, and all—
I do it to grab the dinero;
I can juggle a snort from most any old sport,
But the punch 'neath it's absolute zero;
But you let me acclaim on the subject of Dame,
And I'll show you some classy rime twirls,
For I'm there, good and right, in that realm of delight,
The realm of the wonderful girls.

The fond, the blonde girls,
The brunette, best bet girls,
The witching, the gloom snitching girls!

We've been robbed of our booze, that first aid to the Muse,
I mourned its demise in sad verses,
But we've still got the kick of the femine trick,
Intoxicant deep she disburses!
And I drink to her eyes wherein soft magic lies
Such as never was found in gin's whirls—
Aye, the Janes, dark or fair, there's no package so rare
As we sip from the lips of the girls.

The mysterious girls,
The delirious girls,
The cuties, the beauties—the girls!
—GUY F. LEE.

This Wake is conducted by Harvey T. Woodruff. Help! Help!

Not as Fat, Perhaps.

Dear Sir: I am one of the lucky ones who live near Humboldt Park and have had the privilege of watching the fine skating meets conducted by THE TRIBUNE and others this winter. You don't see any lounge lizards or cake eaters in the crowd. Come on out and try it, you ain't any older or fatter than I am. C. C. G.

If all the skating had been done outdoors, perhaps there would not be so many mourners for the late J. B.

* *

Yet we still hear of cheap skates while every one knows that skates, except from private stock, are expensive.

SKATING.

Now skating's confined to the parks, on the ice,
And not to the mark who rolled the small dice
For a drink or a smoke, whichever he'd choose,
Until he went home with his skin full of booze.

East vs. West.

In support of the oft recurring argument over the relative merits of western and eastern football, George Huff, athletic director at the University of Illinois, recently said to The Wake: "I think the best eleven of the Big Ten for the last four or five years would have beaten the best eastern eleven. I do not mean decisively, but beaten it. By eastern eleven I also exclude those teams recruited by means no longer approved, but include Harvard, Yale, and Princeton.

"I think we equal the east on defense, while our open game far surpasses that of the east. When Eddie Mahan and Potsy Clark played on opposing teams for the service championship in France, they feared Mahan and stopped him. They hadn't heard so much of Clark, but they didn't stop him."

Why Not Return Games.

Harvard offered Illinois an early date on its schedule next fall. Possibly it would be regarded as a "practice" game. Illinois did not object to such a characterization. Zuppke would attend to that. But Illinois did ask a return game at Illinois field in 1921, and the matter dropped. Princeton offered Ohio State a place on the Tiger schedule. Ohio State demanded a return game the following year. Nothing doing. Western colleges feel their dignity entitles them to stipulate such conditions before accepting invitations to play in the east.

Let's Not Be Critics.

But we of the west, while recognizing the justness of the Illinois and Ohio State stand, should not criticize too harshly or call Harvard and Princeton provincial. To them, the big thing is to beat each other and Yale. Their schedule is framed with that end in view. So long as they feel that way, they are justified in scheduling contests to attain their ambition.

Perhaps the time will come—and not far distant—when most of the big eastern colleges will see the interest and tremendous drawing power of a game against a representative western eleven. Speed the day.

Modern Geography.

"Cuba is an oasis entirely surrounded by chasers," is what Ollie thinks geographies should say about our southern neighbor.

Why Not Here?

There is boxing in Springfield, beneath the gov's nose,
How they get by with it, nobody knows,
While here in Chicago, us poor city hicks,
Ride miles and miles just to see the boys mix.
J. E. D.

Do You Remember Way Back When: The old boy with the gingerbread whiskers dispensed cough drops on the trains to the race tracks, with his cheerful "Sweet or sour?" and if you showed any interest in his wares he proffered you a cough drop with his little tongs and whispered confidentially in your ear, "Good for singers"?

U. S. OLYMPIC SQUAD CHOSEN ON BASIS OF FIVE MONTHS' MEETS

New York, Feb. 21.—Plans rapidly are taking form for an elaborate series of trial track meets in all sections of the country to aid in selection of the athletes who will compose the American Olympic team next summer. While the schedule has not been completed, it is known that those in charge of the formation of the team will follow the performances of athletes in more than 100 indoor and outdoor games during the next five months.

Final selection of the track and field athletes who will make the trip to Antwerp, will be made immediately following the annual National A. A. U. championships in Harvard stadium July 3 to 10.

Follow Sectional Games.

These titular contests will be preceded by sectional trial games to be held on the Pacific coast, the middle west, the east and possibly the south. No dates or locations have been fixed for these contests, but it is expected that they will be staged about the middle of June.

On the Pacific coast, Pasadena, Stanford university, and Multnomah A. C. of Portland, Ore, are eager to secure the far west games. As each organization offers excellent facilities, it is expected that the American Olympic committee will leave the final choice to the athletes of that section in order that a field satisfactory to a majority of the entrants may be named.

Chicago to Hold Events.

Chicago or vicinity appears certain to be the scene of the middle west tryouts, while Philadelphia or Boston will hold the eastern trials. Both the University of Pennsylvania and Harvard university possess excellent quarter mile tracks and perfect turf for the field events.

An announcement was received here today from President Dallas of the A. A. U. to the effect that the Meadowbrook A. C. of Philadelphia had abandoned the idea of holding its annual indoor meet, scheduled for March 6, and would instead devote its efforts to arranging a mammoth outdoor meet early in June. This set of games may include the eastern Olympic trials, and in that case would be held June 5 or 12.

GEORGES WIN ON K. O.

MRS. FEITNER BEATS ELAINE ROSENTHAL IN FLORIDA GOLF FINAL

Palm Beach, Fla., Feb. 21.—[Special.]—Mrs. Quentin Feitner, South Shore, defeated Miss Elaine Rosenthal, Ravisloe, in the finals of the women's golf tournament this afternoon. The Florida title was at stake, but Miss Rosenthal was outclassed and the match came to an early ending on the fourteenth green, with Mrs. Feitner 5 up and 4 to play.

Mrs. Feitner played almost par golf for the first round, going out in 36, against bogey 34. She won the second, fourth, sixth, and eighth holes and halved the first, third, seventh, and ninth. Miss Rosenthal won the fifth hole by sinking a putt which lay several feet off the green and twenty yards from the cup.

Mrs. Feitner was 3 up at the turn, and continued to outdrive and outputt her opponent. Miss Rosenthal made a game attempt to come through, but her play was marked by hard lies and several putts which merely rimmed the cup. On the tenth, eleventh, and twelfth holes Miss Rosenthal's drives landed in the bunkers.

In the second flight final Mrs. T. B. Payne of Atlanta defeated Mrs. E. N. Brewer, Onwentsia, 6 and 4.

British Beat Americans in Rugby Football Game

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 21.—The All British rugby fifteen defeated the All American team today, 8 to 6, in a game played here to determine the merits of the players to be selected as an All American rugby team to compete at the Olympic games at Antwerp next summer.

Players from the University of California, Stanford, Santa Clara, San Mateo, Davis Farm, and the Olympic and Barbarian clubs made up the two teams.

Madison, Wis., Feb. 21.—[Special.]—Wisconsin sprung the season's Big Ten surprise tonight by defeating Illinois, 33 to 29, in a thrilling overtime contest, the Badgers caging two field goals in the extra period. The Cardinals pounded against the superior team play of the Illini, gaining a lead in the first period, which was wiped out in the last few seconds, Illinois leading, 15 to 14. The Badgers again fought their way to a three point lead, which was tied when the referee called three fouls on the crowd.

Capt. Knapp took all honors with ten field goals, Carney being his only scoring competitor. Weston and Walquist guarded and dribbled superbly. Lineup:

Maroons, 31; Michigan, 19

Ann Arbor, Mich., Feb. 21.—[Special.]—For the second time this season, Michigan lost to Chicago tonight, the Midway aggregation winning, 31 to 19. Birkhoff made thirteen of Chicago's thirty-one points. The Maroons relied on their long shots, making a good percentage of them. Chicago's team work was excellent, this being one of the features in which Michigan fell down. Karpus and Rea drew practically all the applause, being the sole stars for Michigan. Chicago's game was fast, much faster than any team has shown in Waterman gymnasium this year. Lineup:

Purdue, 49; Purple, 20

Purdue stepped into second place in the conference basketball race by running the steam roller over Northwestern 49 to 20, in Patten gymnasium, while Wisconsin was drubbing Illinois at Madison last night. The game at Evanston started like a real fight, but the Purple's defense proved inadequate after White and Tilson registered baskets with a regularity disheartening to the Northwestern rooters.

These two Boilermaker scoring aces shot up the floor in successful dashes for field goals in the first two minutes of play, making the count 4 to 0, but the Purple showed an old time flash, and evened the count, 8 to 8, by the time five minutes had elapsed.

The Boilermakers' floor speed dazzled the Purple after that, and the fast passing of the visitors under the basket made a rout of the affair, the Boilermakers leading, 28 to 13, at the intermission.

Tilson and White together totaled thirty-seven points. Wilcox was the only Purple man to score more than once. Lane was ousted on personal fouls before the first half was over. Lineup:

Steve O'Neil, catcher; Joe Harris, first baseman, and Pitcher Ed Klepfer are not included in the list of players who are to train at New Orleans. O'Neil and Harris are holdouts and Klepfer has announced his retirement.

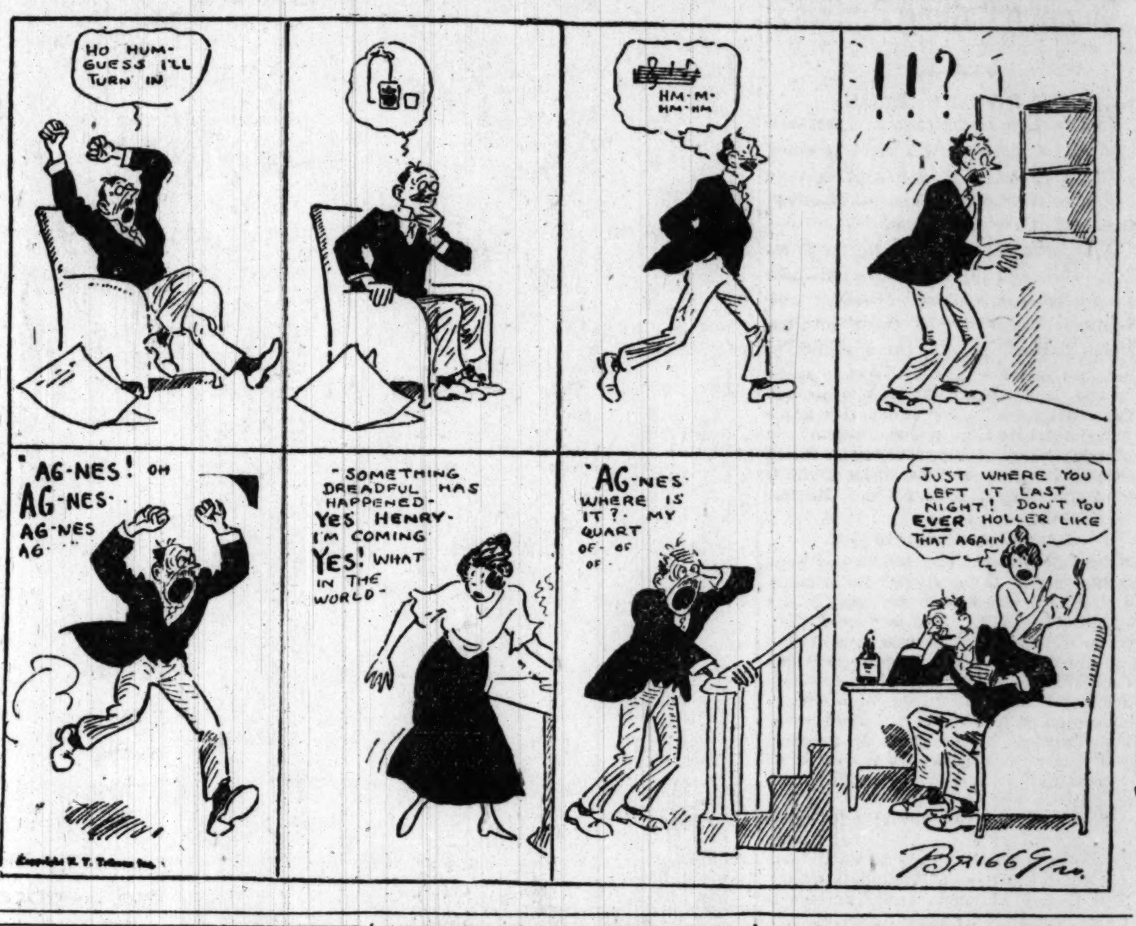
Thomas Makes Best Time in Los Angeles Auto Trials

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 21.—Elimination trials today for the 250 mile automobile race, which is to open the new Los Angeles speedway on Monday, reduced the number of possible starters to nineteen. One of these must be dropped. The final elimination will be made on the basis of the slowest time in trials, unless another driver develops engine trouble before the race. Joe Thomas made the best time today, circling the mile and a quarter track in :40 3-5, at the rate of 110.84 miles an hour.

Hoosier Speedboat Wins Miami-Palm Beach Race

Miami, Fla., Feb. 21.—Hoosier V., owned by H. R. Duckwall of Indianapolis, won the Miami to Palm Beach speed boat race here today, making the 138 mile course in 5:08:32. Shadow V. was second in 6:14:35. The two other entries were forced out by rough weather.

MOVIE OF MAN WHO DISCOVERED A GREAT PERSONAL LOSS



PLAN TO FORM ORGANIZATION OF COUNTY GOLFERS

BY JOE DAVIS.

Foresighted citizens who advocated the establishment of the forest preserve have seen the fruition of their efforts. Their idea was to secure recreational places for the public while they were to be had at reasonable cost.

Foresighted golfers have the same idea in view in advocating the establishment of more municipal courses or of acquiring suitable property which can be utilized later.

In furtherance of this idea representatives of a number of clubs will attend a dinenr at the Traffic club rooms in Hotel La Salle tomorrow night at 6:30 o'clock.

Represent Many Associations.

The purpose of the gathering will be to organize the Cook County Municipal Golf association. R. J. Wallace, who will represent several of the western suburbs; Judge A. J. Sabath, president of the Mystic Golf association; President N. E. Fegen of the Knights of Columbus Golf association, A. R. Johnson of Lincoln Park, President Marshall Moreau of Garfield Park, County Commissioner Robert W. MacKinlay, Tom Bendelow, and R. W. Teeter of the Boy Scouts will be among the speakers.

Other clubs and communities which will be represented are Marquette park, Western Electric, Dental Golf association, Austin, and Oak Park.

Want Competent Supervision.

The organization hopes to coöperate with the forest preserve commission in securing a competent man to supervise the courses at Palos Park and Edgebrook.

Chicago is better provided with public courses than any other city, as it has eleven. The south parks system has three, the west park system two, and Lincoln park one.

The forest preserve will have two in operation this summer, while Evanston and Winnetka each have one, and the course at Harlem is a daily fee course.

Need for Still More.

All of these courses are more or less congested, and golf is increasing so rapidly that several more could be utilized at once. In addition to the new golfers produced on the public courses Chicago has an army of 6,000 registered caddies, and each year a number pass the eligible age and most of them are then looking for a course on which they can continue to play.

LAST CALL FOR SKATING RACES

The final skating derby of the season will be held today at Independence park, where the newly organized Irving Park A. C. will stage ten events. The usual number of contests for class skaters will be held in addition to the events for boys and girls. It is expected that some of the skaters who took part in the international championships at Lake Placid, N. Y., will be back in time for the events. The first event will start at 1 o'clock. Independence park is located at Irving Park boulevard and Springfield avenue.

WRIGLEY TROPHY FOR COAST TEAM PLAYING BEST AGAINST CUBS

When the Cubs play their exhibition games on the coast this spring against the Los Angeles, Vernon and San Francisco clubs of the Pacific coast league, they are likely to bump into such battles as they experienced in the regular championship race. A unique scheme conceived by William Wrigley Jr., chief stockholder of the Chicago club, promises to produce these unusual results.

WRIGLEY CUP.

Mr. Wrigley has purchased a large sterling silver cup, to be presented as a trophy to the club of those three which does the best in the games against the north siders. He wants the Coast leaguers to fight against the Cubs with all their might, believing that in such contests the Cubs will gain the needed exercise and drill to fit them for the season. Consequently the "Wrigley Trophy."

The Cubs have five games scheduled against Los Angeles, five against Vernon, and five against San Francisco. The Oakland, Seattle, and Portland clubs are not included in the trophy contest, as only three are booked against Seattle, two against Oakland, and one against Portland.

President Veeck of the north siders procured the cup from a local jeweler and has had it properly inscribed. It will be taken to the coast when the Cubs leave Saturday night for camp and will be on exhibition in some window in Los Angeles while the Chicagoans are in camp at Pasadena and playing the exhibition games in Los Angeles. Later when the team goes to San Francisco the cup will be taken there and placed on exhibition.

FABER UNSIGNED, BUT READY FOR START WITH SOX

Indications are that "Red" Faber, White Sox pitcher, will be on hand to attempt a "comeback" when the team goes to Waco, Tex., on the training trip. Faber called at the Sox office yesterday and had a long conference with Comiskey, and, while he left without signing his contract, Comiskey stated afterward that he figured "Rěd" would be in line on starting day.

Early in the 1918 season Faber quit and enlisted in the navy. He returned to the game last year, but failed to get into the stride that won fame for him in 1917. This winter he regained his old weight and strength and looks capable of showing old time speed.

At Cub headquarters President Veeck announced the unconditional release of Lee Magee, utility man with the north siders the last half of last season. The Cub boss offered no explanation of the case except that waivers had been asked and no one in the big league claimed him.

Walter Johnson Favors Ban on Freak Hurlers

Coffeyville, Kas., Feb. 21.—The recent ban placed on the "shine" and spit ball will be a big help to the game, according to Walter Johnson, twirler for the Washington American leaguers, who makes his home during the winter months on a farm near here.

"I believe all the fans and most of the pitchers will be glad to see trick pitching discarded," the big twirler said today.

Johnson says his pay arm is in great shape and he is looking for a big season.

Louis Groh Signs Up as Manager of Evansville

Evansville, Ind., Feb. 21.—[Special.]—Louis Groh, brother of Heine Groh, captain of the Cincinnati Reds, today signed as manager of the Evansville Three Eyes league team, to take the place of Johnny Nee, who was released recently to become manager of San Antonio in the Texas league.

ARMY AND NAVY BOARD MAY DROP DEMPSEY'S CASE

New York, Feb. 21.—Hearing of the slacker charges against Jack Dempsey has been postponed by the army, navy, and civilian board of boxing control. Word went out from the board's office today that it might be months before the evidence it is seeking will be ready for introduction.

Word also ran the "mouth to ear" circuit among the fans the hearing never will take place.

It is reported that the club split on the wisdom of the move. Many claimed it a false step that might be a suicide for its bid for recognition.

Legion Refused to Act.

Dempsey appealed first to the American Legion for the right to present his side of the story after several individual posts of the organization had condemned him for his war record, or lack of one. The national council of the legion refused to take part in the controversy.

The heavyweight champion then appealed to the board as an organization that represented the highest in the pugilistic realm.

After much deliberation the board finally agreed to let Dempsey show his cards and tell why he did not enlist and show what he did while acting as a "labor scout" for the shipyards.

Questions Stump "Court."

Following the announcement of its willingness to grant him a hearing, numerous questions were hurled at the "court" appointed to sit in judgment.

"What would be done if Dempsey was found guilty?"

"On what authority could the board give him a clear slate if the charges were found untrue?"

"Even with a decision absolving him of guilt, what could the board do to circumvent public opprobrium?"

DEMPSEY DENIES CANNING KEARNS

Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion, in a message to friends here yesterday, denied reports that he intended to break with his manager, Jack Kearns.

"Kearns will be my manager as long as I remain in the boxing game," the champion's message read. "I give him credit for my success as a pugilist and becoming world's champion."

"Bum" Stuehmer Seeks Go with "Stockyards Tommy"

"Bum" Stuehmer of Davenport, Ia., is on the trail of "Stockyards Tommy" Murphy, local boxer. J. R. Mansfield, who is managing the Davenport lad, was in Chicago yesterday trying to arrange for his boxer to meet Murphy before some nearby club. Stuehmer served with the 26th field artillery in France and while over there boxed Georges Carpentier at an army show. He weighs between 145 and 150. His manager can be reached at 1818 Second avenue, Rock Island, Ill.

No Action by Grand Jury on Dempsey Draft Charge

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 21.—The federal grand jury has concluded the examination of a number of witnesses in the case of Jack Dempsey, heavyweight champion of the world, on the charge that he falsified his selective draft papers. No further action is expected until Tuesday, when the jury again meets, it was said today.

Gould Beaten in First Round of Racquets Meet

Boston, Mass., Feb. 21.—Jay Gould of Philadelphia was defeated by Fulton Cutting of Boston in the first round of the national amateur racquets championship tournament at the Tennis and Racquet club today. It was a straight victory for Cutting, 15—5, 15—11, 15—12. In the only other match of the day F. F. Frelinghuysen of New York won from S. W. Pearson of Philadelphia, 15—11, 15—7, 8—15, 15—11.

DEMPSEY QUITS CABARET CROWD ON TURNING BOXER

Promoter Tells of Jack's First Bout; Wins $2.50.

THE LIFE AND ADVENTURES OF JACK DEMPSEY

CHAPTER VIII.—"THE HANCOCK BOY GOES BOOM."

BY EYE WITNESS.

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 21.—It would be between five and six years ago now that Andy Malloy, a middleweight boxer of some fame a decade and a half ago, said to H. K. Downing, the Salt Lake fight promoter: "Hardy, I've got a fellow here, a big, punk kid, but I think he can fight. I wish you'd give him a chance. I've boxed with the boy and he looks like a fighter."

MAXINE CATES DEMPSEY.
[Photo Underwood & Underwood.]

The boy was Jack Dempsey. Malloy had picked him up somewhere in Colorado or Utah while he (Malloy) was fussing around among the mines. He still fusses around among them, leasing one claim or another, now and then cleaning up a few hundreds and coming into Salt Lake City once a year to enjoy himself.

First Fight at 19.

According to Downing's remembrance of those days Dempsey was nearer 19 than 18, and the champion himself told me offhand the other day that his first fight under Downing was six years ago. Upon examining his memory Hardy was inclined to set the date in October, 1914, and if that is right Dempsey would have been past 19.

Anyway, Downing gave Malloy's pickup—he hadn't reached the status of protégé then—the chance, and Dempsey's first fight under Hardy came off at the old Grand theater, now the Hippodrome, in Salt Lake City. Indeed, it was Dempsey's first fight anywhere except three or four kid matches in Provo, the town fifty miles south of Salt Lake City where Senator Smoot lives and where the Dempseys had lived until Jack was about 17.

Family Goes East, Then Returns.

After the Provo days the family went back to the old home folks in Logan county, West Virginia, to stay a year (I suspect the migration was the result of another run of hard luck) and then flitted west again, settling down to three or four lean years in Salt Lake City about 1914. Dempsey says the fight in question was "right after we came back from West Virginia."

I go into all this detail because that first Salt Lake City fight of Dempsey's, though it made only a local stir at the time, is now in a fair way to become one of the comedy classics of fistiana.

There were two Hancock boys, both huskies, and sons of the biggest produce dealer in town, and both of them were amateur boxers with a tendency to take themselves seriously. Hardy Downing says it was with "the oldest" of these boys that he matched Dempsey, though Dempsey says as he remembers it they were twins. If they were, the other twin never carried the argument any further.

Brief Story of Fight.

"Tell me the story of that fight," I said to Hardy.

"Story," echoed Hardy, "there wasn't any story. It was a case of one punch and two dollars and a half. Dempsey just walked out and feinted with his left once, then drove in his right, and the Hancock boy went boom. It was over in twenty seconds.

"That was his beginning with me—and his real beginning in the fight game. Then he kept on fighting for me in 1915 and into 1916, just a pork and beaner—what we call a meal ticket fighter. From $2.50 he went up to $5, and then $7.50, and then $10, and then $15, and then $25—four round goes. Five hundred dollars for the fight with Dick Gilbert at the old Salt Lake theater where Maude Adams made her debut as a baby in arms was the first time I ever gave him any real money.

Predicts Future for Jack.

"It was along during the first fights he had under me that I met Dempsey's father on the street—nice enough old fellow who used to get a job sometimes helping clear ice and snow off the streets—and I said to the old man: 'If this kid behaves himself there's no reason he shouldn't be the heavyweight champion.' That's how good he looked to me even at the start."

"But the old man kind of shook his head and said, 'I don't know whether he will behave or not.'

"You see, the boy had fallen in with a crowd that wasn't doing him any good with their cabarets and their pimping around."

I said to Hardy: "I had a long talk with Jack's sister Florence yesterday. She says he's a good boy. Always brought home every dime he ever earned. She says she never saw him drunk."

What Women Don't Know.

Hardy Downing smiled his thin lipped, sapient smile.

"That's all right," said he; "she ought to think so, and what the women don't know don't do 'em any harm. I'll say, too, he's been good to the family since he came up. He takes care of his folks. Even that bunch he threw down at the Flynn fight out at Murray will say that. And, believe me, the family had had it hard. Why, as I remember it, even the old lady worked downtown sometimes.

"And, anyway, Dempsey wasn't a booze fighter nor a particularly awful roughneck—just a big, good natured kid. No, not what you'd call a booze fighter ever. Sometimes he'd get his nose wet like all the rest of us and then maybe the fur would fly. But not a plug ugly."

An Opinion from Promoter.

"Was he liked by the crowd he trailed along with?"

"O, yes, well enough. He wasn't sulky. It never was Jack that disliked. We began even and we quit even, and he did me a good turn once. I'll tell you about it some time. But I never had any use for fighters personally nor for the kind, male or female, that they run with. The best of 'em will throw you when they think the time's come. Don't ever sign a contract with one of 'em in a state where boxing isn't legal for bouts in a state where it is legal. Your contract won't be worth the paper it's written on. And when they're ready they'll take advantage of the fact. I keep 'em all away from me except when it's strictly business between us. It saves me a lot of grief.

"The wonder is that Jack could be much superior to the crowd he was thrown with. He never had the benefits of environment. No home life in the real sense. No education."

"Sister Florence thinks he went as far as the eighth or ninth grade," I interjected.

Difference in Spelling.

Hardy smiled thinly again. "Maybe," he said, "but I went as far as that, and I know that Jack and I don't spell the same way."

"How about that story which they eat up in the east that he used to shine shoes here in Salt Lake?"

"Never did a day's work in Salt Lake that I know of. Certainly when I wanted him for fights nobody ever told me, 'O, he's working.'"

"What was his favorite amusement?"

"Cabarets. He fooled around them. Birds of a feather flock together, you know. That's the curse of the fight game."

"But how could he keep his health running with that gang?"

"Well, he was a kid then and got out of the life before it got him. When success came he'd learned enough to take care of himself."

A Box Car Passenger?

"And how about the stories that he was a kind of a box car bum?"

"O, I suppose that knocking around this part of the country maybe he'd steal a ride like any kid. He may have beat it to the coast from here a couple of times. Probably he did. But after he went east he never rode over or under—always on the cushions."

The last sentence is a fair example of Hardy Downing's pithiness, and after a few days in Salt Lake I used to follow him around to pick up more of them. It was with one of the precious specimens of language boiled down and packed together that Hardy disposed of the whole Maxine Cates davying and affidavying and reaffdavying, which many sporting men think is the original fount of all Dempsey's Legion trouble. He said he knew for a fact that Jack used to send her money when he was out fighting, but Hardy allowed that finally it was a case of a woman scorned—or a women caught—and then vengeance, and he put it this way: "Madame Maxine? O, I guess he slapped her on the nose—and she belched."

Code for the Unknowing.

Could anything be simplier or briefer, or tell more? "To belch" in sporting parlance, you must know, is "to squawk," "to squeal," "to inform," and in that world it is the unpardonable sin.

As to the yarn that Jack Dempsey might be Julius Shl...ky and a Levantine Jew, Hardy wouldn't bother to talk, his comment being merely—"Rot."

"Why," he added, "I got the boy's alibi from the old man himself. He told me all about him one day when I met him on the street and was buying him a drink—date of his birthday and all. Jack didn't amount to anything then, and I guess it was all true.

"By the way, not long ago the old man came into the cigar store where I sell tickets for my weekly fights, and, say, I didn't know him. 'Don't you know me?' he says. 'It's Dempsey.' Well, then, of course, I got him. It was the clothes that threw me off. Of course, he looked kind of comedy, but he was there with the clothes—derby hat and all. And he can have a ride back to West Virginia whenever he gives Jack the word. He's down there now, and the old lady with Jack in California. Maxine wasn't wise."

FOLLOWS STORIES OF "EYE WITNESS"

Chicago, Feb. 21.—[Sporting Editor Tribune.]—Is it possible there is no means by which these character assassins can be silenced? They hounded one real boxer and all around good fellow to death with the slacker weapon. They are now after Dempsey. Possibly these real fighters are easier to kill than to lick.

The writer does not know Jack Dempsey, but has followed the charges carefully without finding one iota of evidence to sustain the dirty charges of slacker. Having lost several cousins in action and with four nephews, three of whom left wife and young children, professions and business to enlist and serve at the front, surely I cannot be prejudiced in favor of Dempsey, but in the name of decency, if not fairness, let's take such proofs as 'Eye Witness" and demand that Dempsey be no further villified and persecuted.

VALGER TO HAVE CHANCE AT TITLE

New York, Feb. 21. — [Special.]—Benny Valger, French-American featherweight, will get a chance he has long sought when he engages Johnny Kilbane of Cleveland, featherweight champion, in an eight round bout at the Newark Sportsmen's club, Newark, N. J., Wednesday night. Valger has been camping on the trail of Kilbane for more than a year, hurling challenges at the title holder, and meantime eliminating other aspiring featherweights.

Under the terms of the forthcoming bout, Valger is compelled to weigh in at 124 pounds at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, while Kilbane will enter the ring at catch weights. Since 125 pounds is generally recognized throughout the world as the featherweight limit, a knockout victory for Valger would carry with it the championship. Critics declare that Kilbane has deteriorated to such an extent that he is ripe for a thrashing by a younger and more ambitious boxer. Kilbane's bout against Young Chaney of Baltimore several weeks ago served to strengthen this belief.

FIGHT BUGS CAN PACK THE VALISE FOR A BUSY WEEK

Bouts on 3 Nights Within Chicago Calling Radius.

BY RAY PEARSON.

Boxing fans of Chicago and this section of the country will have to show a bit of speed, if they expect to take full advantage of the carnival of scrapfests billed for this week.

Aurora starts the whirligig on Tuesday. Kenosha hops into the limelight on Wednesday, and on Thursday Milwaukee stages one of those international battles. That's three nights of battling in a row and it ought to satisfy the fans. But that isn't quite all, for downstate followers of the game will be treated to a ten rounder on Monday night at Beardstown, in which the performers will be Mike Dundee of Rock Island and Johnny Ritchie of Chicago.

Australian Champ to Box.

Considerable interest is being evinced in the show to be staged in Milwaukee, for President Otto Borchert of the Cream City A. C., who is "sweet" on these international battles, has carded for his windup a ten rounder between Richie Mitchell, champion of Milwaukee, and Lew Edwards, lightweight champion of Australia. Mitchell never was fighting better than at present, and this person Edwards is touted as a great fighter, a scrapper to whom decisions are not strange.

Tom Andrews, who brought Edwards to this country from Australia, thinks Edwards is good enough to battle any American lightweight, including Champion Benny Leonard, and Andrews is a good judge of fighting material.

O'Keefe Fights "Knockerout."

Kenosha promises to draw well from Chicago because Dennis O'Keefe of South Chicago is billed as a windup performer against Eddie Fitzsimmons, the hard clouting eastern lightweight. Fitzsimmons is a knockerout and will be favorite over O'Keefe, despite the fact Fitz will be forced to concede a few pounds in the weighing in. However, sentiment around Chicago as revealed yesterday indicated that O'Keefe's chances are considered almost as good as those of his opponent, and it is apparent there will be no lack of O'Keefe coin when the wagering point is reached.

Aurora makes its bid with a windup between Sailor Freedman and Jabber Young, a couple of lightweights. Young is one of the new ones, having come to the front in the last six months, and shows great promise of advancing.

MAXINE DEMPSEY'S RETRACTION

Photographic Reproduction of Affidavit Relating to Champion's War Record, Placed in Hands of Department of Justice Officials in Connection with Investigation of "Slacker" Charges.

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, ) SS.
COUNTY OF SAN FRANCISCO.

I, MAXINE DEMPSEY, formerly wife of WILLIAM HARRISON (JACK) DEMPSEY hereby willingly and voluntarily state on oath that Jack Dempsey is not a slacker and at no time did he try to avoid the draft for the war, by intimidating me, or otherwise. I voluntarily signed his Questionaire and with equal willingness signed his excemption when he sent it to me so that he could go to the war.

ON two different occasions I know to my own knowledge that Jack Dempsey tried to enlist in the military service of the United States and he talked with me about it and I begged him not to because he had his father, mother and me to support.

I further know that Jack Dempsey worked in the shipyards in Seattle as a shipbuilder.

I also know that Jack Dempsey came from New York City to San Francisco at his own expense for the purpose of fighting for the soldiers and sailors and brought me with him from Salt Lake to San Francisco and fought Willie Meehan to a decision and drew in the neighbourhood of $28,000,00 which was given to the soldiers and sailors.

IF I ever said Jack Dempsey was a slacker, or signed anything to that effect, I did so because I was jealous of Dempsey and had been made mad at the time by his enemies continually ripping me, and at all times during our married life, Jack Dempsey supported me to his very utmost ability as he did his old father and mother.

I have not any letters, nor any writings of any kind, nor have I ever had any, which was to the effect that he was trying to avoid the draft for the war.

I am very sorry and regret very much that I have said or done anything to injure or mar the reputation of Jack Dempsey.

Maxine Dempsey

FOR PLAYERS OF WHIST

by A. R. METCALFE

THE deuce! Symbol of insignificance, byword of ages, too low even to be scorned, next to nothing at all—nevertheless of immense importance and usefulness in a greater variety of forms than any card except the ace.

A beginner looks at sevens, eights, and nines for information and does not notice lower cards at all, but when he is able to dispense with swaddling clothes he learns that the lumbering sevens, eights, and nines have little informative value, the really useful cards being deuces and treys, but particularly deuces.

Below are given a few of the messages which the deuce carries to the partner of the player using them:

Against a no-trump declaration an original lead of a deuce indicates that the leader has exactly four cards in the suit led and no suit of more than four cards.

When a deuce is led to partner's declared suit the leader has no more and the partner knows every card held in that suit by the declarer.

When a player returns the deuce after winning a trick in his partner's suit he likewise shows no more and the partner knows all of the declarer's cards in that suit.

When a trump has been declared and a high card led, the play of the deuce indicates either a singleton or more than two; with two cards in suit the partner would echo.

Against a no-trump declaration when the third player contribute a deuce to his partner's lead it shows an original holding of not more than three cards in that suit; having more than three, the third player would play his third best and play up.

When a player's first discard is the deuce the partner is asked to protect that suit if possible. The player of the deuce shows absolute weakness, as he cannot be starting an echo. The lowest card of a suit carries the same meaning as does the deuce, provided the partner is able to identify it as the lowest card the player may hold.

The deal which follows shows a rubber thrown away and tossed back. How many who read this would have lost in either position?

West secured nine tricks.

The bid of two no-trump does not illustrate bad play, but failure to make the best play. It was probable with such tremendous strength that west could still make game at no-trump. He should have considered, however, that east would certainly make game at clubs. One hundred aces too often blinds a player to the more important task of winning game.

After the third trick the declarer should have given up the game as lost and played for two tricks in the diamond suit, to avoid defeat. But he still hoped that something might happen to give him game, and it did—something horrible on the part of the south player, who was still shackled by the childish superstition about eights and nines.

At trick three south should have discarded a diamond, informing his partner that his suit was spades. North would have led the king of spades, following with the ten, and west could have secured only six tricks. But south still used the kindergarten discard, and the eight of diamonds would have meant strength; therefore he discarded a heart, hoping that north would guess the right suit, which the latter failed to do.

West made his best play of the deal at trick five in putting up the ten of diamonds. South could not risk leaving dummy in to make two clubs, and was obliged to play the king. Even had south held the seven or eight of spades with which to indicate strength, keeping three diamonds would have given the declarer his contract.

A convention that compels players to lose rubbers is an absurdity. At clubs east would have secured a small slam without effort.

CUBA TO BUILD GILDED CASINO FOR RICH YANKS

Palace of Chance Planned for Winter Tourists.

HAVANA, Feb. 15.—[Special correspondence.]—Plans for developing the great Cuban Spa at the hot mineral springs, in the village of San Diego, some eighty miles south-west of the city of Havana, has been absolutely decided upon at a secret conference during the past twenty-four hours.

The million dollar hotel, the mammoth Casino and the marble baths all will be constructed, installed and ready for guests, before next December. Over 300 workmen will be on the scene next week. The work will go forward repidly as a Casino, now being built near Havana is being rushed to completion under electric lights every night.

Plans Are Guarded.

Details of the plans for this mammoth principality that is to be established in the foot hills of the famous Organos, as the mountain chain which divides the province of Pinar del Rio is called, are most closely guarded. It is known that there will be provided a vast private park and playground for those who seek to rest their nerves, restore their health, and enjoy recreation of all kinds within their own private domain.

It is known that a trio of men hold the plans in their possession and have the final word upon them. These are Dr. Torralbas, Señor Ignacio Montalvo, formerly secretary of the interior, and Clarence W. Gormly, an attorney of New York. The latter will act for the American interests in the undertaking and for the present direct the enterprise. Mr. Gormly has opened offices in the Banco Nacional here.

Discuss Brown's Retirement.

It is the concensus of opinion here among horsemen and the racing bugs that the retirement of "Curly" Brown has removed the last obstacle to bringing to Cuba some of the fleetest and best horses that travel the great circuit in the States.

ANGLING IN THE BAHAMAS.

LAST week we had a general review of angling in the West Indies, giving attention especially to the fishing to be found in Cuba. We have discovered that many northern tourists are being attracted to the Bahamas, which lie less than fifty miles off the coast of Florida, so we have prevailed upon "Sea Fisher" to give us a few more details on the fishing to be had in these sunny isles. Here is what he has to say:

"As to be expected, the fishes found in the Bahamas are either the same as those found on the Florida coast or closely related to them, the differences being of more interest to the scientist with his numerous subspecies than to the angler.

"The late Theodore Roosevelt, the strenuous, did not fancy ordinary angling and love best of all the rainbow trout fishing in our wild western rivers until he tried harpooning the devil fish. This furnished just the thrills his restless spirit craved.

"It is a wild sport, not without danger, and a common pastime in the Bahamas. When you drive your iron into the body of a giant devil fish, sawfish, whipray, or other monster you have merely 'started something,' as they say in Chicago. And if this is not thrilling enough you can anchor out the body of some dead animal for a lure and dive down with a knife in your jaws and stab the sharks to death!

"Speaking of sharks, they are gamey brutes in a way and the angler going to the Bahamas can take his surf casting tackle with him and get them by casting from shore. A big hammerhead shark will put up a great fight and he makes an impressive picture to send to the folks back home—if you land him.

"In my estimation one of the gamiest, if not the gamiest, of all fishes, is the wahoo, or peto. As stated in my previous article, he looks like a kingfish, but is a better fighter, which is saying much. Twenty-five pounds is a good average for these fish for hook and line fishing, and before such a one is landed it will feel as if it weighs a ton.

"I do not believe that I said enough last time about the gaminess of the bonefissh or the attractions of bonefish fishing. It is a surprise to the newcomer to see old timers spending their time trying to catch bonefish in these waters where finny monsters swarm. Truly, the bonefish is most insignificant looking in appearance, very much like a fresh water sucker, and not averaging over three pounds.

"But it requires skill to catch them. You can cast a spoon or fly for bonefish, or you can still fish for them with fiddler crab bait. Sometimes it is slow work, but those who know seem to count it profitable; one who has ever hooked one of these fish knows why. Fight? Speed? Why, they leap like a rainbow trout, and on light tackle have been known to take a thousand feet of line in two rushes! At some places they may be taken by casting with regular black bass tackle. They feed in the shallows, and are often seen with their tails sticking out of the water. The similar ten pounder is equally gamey.

"The amberjack of the West Indies and Florida is a near relative of the far-famed yellowtail of Catalina and like him is a fighter of great agility and strength. Built for speed, and averaging twenty-five pounds in weight, they are magnificent fish.

"They travel about in great schools and anglers have discovered a peculiar thing about them: as long as one is hooked the rest of the school will stay; the rule is to hook your fish and play him until your partner has one on. Following these tactics a pair of anglers can have plenty of thrilling sport whenever a school of feeding amberjacks is encountered; they strike at either live or cut bait.

"I think that the barracuda or picuda would be more appreciated if he were good to eat and not so common. Sometimes they are a nuisance when you are after other fishes, but there is no denying that they are good fighters. They are often likened to the muskellunge, because they are long and slim, but, as Fred Bradford Ellsworth remarks, they fight better than the muskie, as one can easily learn by catching them on muskellunge tackle. They run from twenty to seventy-five pounds and will take any kind of a bait that is kept moving.

"The most beautifully colored of all fishes, the dolphin, is taken in the Bahamas. It is not a large fish, as fishes go in this region, ranging from ten to twenty pounds, but fights well, much of the time in the air. Nobody could describe the dazzling beauty of this animated rainbow. It is taken by trolling with a spoon or live bait.

"Besides the peto there are other members of the gamey and finely flavored mackerel family in these waters and a host of small and medium sized fishes—bonito, squirrel fish, turbot, groupers, etc.

"Here, too, you will find the most marvelous leaper of them all, the tarpon, the handsome sailfish, and others that have been lauded and described in these columns and elsewhere. Whether you go to Florida or to the West Indies you will find many 'fish stories' true to life, for the amount of fish never fails to be a surprise, no matter what you expect."

A Custom-Built Hupmobile Town Car

The large demand in the East for custom-built bodies on a small chassis prompted us to have a few special bodies made up for the Hupmobile chassis.

We have just received several of these special bodies in a beautiful Town Car Model.

Designed by one of the best known body-builders in the country, they represent the highest art in coach work.

They are roomy, comfortable, beautifully upholstered; and so constructed that when they are mounted on the Hupmobile chassis the increased weight and consequent increased running expense common to many enclosed cars is strikingly eliminated.

The long life, noteworthy economy, satisfactory service, and conspicuous performance of the Hupmobile are too well known to require further emphasis.

These sturdy qualities are enhanced by the beautiful new Town Car body which we are now displaying.

We suggest an early call at our salesroom, since the number of these distinctive bodies is very limited.

Immediate delivery can be made to early purchasers.

CHICAGOANS PAY TRIBUTE TO NAME OF WASHINGTON

Clubs, Schools, Churches Join in Memorials.

Chicago began yesterday its three day celebration of the birthday anniversary of George Washington. The memory of Washington was honored with luncheons and patriotic meetings of various kinds.

In many churches today Washington will be the subject of sermons. Several thousand Poles are expected to attend the meeting at the Auditorium theater this afternoon. It will be held under the auspices of the Polish national committee, and is to be the first of a series held in various cities primarily to educate the Poles in America.

Harry Pratt Judson, president of the University of Chicago, will preside, and Frank Comerford, who returned recently from Poland, will speak.

Patriotic Massmeeting.

Tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock the annual patriotic massmeeting under the auspices of the Union League club will be held at the Auditorium theater. Congressman Simeon D. Fess of Ohio will be the speaker. The Union League club will have its own celebration tomorrow night, when Congressman Fess and Howard Leslie Smith of the University of Wisconsin will be the speakers.

Patriotic inspiration will be given out all this week. By official proclamation it is Loyalty week and Song week. All the school children will join in the observance.

Among the Celebrations.

Among the celebrations held yesterday were:

Girl Scouts' rally in Roosevelt hall, State-Lake building.

Luncheon of the Illinois society, Sons of the American Revolution, Morrison hotel.

Meeting of the American Unity club at the Hotel Sherman, addressed by former Senator James Hamilton Lewis.

At the celebration of Old Glory post, Grand Army of the Republic, at 3 p. m. today, at the Masonic temple, Dr. B. J. Cigrand will speak. Memorial and George Washington exercises will be held at 3 p. m. by the Evanston post of the American Legion, in the First Methodist church, Evanston.

POLES TO STIR PUBLIC TO PERIL OF BOLSHEVISM

The first of a series of massmeetings throughout the country to arouse the public to the menace of bolshevism will be held at the Auditorium theater this afternoon under the auspices of the Polish National committee.

President Harry Pratt Judson of the University of Chicago will preside and the address of the day will be made by Frank Comerford, lawyer and writer, who recently returned from a six months' study of the social and political upheaval in Europe, particularly in Russia.

According to N. L. Piotrowski of Chicago, vice president of the Polish national committee, the movement is strictly an American one, although those of Polish descent are particularly interested because they regard Poland as the first line of defense against the bolshevism of Russia. It is the frontier of western Europe and of America against the terrorism of Lenin and Trotsky.

Following the meeting in this city, other demonstrations will be held in Carnegie hall, New York City; the Liberty hut in Washington, and in Philadelphia, Boston, Buffalo, Cleveland, Detroit, Milwaukee, St. Paul, Minneapolis, and Omaha, and on the Pacific coast.

Stuke was named by Taylor as an accomplice. He will come up for arraignment Tuesday in South Clark street court.

No further arrests at the present time are contemplated, Lieut. Loftus said.

Man Struck by Street Car Dies at Hospital

Herman Wagner, 35 years old, a clerk, of 6448 Parnell avenue, died in the Chicago State Hospital for the Insane yesterday, supposedly of injuries suffered in the early part of January when he was struck by a street car at Cottage Grove avenue and Forty-seventh street. Dr. Charles F. Read, superintendent of the hospital, said he did not believe that death was due directly to the accident, but rather to an organic disease of the brain which set in.

The Oakland Now a Larger Six of Brute Strength, Basic Economy

The Oakland model 34-C, now on exhibition at the showrooms listed below, represents a reversal of the quite general policy of reducing the size of automobiles—it is a larger Sensible Six.

Oakland's development of Oakland's original engineering principles, during the three war years, has made it possible to retain the complete Sensible Six economy of ownership, operation and maintenance in this car swung over a longer wheelbase.

The longer wheelbase delightfully accentuates all those features of Oakland performance which have placed it on equality with very high-priced cars—its high ratio of power to car weight, its easy handling, its easy riding, its locomotive-like steadiness on the road.

Brute strength for hard daily service is supplied by a deeper frame with heavier cross members, longer, heavier front springs, a heavier front axle, a very strong brake rod assembly, and some thirty additional advancements—yet this model 34-C, still scientifically light in total weight, runs 18 to 25 miles on a gallon of gasoline and 8,000 to 12,000 miles on tires.

The Larger Four-Door Sedan and the Coupe

The longer wheelbase and powerful chassis of model 34-C now are added to the roominess, convenience and stability of these Oakland closed cars, built to deliver the utmost in comfortable, efficient transportation at the minimum of cost.

Check Them All Up and See

There can be no possible question in anybody's mind about the quality and performance of Moon cars. To merely state the units which enter into their construction is all that is needed. Fedders Radiator, Timken Axles and Bearings, Parish & Bingham frame, Red Seal Continental Motor, Delco Three-Unit Starting, Lighting and Ignition System, Borg & Beck Clutch, Brown-Lipe Transmission, Spicer Universals—you know these units. You know they each represent admittedly the best America has produced. You know you will find the same identical members, in whole or in part, in cars selling at twice Moon prices. For Moon cars are priced within the bounds of reason.

Moon bodies represent the latest thought of the best custom coach builders. Beautiful as they are, they are also as honest as the Moon chassis. The upholstering is of genuine Spanish leather. The top is genuine Never-Leak, specially tailored. Plate glass panels in the rear curtain, of course. The storm curtains open with the doors.

We believe that Moon cars give you a value in quality of material, performance and in price which can not be duplicated in this city. We ask only this—that you check up all cars unit by unit, value for value, and let your cool judgment tell you which car to buy after you have examined them all.

The answer, we are very sure, will be M-O-O-N.

L. HARMON, ONCE NOTED ATTORNEY, SENT TO ASYLUM

Caught After Flight from Court Hearing.

When Adolph Luetgert, the "sausage magnate," was convicted after two trials and sent to prison at Joliet for the murder of his wife, Louisa L., one of his lawyers was Lawrence Harmon. That was in 1898. Yesterday Mr. Harmon was committed to the state asylum for the insane at Kankakee. He is 75 years old and was a legal bright light in his day.

Mr. Harmon, possibly remembering the spectacular subterfuges employed by Frank Collier, celebrated in his day as a corporation lawyer, and himself involved in an insane court, yesterday resorted to the writ of habeas corpus to give him relief from confinement in an insane asylum.

Flees From Custody.

The complaint filed with the county court against Attorney Harmon was signed by Dr. William O. Krohn. General dementia was the basis. But, Mr. Harmon, is legal instinct uppermost, made an objection and said to Judge Henry Horner that he preferred a jury trial before the county judge instead of a hearing at the county psychopathic hospital. The case therefore transferred to the county building and Mr. Harmon was taken there.

At the Clark street entrance he bolted. In the crowd he was lost. Two hours later he was reported as under arrest at the Summerdale police station. He was delivered there because he had not paid his fare to a street car conductor. He was restored to his custodians.

Luetgert Case Recalled.

Luetgert, on trial for the murder of his wife, pitted Harmon against Former Governor Deneen, Willard S. McEwen and other notable prosecutors in vain.

NEW PAY CHECKS HAILED AS OIL ON SCHOOL SEAS

Officials of the board of education hope to quiet the bubbling rebellion in the ranks of the school teachers with the sight of a monthly pay check considerably larger than the last. Despite a huge amount of additional clerical work caused by figuring salaries on the new schedule, the teachers will be paid on March 5. The office of the secretary of the board is working overtime to get the pay roll out.

"When the teachers see their new checks," said Supt. Peter A. Mortenson, "I believe all the apparent dissatisfaction will be dispersed. It seems to me most of the complaints, while just, are of a minor character, and I believe they can be cleared up.

"We probably shall find some satisfactory way of settling the inequalities, which were largely due to our desire to hurry through the new schedules. The teachers are given a substantial increase and there can be no influence more quieting than the sight of the pay check."

According to Margaret Haley of the Chicago Teachers' federation, the teachers are still in a fighting mood. Preparations are being made to collect a "war fund."

U. S. SHOULD BAR TRANSIENT ALIEN, MARSHALL SAYS

Banquet to Memory of Pilgrim Fathers.

New York, Feb. 21.—Aliens who come to America "not intending to make permanent homes, but expecting to return, should not be received," Vice President Marshall said here tonight at a dinner given by the Sulgrave Institution in celebration of the tercentenary of the Pilgrim Fathers. This country, he added, should no longer "be loved for its opportunities alone," but should "be loved for its institutions as well."

Mr. Marshall, Ronald C. Lindsay, counselor to the British embassy and chargé d'affaires, and Dr. H. De Beaufort, counselor of the Netherlands legation, were guests of honor.

Came to Stay Here.

One of the lessons of the Pilgrim Fathers that should be "stamped upon the heart of every liberty-loving American," Mr. Marshall said, is that they came to Plymouth "to worship God and to make homes, determined never to return to Europe."

"These Pilgrims were English-speaking people," he continued, "and from their forgotten graves they ought never to stretch forth their hands and touch the sleeve of an American elector who does not speak the English language.

"Education is good and needful for the American. New comers should be required to learn our language that they may understand our institutions. If atheists, homeless wanderers, and fortune seekers had been kept without our doors, one of the great lessons of the Puritan would have been learned, and American institutions would now be backed up by a citizenship more cohesive than ours.

The Free Speech Peril.

"In these troublous times, when freedom of speech is being used for the purpose of forcibly undermining the government, it is well to remember that the government of the fathers is unfit to survive if it is powerless to prevent unlawful assaults upon its authority."

America is in debt to Holland "in no small degree for the principles of freedom brought by the Dutch settlers, and the Pilgrim fathers, Dr. De Beaufort declared.

In making an appeal for stronger Anglo-American relations Mr. Lindsay asked that the younger American generations be taught to forget George III. and Lord North and to remember those Englishmen who had "sympathized with the cause of liberty."

"I am always struck by the keen interest America takes in the doings of the British empire," he added, "and England's critics seem to me to make quite a considerable noise. I should never think of quarreling with fair criticism, and in the government of the British dominions and colonies plenty of mistakes are made, just as from reading American newspapers I am compelled to suspect that mistakes are sometimes made in the government of America."

Handbill Causes $50,000 Suit Against Ald. Bauler

The praecipe in a $50,000 damage suit was filed yesterday by Attorney Myer J. Stein on behalf of Leo C. Klein against Ald. John H. Bauler.

According to the attorney, Klein is a candidate for alderman in the Twenty-second ward and is opposed by Bauler. Bauler is alleged to have circulated a hand bill, upon which his signature appears, charging Klein is in possession of a stolen automobile. One Patrick Gary, said to be a former bartender for Klein, is named in the hand bill as the alleged thief. Gary also is said to be evading the police on a charge of burglary.

The bill is alleged to have resulted in great damage to Klein's political career.

This flame heats your house automatically and leaves no ashes, soot or odor

Now you may rid yourself of coal and all the work and mess it makes.

Nokol, the simple automatic oil burner, can be installed in any modern type of furnace after merely removing its grates.

Burning kerosene, or other good fuel oils, it delivers uniform heat automatically and leaves no ashes, soot, smoke or grime.

Nokol tends itself

After the fuel tank is filled your one job is to set the thermostat at the house temperature you want maintained, and Nokol will automatically maintain it.

If the room temperature goes above the pre-determined point, Nokol automatically stops heating. If the room temperature drops, Nokol immediately sets to work and brings it up to normal instantly.

Thus Nokol burns fuel only when heat is needed—an economy indeed.

The instant process

Such instant automatic action is made possible by atomizing—Nokol's method of instantly producing, within the combustion chamber, a fine, cool spray of oil which, when ignited by an ever-active pilot light, burns instantly at maximum efficiency in the form of a white hot, sootless flame.

Produced thus instantly, the Nokol flame delivers heat the very moment it's wanted.

Saves the draperies

Coal dust and gases yearly ruin many draperies, upholsteries, gowns, etc.—thousands of dollars worth.

Nokol ends this waste; first it guarantees a warm house—then a clean house. It leaves no dirt of any kind. Even its fuel is stored in a clean, compact tank—an age ahead of a dirty coal bin.

And note this: Nokol averages 100 gallons of oil to get the same results that a ton of best hard coal produces.

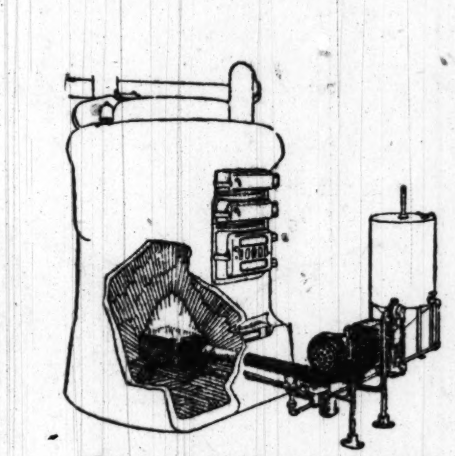
Approved by fire underwriters

On the National Board of Fire Underwriters' list of approved appliances, Nokol is the one ideal device to insure you even, dependable heat without labor or dirt.

See Nokol in operation

Learn the joy and luxury of a furnace that needs no attention. See Nokol demonstrated at your nearest dealer, or if there is no dealer in your territory, write for further data.

Owing to the remarkable demand for Nokol we urge placing orders as quickly as possible. Nokol's price complete, without storage tank, is $325 f.o.b. Chicago.



Nokol installed in steam heating plant

WOMAN BATTLES WOMAN AS THIEF IN LOOP STORE

Bureau Bares Record of the One Held.

A woman weighing 200 pounds elbowed her way frantically among belated shoppers in Woolworth's 5 and 10 cent store at Monroe and State streets a few minutes before closing time last night. Clinging to her was a woman half her size.

"You can't go away! Give me my money! You robbed me!" the smaller woman was shrieking.

Small but Game.

Down the aisle they fought. Although outweighed, the smaller woman clung valiantly to the other. No one offered to come to her assistance until Detective Sergeants Thomas O'Hare and Frank Zink ran into the store. A man was seen to hustle away from the crowd, and the fat woman dropped $9 in bills on the floor.

Both women and the $9 were taken to the detective bureau. The smaller woman was Miss Ruth Page of the Clarendon Beach hotel. The other gave the name of Mrs. Margaret Marvin, 1718 South Morgan street.

Charges $39 Theft.

"She took a $10 and a $20 bill besides that $9," said Miss Page. Mrs. Marvin's purse was found to contain $68. She pleaded to be allowed to go home to her three children. A man called the bureau on the phone, asked if Mrs. Marvin was arrested, said he was her husband, and promised to come right over.

Miss Page was on the point of withdrawing her charge when the police became suspicious because of the failure of "Mr. Marvin" to appear. They took Mrs. Marvin to the bureau of identification and there picked out her photograph under the name of "Agnes Regal," arrested July 21, 1915, for picking pockets and sentenced to six months in the bridewell by Judge Caverly.

George Bernard Shaw's "How He Lied to Her Husband," Alfred Kreymborg's "Lima Beans," and August Strindberg's "Pariah" were attractively presented last night at the Arts club before a society audience that literally packed the club.

Mrs. Marshall Field, as the "lead" in the first play, scored a decided success.

Phyllis Fay Horton and Carlin Crandall appeared in "Lima Beans" and Paul Bartlett and George F. Wolff took part in "Pariah."

BONDSMEN AND WOMAN HELD ON FRAUD CHARGE

Professional bondsmen of Chicago were issued another pointed warning to keep away from federal courts yesterday with the arrest of two well known professionals and a woman said to be the go-between in their alleged perjury conspiracy.

The men, Adam Lewicky and Anton Czsna, were held to the grand jury under $5,000 bonds each when United States Commissioner Lewis F. Mason was advised that they had induced Rose Norwaycz, alias Norwick, 4400 South Honoré avenue, to swear falsely to property she scheduled for their client, Joseph Elchuch. The woman was held as a witness after government investigators charged her with accepting $30 for her work in the bond deal.

Thomas J. O'Brien, federal expert of District Attorney Clyne, caught the bond when word reached him that Lewicky had been bragging of having "slipped one over on the government." He investigated the Norwick property, scheduled as free and encumbered, and found a mortgage against it. Warrants were immediately sworn out for the alleged conspirators, and they found themselves in federal cells.

SHORTHAND MEN GIVE DINNER TO THEIR WAR HEROES

For fifty years shorthand reporters have been listening to Chicago talk without a comeback. Last night at the Brownleigh club they had a chance to talk at a dinner given to their returned army veterans.

Among the reporters present were James Abbott, toastmaster, who has been in active work in and around Chicago for forty-six years, and who covered the trials and executions of the Haymarket anarchists; Fred Carlson, one of the four shorthand artists at the Versailles peace conference, and George Russell Leonard, who for years has covered political conventions for the Associated Press and other news-gathering organizations.

An "inside" story of the peace councils in Europe was given by Mr. Carlson, while other overseas veterans told of the Argonne and Meuse campaigns.

Nearly every veteran present urged the members to use every effort toward the cause of universal military training.

WOMAN AND MAN IN HONOR ROLL CONCERN SEIZED

Miss Florence Curtis, 50 years old, of 812 Leland avenue, surrendered herself in the South Clark street court yesterday when she learned detectives were seeking her on a warrant charging confidence game.

Charles A. De Bolt, a farmer of Washington, Ill., charges he invested $1,000 through Miss Curtis with the National Honor Roll company. E. A. Anderson, already under arrest, and C. W. Whiting, for whom the police are searching, represented themselves as organizers of the company, according to Attorney Frank Farnum, representing De Bolt. The scheme proposed organization of a company to sell permanent honor rolls to be installed in the homes of service men.

De Bolt became anxious when he failed to hear from the organizers for a month. Attorney Farnum swore out the warrants for the three.

When detectives called at 812 Leland avenue several days ago they were told Miss Curtis was out of the city, but would appear at the time of the trial.

The hearing was continued until Feb. 25 by Judge Hugh R. Stewart. Miss Curtis was released on $2,500 bonds.

75 MILLIONS FOR REPAIRS IF SHIP SALE IS BLOCKED

Payne Reminds Congress of Appropriation.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 21.—Congress will have to appropriate funds for reconditioning the thirty former German liners which the shipping board has been trying to sell, Chairman Payne said today, if the controversy which has arisen over the proposed sale of the vessels results in legislation requiring their repair and operation by the government.

The chairman estimated that $75,000,000 would be needed to refit the vessels, which have been in transport service.

Senate Asked to Postpone Sale.

Chairman Jones of the senate commerce committee reported favorably today the bill postponing sale of the ships until congress has adopted permanent merchant marine legislation.

"These ships are urgently needed in our foreign business," the committee said.

Consideration of the bill will be asked next week, Senator Jones announced, after the senators have had time to study the suggested international agreement regarding German shipping sent to the senate yesterday by the president.

Senator Brandegee of Connecticut, in response to whose resolution the tentative agreement was sent in by the president, declared it bore out the information on which he had acted in asking the senate to act. Despite Mr. Wilson's denial that no agreement existed for disposition of the ships Senator Brandegee said the tentative agreement submitted directly affected the question before the senate.

Not in House Appropriations.

In estimating that the reconditioning of the passenger steamers would cost $75,000,000, officials of the shipping board said that sum would not be available from the board's funds because the 1920 estimate of $165,000,000 submitted to the house appropriations committee was withdrawn at the request of the chairman. As the final estimate of the board's financial requirements for the coming year did not include the possibility of refitting the German liners the expense would have to be met by congress, it was said.

Expect Legal Ban to Be Lifted.

Confidence that the board will ultimately be permitted to dispose of the craft was expressed by officials. An early appeal on the temporary injunction granted William Randolph Hearst prohibiting the sale is expected to result in a lifting of the legal ban, and careful congressional investigation will result in approval of the board's plans, they believe.

The District Supreme court announced that Mr. Hearst would be required to give $10,000 bond to safeguard the shipping from loss while the question is pending.

Imperator Starts Voyage Under British Flag Today

LIVERPOOL, Feb. 21.—The former German liner Imperator will leave for New York tomorrow on its first voyage in the British Atlantic service, with 1,500 passengers. Space devoted to fourth class passenger accommodations when the vessel was in the German service will be used for cargo.

JACK JOHNSON ON WAY TO JAIL IN TEXAS, REPORT

District Attorney C. F. Clyne was notified yesterday that Jack Johnson, fugitive heavyweight champion, is on his way to Laredo, Tex., to feel out the power of the federal courts.

Johnson wrote the prosecutor from his sanctuary in Mexico City some time ago, pleading for a chance to return to the United States and forty-eight hours of grace after his arrival in which to secure attorneys and bondsmen to fight the penitentiary sentence hanging over him. He is under conviction for violating the Mann white slave act.

"Johnson is welcome to cross the line into the United States," said Mr. Clyne, "but he will be jailed the moment he reaches Laredo, and he will have to serve his penitentiary sentence of a year and a day.

"If Johnson thinks he can come in and make arrangements to meet Dempsey without federal interference, he is badly mistaken. We have been given to understand that this is his plan in returning home."

Winning the War on Destructive Diseases

How the Public Health Institute, Backed by Public Spirited Citizens of Chicago in the Interests of Increased Efficiency, and Equipped with Every Known Facility for the Prevention and Cure of Venereal Diseases, is Working Systematically for "A Clean U. S. A."—All That Is Best in Medicine, Applied with Great Success by the Government During the War, Now Assures Positive Results in the Treatment of These Afflictions.

Public Co-Operation Is Earnestly Invited

One of the most insidious and dangerous enemies of personal and business efficiency in the world today is the widespread prevalence of Veneral Diseases. And one of the greatest benefits growing out of the war is the positive proof that these malignant plagues CAN BE PREVENTED AND CURED.

Our Government early took the initiative in openly fighting the twin evils of Gonorrhea and Syphilis. As a stern measure of military efficiency, relentless war was waged against these so-called Venereal Diseases with extraordinary results. The Medical Staff of the Army, reinforced by the most eminent physicians and surgeons in the country, who entered the service as volunteers, patriotically pooled their experience and vast scientific resources for the protection of our "boys in service."

Venereal Diseases Reduced From Over 35% to Less Than 2%

As a result of this wonderful "team work" of America's greatest medical talent, the American Expeditionary Force was the cleanest army—the cleanest group of men ever known in the World's history; the freest from the Scourge of Venereal Diseases.

Statistics tell the story! The official record proves that more than five-sixths of the venereal cases treated in our Army were brought in from civil life. It was found that Gonorrhea and Syphilis (with their kindred ailments) ran higher than 35% among draft groups of civilians entering the service and that this large percentage was reduced by the treatment of the Army Medical Staff to LESS than two (2%) per cent!

A Serious Menace to Business Efficiency

But Venereal Disease is not primarily a military problem nor a war-time epidemic. It is essentially and in the most practical sense a daily problem of BUSINESS EFFICIENCY—of personal fitness to "carry on" the necessary work of our country and to protect the health of every community.

The Army draft disclosed for the first time in a systematic and official way, the horrifying fact that in every community in our country there is ceaselessly going on an UNTOLD WASTE of manhood, womanhood and childhood caused by the malignant ravages of these diseases.

Being highly infectious, they have entered homes and marriage relations. Women and children, not knowing the cause, have suffered from them for generations. Innocent young wives, previously healthy, have been mutilated by necessary surgical operations, some have been made invalids, many have remained childless, and others have lost life itself. Babies have been born dead or defective, others have become blind a few hours after birth. And this is in addition to the thousands of men who, THINKING THEY WERE CURED have been visited years later by sterility, paralysis and insanity.

Frightful Waste in Civil Life

The newspapers do not display the casualty lists of the dead from these arch-ravagers, Gonorrhea and Syphilis and their complications. But the casualties are there, hidden among the death notices, and many unrecorded victims, destroyed before birth or dead at birth. The victims fill our institutions for the insane, the blind, and helpless.

These are real casualties; people dead, minds destroyed—not heroic victims adorned with gold chevrons, but victims as innocent as the refugees of France and Belgium. According to a statement made in Pamphlet 42 issued by the U. S. Public Health Service, IN OUR HOMES, HOSPITALS AND PUBLIC INSTITUTIONS FOR THE YEAR ENDING DECEMBER 31, 1919, THERE WERE MORE INJURED AND KILLED FROM VENEREAL DISEASES THAN THE UNITED STATES LOST DURING THE ENTIRE WAR IN FRANCE!

Prominent Chicago Men Leading This New Crusade

To check this fearful waste of human material, and to carry on the work of eradicating Venereal Disease, the Public Health Institute has been organized and equipped by some of Chicago's most prominent public spirited men, whose names appear below, actuated by the highest civic motives in the interests of the public health and increased business efficiency by placing within the reach of the large number of victims of these diseases a POSITIVE CURE at the LOWEST COST.

Lowest Possible Fees—But Not a "Charity" Enterprise

While the PUBLIC HEALTH INSTITUTE is not operated as a charitable project, the object is to maintain it on a self-sustaining basis with the LOWEST POSSIBLE schedule of prices consistent with the highest standard of medical efficiency in the treatment and care of all forms of these diseases.

All patients who take this treatment may rest assured not only that they are receiving the most advanced and thoroughly demonstrated cure for Gonorrhea and Syphilis that the world of medical science can offer—the same marvelously successful method that reduced the percentage of Venereal Disease from over 35% to 2% among our troops during the war—but also that they are getting the treatment at PRACTICALLY COST.

Complete Equipment —Laboratory Service Free

The Public Health Institute is completely equipped with the very latest scientific facilities for the cure of Venereal Diseases and their resultant complications. Specially trained staff handles each case with the expert knowledge and sympathetic consideration that win the patients' respect and complete confidence.

An important item in considering the diagnosis and proper care of patients and what the treatment will cost is LABORATORY SERVICE. We have to depend upon it absolutely for the making and corroboration of our diagnosis. This service as produced elsewhere costs the patient considerable, and often prevents his taking treatment or interferes with complete service. Our laboratory facilities are at the command of the patient without extra charge. Any one who has to pay a laboratory fee will realize the substantial character of this saving.

Progress Assured From Very First Treatment

A cure is assured to all who faithfully follow our advice. The very first treatment helps to arrest the disease and from then on it is simply a matter of gradual but SURE eradication. The moment that you come here and decide to let us assume your burdens, you will experience a feeling of intense and grateful relief, because you will clearly realize that you are in safe hands and that your restoration to health and happiness is assured.

Choose Your Own Time For Treatments

This Institution with its wonderful resources is at your disposal, when you are ready. We arrange treatments to suit your convenience—at whatever hour you can best spare the time. There is no delay—no waiting—no crowds of people ahead of you. We have a sufficient number of treatment rooms and facilities to take prompt care of every case, and to insure the strictest privacy to every patient.

Don't Delay—Call At Once For Full Details

If you are suffering from any acute or chronic Venereal Disease in any form you should ACT INSTANTLY to arrest the ravages of this malignant destroyer. DELAY IS DANGEROUS! It may mean a LOSING RACE with insanity, paralysis, blindness or worse.

We invite personal inquiry from all suffering from these diseases, and from those who are interested in learning full particulars of this New Crusade against this malignant foe of public health and business efficiency. Call here for complete information; or write for the facts.

VLADIVOSTOK, Feb. 9, via ship at sea, Feb. 20.—The warm heart of the great Siberian revolution beat true here yesterday as I rode into Vladivostok in the first armored train to enter the city with partisan troops from Nikolsk. The pulse of Siberia beats here to a refrain like this:

"We are the real Russians, and this is our revolution. We are not bolshivikian, and are fighting for freedom and what we believe to be right. Soviet is a magic word to us, for in it we see land and freedom. We don't know anything about communism, and Lenin is only a name—all we want is peace and the right to rule ourselves."

Talk of Homes, Babies.

Homesick farmer boys here were telling me of their wives and babies at home and how many months it had been since they had seen them. First they were a little shy, but after a few minutes they talked freely and honestly.

Suddenly the conversation shifted to Americans, and everybody tried to tell what they thought of us.

"American soldiers understand us," one elder peasant explained. "These men are like us. They have big hearts like the Russians. Last summer when there would be fighting the Americans kept our wounded and cared for them in the hospital.

"Americans Tender Hearted."

"The American is tender hearted. Last summer at Sviagino, when you captured two partisans and when one got scared and tried to escape and an American guard had to shoot him, your soldiers were so sorry they raised $110, and the money was sent to his wife."

Our armored train became bumpy. At this point our dashing young commander lifted a trap door in the bottom of the car and crawled out into the night. For a number of minutes we waited. Then the trap door opened and the young chief stepped in.

"Every man to his post! The naval cadets have three inch pieces and are going to fire on us. Keep the flares at your places going. The range is 800 yards. Keep cool and remember we are fighting for Russia."

There were several minutes of tense silence. We all knew this car would have small chance against a three inch high explosive. Vladivostok had not fallen as yet, and here we were fifty miles westward, pushing our way through what was supposed to be enemy country.

Good News at Last.

Suddenly the trap door opened, and a fur capped head was thrust up.

"It's all right—they have come over to our side. They are singing the Marseillaise."

The next morning when we were approaching the hills of Vladivostok I asked the men if they were going to kill many Kolchak officers after the town was captured. They all shook their heads.

"We want no more bloodshed," one spoke up. "There are enough Russians killed. We have gone through five years and a half of war, revolutions, misery, suffering. We know what execution is, but we don't want to punish even those who have been harming us. We want to show the rest of Russia and the whole world that we can pay back good for evil. After all, Russia needs them, and we want to make them good, human beings, willing to work for their mother land."

He was only a common soldier talking. That was thirty-six hours ago, and now Vladivostok has fallen. Tonight it rests peacefully in just such hands as his. And it is safe.

HIS MEMOIRS SHOW GALLIENI HERO OF MARNE

Ignored Joffre Order Not to Engage Von Kluck.

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

[By Special Cable.]

[Copyright: 1920: By the Tribune Company.]

PARIS, Feb. 21.—That Gen. Gallieni is the real hero of the first battle of the Marne and not Marshal Joffre is the claim made by Victor Marguerite who is publishing Gen. Gallieni's letters and memoirs. Following is an extract of a letter from the general to Deputy Cazeneuve given as indisputable proof that "our army of Paris hes been able to strike a hard blow at the proper place when it was necessary, despite orders to the contrary which I disregarded."

Under date of Sept. 2, 1914, Joffre sent a message to Gen. French commanding the British; Millerand, then French war minister, and Gen. Gallieni, then military governor of Paris:

"It is impossible to consider at this time any large maneuver or operation against the Marne with all our forces."

Marshal Joffre then intended to sacrifice Paris.

Army in Taxicabs.

But Gen. Gallieni disregarded these orders and, commandeering all the automobiles and taxicabs of Paris, filled the machines with the troops forming the Paris garrison. Placing Gen. Manoury in command, he rushed the army to the Ourcq, where it hurled itself on Von Kluck's exposed right flank and crumpled it, causing the German retreat to the Aisne.

On Sept. 7, 1914, after the Marne victory, Marshal Joffre is said to have sent the following mesage to Gen. Gallieni: "I request you not to provide the government with any information regarding army operations."

On Sept. 8, Gen. Gallieni wrote M. Millerand, the war minister: "Joffre warned me not to communicate any information regarding military operations to the government or press. It is thus confidentially that I give you the following information."

A Costly Failure.

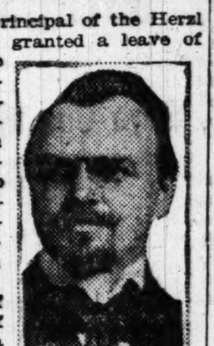
The general order issued by Marshal Joffre from general headquarters for the ill-fated offensive of Dec. 17, 1914, has just been made public.

Little has ever been written of the costly failure in which Joffre hoped to break through and win the war before the end of 1914, and the official communiques issued by the French and British never made any mention of it. The German communique issued by wireless told of heavy bombardments and attacks along the line, but attached no special significance to the blows, which everywhere met with failure.

Curiously enough, it was in this operation that Joffre hoped, at least, to eliminate the Saint Mihiel salient, which thrust out, like a hernia, in the allied lines, until Sept, 1918, when Gen. Pershing and the American army reduced it.

CHICAGO MAN TO REORGANIZE CZECH SCHOOLS

J. J. Zmrhal, principal of the Herzl school, has been granted a leave of absence by the board of education to help reorganize the educational system of Czecho-Slovakia. He will go to the new republic as a representative of the National Education association.



J. J. ZMRHAL.

The minister of education of Czecho-Slovakia requested the government at Washington to lend Mr. Zmhral's services. He expects to be gone about seven months, and will take exhibits of the work of Chicago school children as models for the children of Czecho-Slovakia.

Dr. Adolph Mach, who has accepted the chair of dentistry in the University of Ratislow, will accompany Mr. Zmrhal.

JULIA LATHROP TO AID CZECHS IN CHILD WELFARE

Washington, D. C., Feb. 21.—At the formal request of the Czecho-Slovakian government Miss Julia Lathrop of Chicago, head of the national child bureau, will sail for Prague March 6 to aid the new European republic in matters pertaining to child welfare work. Miss Lathrop will be accompanied by her sister, Mrs. Almon G. Case of Rockford, Ill. They will return by July 1. The formal invitation was brought by Jan Masaryk, counselor of legation and chargé d'affaires of Czecho-Slovakia. It was approved by both the department of labor and the state department. Dr. Masaryk went to the University of Chicago as exchange professor about ten years ago at the request of Charles R. Crane.

DULUTH WOMAN SLAYS HUSBAND.

Duluth, Minn., Feb. 21.—George L. Arnold, 48 years old, a shipyards employe, was shot to death by his wife in the bedroom of their home this morning.

Bird-Sykes and the PAIGE

The Most Beautiful Car in America

1912 — 1920

There are times when it is profitable to look back as well as to look forward. A backward glance, frequently, can illuminate the present and clarify the future.

It is now eight years since we assumed the obligation and privilege of merchandising Paige cars in Chicago and adjacent territory. Those eight years have witnessed the establishment of a Good Will for the Paige product which can not be excelled anywhere in the industry.

It is, indeed, a source of the greatest gratification to us to find ourselves and the product we represent surrounded by a body of active, enthusiastic friends constantly increasing in numbers. This Friendly Spirit is today our greatest asset.

Justifiable Pride

We believe our pride in this achievement is natural and justifiable, for in these eight years we have done nothing less than to establish the Paige as the dominant car of the day—the first choice of the discriminating buyer. One needs but look about for the visible evidence of this fact

In the history of these eight years—in the present abundant Paige Good Will—lies the evidence that our confidence in the Paige product was based on sound judgment of values. Therein also lie the facts that put the seal of approval on our business policy—particularly on our insistence that Service shall always spell Satisfaction.

The Promises of 1920

The year 1920 finds us confronted with the greatest demand for Paige cars in all our history. We regret that we have not always been able to make prompt deliveries; but we can assure the loyal and patient Paige public that the great new factory in Detroit, now rapidly nearing completion, will soon permit a double production.

And for our Paige public we have a special message of our own. To meet the needs of our rapidly expanding business and to enable us to maintain our ideals of service we have taken steps to increase our facilities by 100 per cent.

Most Complete Plant in Chicago

We are building an addition to our plant which will give us, in all, 150,000 square feet of space—one of the largest establishments in the nation for a single line of cars.

To make the best use of all this additional space there will be a rearrangement of all departments—sales, service and shops. We shall then have the most complete plant in Chicago.

There will be nothing more beautiful, nothing more effectively and conveniently arranged than our enlarged showrooms with their 112 feet of frontage on Michigan avenue.

Facilities for Special Jobs

The enlargement and rearrangement of our machine shops, paint shops, blacksmith, trim and upholstery departments will give us the most complete facilities in the city—not only for the rebuilding or overhauling of cars, but for the execution of special custom work.

For several years we have been specialists in the latter field and some of the most distinctive creations ever seen on Chicago streets have come from our own shops. Paige mechanics, it is conceded, cannot be improved upon, but where an altogether personal vehicle is desired our custom department is ready to plan and produce it.

No other single organization can boast of facilities sufficient to undertake the execution of such commissions entirely within its own plant.

Thus we are always striving to keep our own organization worthy in every respect of the great product it represents and of the abundant Good Will that product has justly earned.

As in the Past—So Always

And as the Paige progresses so will we progress—moving forward with it shoulder to shoulder, the Paige ideals our ideals.

Nineteen hundred and twelve found us ready, and 1920, great as the year promises to be, will find us well prepared to meet every demand that the growing prestige of the Paige can make.

DAVID OF CON CON DIDN'T KNOW HIS GUN WAS LOADED

Had No Intention, He Says, of Harming Chicago.

BY OSCAR E. HEWITT.

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 21.—[Special.]—Friends of "the delegate from Mascoutah," Herbert F. Lill, insist that he meant no harm in asking the constitutional convention to adopt a proposal which will make consolidation of local governments in Cook county exceedingly difficult, if not impossible.

But another delegate, Lewis A. Jarmin of Rushville, who presented ideas similar, was quick to inform THE TRIBUNE that he referred only to downstate counties and would make it a matter of record with another proposal if his oral explanation is not satisfactory.

It is hard to understand why any downstate representative, especially "the delegate from Mascoutah," should present a proposal which might interfere substantially with a large money saving in Chicago.

High Cost of Government.

The cost of government is mounting. The tax rate this year in Chicago is more than 30 per cent above last year, and the increase in valuations add that much more to the tax bills of the property owners. Taxes may get to the point where it will become popular for public officials to consider means of reducing the bills of their constituents.

There might be no fair basis for criticism of downstate delegates if they lacked the opportunity to get information regarding the estimated saving in Chicago. But the state had a legislative reference bureau headed by Gov. Lowden.

A delegate can ask the bureau for any information he desires and the bureau will make a diligent effort to obtain and deliver it within a reasonable time.

Tried to Enlighten Delegates.

But in the matter of consolidating the local government of Chicago even that slight effort was unnecessary. The bureau anticipated that all of the delegates would want information on that subject.

Each delegate has been informed in writing regarding the possible money saving. Suppose the bureau estimate is too high and that the actual saving will only be one-half or even one-quarter of the estimate. Say it is only $600,000, instead of more than $3,000,000, why not save the $600,000?

GREW NEW HAIR IN THIRTY DAYS

Remarkable Result of the Hair Grower "Borandine" Causes Big Stir Among Hair Specialists

ACTUALLY GROWS HAIR AND CORRECTS ALL SCALP AND HAIR TROUBLES

"By George, I never saw anything like the effects of that new treatment, Borandine, for growing new hair and restoring it to its natural color. It acted more like a miracle than a toilet preparation," said a well-known gentleman yesterday, in speaking of the revolution that had taken place in his hair. "I began to think there was nothing on earth that would make my hair grow. I tried tonics, bay rum, grease, oil, and almost everything else that you could think of, but without results. I had been bald for years and began to think it was natural for me to be that way, as my father was entirely bald at 34. Finally I read about the remarkable results being obtained by the use of 'Borandine,' so I decided to try it for myself. Well, when I look at myself now I think it is somebody else. I look at least 20 years younger, and, best of all, Borandine brought about the transformation in just 30 days' time."

Borandine is a powerful promoter of hair growth. Since its discovery—a little over a year ago—it has been found to contain marvelous properties for producing a new growth of hair. In subjecting it to various tests in the worst cases of baldness, dandruff, itching scalp, etc., the results obtained by the experimenting chemists were considered almost miraculous. In every case it has been found that where there were any hair roots left it would produce a new and luxuriant growth of hair in from four to six weeks' time. Gray or faded hair was often restored to its natural color in from ten to fourteen days' time. In minor cases of scalp and hair diseases, such as dandruff, falling hair, itching scalp, etc., it was found that those unnatural conditions were corrected and often completely cured by two or three applications. The discovery will, without doubt, put an end to the troublesome scalp and hair diseases that have been so common with the American people. Women who have been forced into wearing false hair will welcome this marvelous product, as, apart from its many other virtues, it adds a beautiful gloss and luster to the old hair. Besides, it contains no oil and has a tendency to make the hair light and fluffy. Arrangements have been made with the laboratories where Borandine is distributed from to furnish free information in regard to this new process to all Tribune readers. Address the

JUROR ALLEGES NEWBERRY TRIAL WITNESS COACH

Says One Man Admitted Being Counseled.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Feb. 21.—Coaching of a grand jury witness, repairing a house on Newberry money, passing out cigars wrapped in $10 bills, marking ballots for Indian voters, and the hiring of campaign workers through a janitor who holds a bank directorship as a side line were points presented in government testimony at the Newberry election conspiracy trial today.

The court sat only half a day, but thirteen witnesses were on the stand. The progress renewed the hopes of Frank C. Dailey, assistant attorney general, that he would complete the prosecution's case next week.

The proceedings served to drag into the spotlight two defendants whose part in the campaign had been unrevealed—James T. Fisher, a banker at Laurium, in the Lake Superior copper district, and Elmer E. Smith, a Kalamazoo insurance man.

Case of Alleged Coaching.

Through a member of the grand jury the prosecution adduced testimony that Fisher acknowledged he traveled a long way around in going from Laurium to Grand Rapids. This witness, Charles S. Potts, said that Fisher told of traveling to Detroit after he was granted a postponement of his grand jury subpœna, and of talking there with James McGreggor, field agent in the northern peninsula for the Newberry campaign committee.

The testimony had it that McGreggor warned Fisher that a report had gone in on only $450 of the $900 given him by McGreggor, and that the latter told the banker not to say anything about the extra $500. Fisher called this latter sum a "gratuity."

House Repairing Politics.

Elmer E. Smith's prominence in the trial came through the testimony of Henry Acker, a neighbor. Acker said Smith told him of beholding "more money than he ever saw in his life" in the Detroit office of Mark McKee, law partner of the Newberry manager, Paul King. Smith told him further that he was repairing his house with Newberry money, and offered to hire Acker as a helper in the campaign at $25 a week.

Bill wrapped campaign cigars were an alleged incident of the campaign in Flint. Harry Corcoran testified he found $10 on each of two foil covered cigars handed him by Fred Henry, deputy state factory inspector.

Visitor in Election Booth.

Jerry Keogima, a Chippewa Indian from Cross Village, said he saw John Bagley, an election inspector of that village, enter voting booths with members of his tribe on primary day. Jerry was clerk of the elections board.

The capitalist-janitor was John Metrikiewicz of Grand Rapids, who wields a broom in the federal building and owns enough bank stock to make him a director. He told of getting $30 from Frank McKay for workers at the polls, but said they were told to busy themselves with the regular Republican ticket.

This started a string of conflicting testimony. One of the men hired by Metrikiewicz said he was given only Republican cards. Another Polish leader said he was hired to distribute literature and gave half his $30 to his brother. The brother testified that he was given Newberry literature.

REAL ESTATE NEWS

T'S 'NORTH SIDE LOOP' NOW FOR WILSON DISTRICT

Big Projects for Newly Named Section.

BY AL CHASE.

where in Chicago is the present l estate market going at higher d than in the "north side loop," wn to old fashioned folk as "the son avenue district."

And this name "north side loop" 's a moniker carelessly assumed by icago's infant realty prodigy—now growing to a husky youngster—the careful christening by W. J. ngenberg, president of the Sheridan st and Savings bank and one of the dest boosters for the district of a ain defined territory. Here are the ndaries: Argyle from the lake to oadway, south to Lawrence, west to rk, south to Montrose, and east to lake.

It's the belief of Mr. Klingenberg t within these limits lies the future est outlying business, hotel, and ter district of Chicago. And judg- from plans under way his predic- s are coming true.

Three Big Projects.

Three big projects are made public the first time today. In another mn Chicago's biggest north side proposition is described. An un- lly elaborate and comprehensive r row project is told about in an- r column.

Not the biggest of the three, but in e ways the most unusual for a dis- t so far from downtown, is the of the Sheridan Trust Safe De- t company to erect a twelve story k and office building at the south- corner of Broadway and Lawrence ue. This will be the first high of- building on the north side, and e who may be skeptical as to a de- d for such a structure probably be interested to know that applica- s for four floors of office space al- y have been received.

As soon as it is finished the Sheridan t and Savings bank, now at 4738 dway, will move across the street occupy the entire second or bank- floor and the Sheridan Trust Safe osit company will use the basement vaults. The present attractive flat- shaped building of the bank will demolished and a five story annex 30,000 square feet of floor space be added to the Loren Miller de- tment store. Its present floor space ,000 square feet.

Will Cost $1,000,000.

The new bank and office building. gned by Marshall & Fox, will cost roximately $1,000,000. It will be x150 with 8,000 square feet of net space on each floor. There will shops on the first floor on Broad- , Lawrence, and Clifton avenues. total site is 138x150 and was leased Melvina Armour, mother of J. en Armour, for ninety-nine years Jan. 1, 1920, at $24,000 a year five years and for $28,000 a year the balance of the term, without uation. The lease is on a basis ,400 a front foot on Broadway, or ,666 at 6 per cent.

The Sheridan Trust and Savings will pay approximately $30,000 r rental and will have about 17,- square feet of floor space. The ent bank, built six years ago, has square feet of space. In the building the bank has planned for at least twenty-five years' th and has made provision for the later on of much more space than present. The bank now has 23,000 ositors and $6,000,000 in deposits. It ed business in July, 1909. Its tal stock is to be increased from 00 to $500,000.

Plenty of Trees and Sand.

A good many Chicagoans easily can a picture to mind of this district a husky growth of trees was the cipal thing in evidence. Then Sher- Park was laid out by Sam Brown pretty soon along walked the steel the Northwestern "L," pausing Wilson avenue long enough to let district get under way before it was on to Evanston. And then, of , nothing could stop the growth north side loop.

Five years ago property on Broad- north of Lawrence sold for from to $300 a front foot. Now $1,000 over is common. Eighteen years and at Wilson and Broadway sold a front foot; today it's $5,000 and and north side loop enthusiasts predicting $10,000.

"It's got the biggest future of any district in the city," said one of the est property owners in that dis- "And it's going to give its name- downtown a hard run some time, tell the world."

Record Rental Paid by Loop Leather Goods Shop

What is claimed is the highest rent paid by a retail leather goods shop Chicago is the lease of the store at 11 South Dearborn street in the Adams Express building, just closed by E. F. Keebler & Co. for Jay C. McCord the Adams Trunk company. The is $170,000 for the ten year term. The lessees operate a chain of trunk s in the loop.

Keebler & Co. also have leased to the Waist shops the store at 6 Washington street, in the Stew- building, for five years at a term of $33,000, also the store at 61 Washington street to the Conrad Johnson Candy company for five at $24,000 for the term.

Private Swimmin' Hole for These Flat Dwellers

A private bathing beach will be a of two new three apartment to be erected 110 feet north Seventy-third street and the South drive by Alvin H. Reed at an cost of $175,000. The lot is 110. Each nine room apartment rent from $400 to $500 a month. will be completed about Sept. 1.

NEW INDUSTRIAL DISTRICT, 154 ACRES, OPENS IN BURNSIDE

Another big factory tract, to be known as the Burnside Industrial district, has been opened on the south side as the result of the purchase of 154 acres bounded by East Ninety-fifth street, Cottage Grove avenue, Ninety-ninth street and the tracks of the Pullman railroad, by John S. Phipps, Henry C. Phipps and Howard Phipps of New York, from the trustees of the Pullman Land association. This formerly was occupied by the Calumet country club. Revenue stamps indicate a consideration of $462,000, or $3,000 an acre. Raymond E. Herman represented both parties.

Negotiations are under way with several industries to establish plants in the district. The Doehler Die Casting Company of Brooklyn, N. Y., already has erected a large plant on seven acres included in the district. The first unit employs 500 persons and when the entire seven acres are utilized the number is expected to exceed 2,000.

Lease on Lyric Theater Renewed for Ten Years

Jones, Linick & Schaefer's private rialto in State street, between Jackson and Van Buren, is assured of at least ten more years' life as a result of the renewal of the lease by them on the Lyric theater property at 318-20 South State street for ten years. E. F. Keebler & Co. have negotiated the transaction for Katherine Isham Farwell, wife of Arthur L. Farwell, and Harriet Isham Carpenter, wife of Federal Judge George A. Carpenter, whereby the leases will pay a net rental of $170,000 for the term.

Approximately $25,000 will be spent by Jones, Linick & Schaefer on a new ventilating system, new seats, and decorations.

Keebler & Co. recently leased a lot adjoining the Maurice L. Rothschild store for ten years at $190,000 to the same managers, who will erect a 300 seat movie to be called the Unique. With the Rialto this will give them three theaters in this block.

Candy Plant Outgrows Its Present Quarters

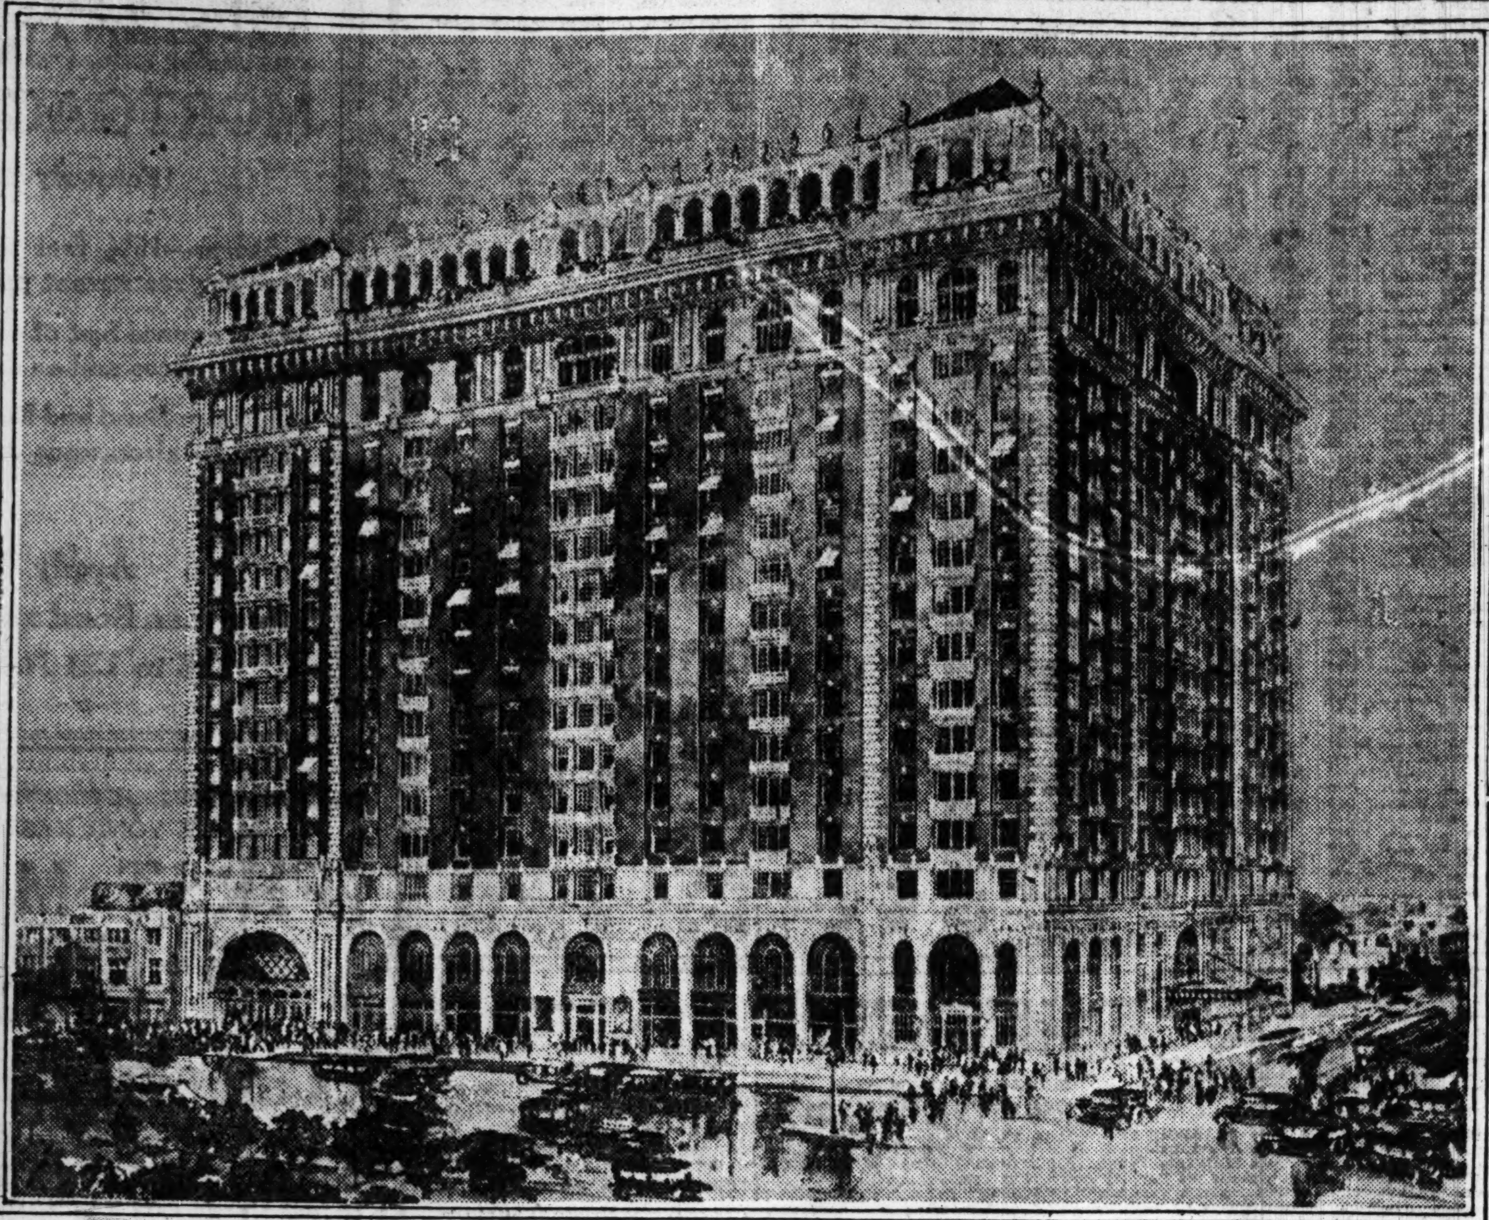
Candy factories still continue to outgrow their quarters. The Eugene O. Reed company has a factory at 2956 North Leavitt street. With the demand for sweets growing every day, it has found itself crowded for space. Yesterday it purchased from the Mears-Slayton Lumber company a tract of ground on the south side of Fletcher street, adjacent to the tracks of the St. Paul's Evanston branch, containing approximately 28,000 square feet, for a reported price of $20,791. A new building, to contain 50,000 square feet of floor space, will be built. J. J. Harrington and Louis B. Beardslee & Co. were brokers.

$150,000 Improvements Planned by West Side Bank

An additional story to the present one story structure of the Northwestern Trust and Savings bank at 1201 Milwaukee avenue and a two story annex are planned by that institution as a result of its purchase of 24x120 feet at 1203 Milwaukee avenue from Frank Kendziora for an indicated $95,000. The present bank building was erected eight years ago and fronts twenty-five feet on Milwaukee, 110 on Dickson street, and sixty-five on Division street. The improvements will cost approximately $150,000.

PLANS WEST SIDE FACTORY.

The Flexible Steel Lacing company, now at 522 South Clinton street, has purchased from the Chicago Fire Brick company through E. A. Teich & Co. the vacant 20,000 square feet adjacent and west of the Belt Line, between Lexington and Polk streets. They will erect a one story building to contain 40,000 square feet. The property, including improvements, will involve a reported $160,000.



The proposed Loridan hotel and playhouse.

$7,500,000 Hotel and Theater for Sheridan and Lawrence

Even the shock proof north sider, who has grown accustomed to reading of enormous theaters and hotels to be erected on every side of him, ought to register mild astonishment when he reads that a $7,500,000 hotel and playhouse is planned for the southwest corner of Sheridan road and Lawrence avenue. For this is the most elaborate hotel and theater project undertaken in this district, and probably will be the largest hotel in the city outside of the loop. It will have approximately 1,100 rooms.

It will be called the Loridan—based on the somewhat overworked and often clumsy method of naming corner buildings by using syllables from each street name. In this instance the christening seems to have been a fairly happy one.

It will be built and operated by H. Emerman, who is building the six story $400,000 Huntington bachelors' hotel at 1526 Sheridan road and who is planning the twelve story $1,500,000 Hotel Chelsea at 914-20 Wilson avenue. Work on the Loridan is expected to start this spring and be finished during 1921.

Vaudeville and Pictures.

It is understood that negotiations practically have been closed with a firm which operates several large movie houses to lease the 3,000 seat theater and run programs similar to the State-Lake—that is, W. V. M. A. vaudeville and pictures. The auditorium will be one of the most elaborate in the city. Its stage will be large enough to care for legitimate productions. The main entrance will be on Sheridan road at the south end of the hotel.

Architect Alfred A. Schwartz has designed a building 200 feet high, to be of red brick similar to that used in the Blackstone, trimmed with cream and polychrome terra cotta. It will front 250 feet on Sheridan and 150 feet on Lawrence avenue.

The hotel lobby will extend along the Lawrence avenue side with a main entrance on that thoroughfare, and also an attractive entrance at the east end of the lobby opening on the boulevard.

Shops on Sheridan.

There will be shops along the Sheridan frontage between the hotel and theater entrances with a wide arcade back of them and with a wide entrance on Sheridan in the center of the building which will lead also to the main restaurant.

The typical room floors will be built around a central court 62x150, and provide seventy-two rooms for each floor, with approximately nine three and four room suites, each with sun parlor. There will be smaller suites, of course, and some accommodations for transients, although it will be operated along the lines of the Edgewater Beach and be a family hotel for permanent guests.

Of course there will be a swimming pool, gymnasium, playroom for the youngsters, all sorts and sizes of banquet halls and private dining rooms, and ball rooms and roof gardens and tennis and hand ball courts and all other luxuries of the 1920 hotel de luxe.

Too Much Competition Makes Movie a Salesroom

To omany movies in one neighborhood spoil the business. The Imperial theater, with 800 seats, was built several years ago at 1210-12 East Sixty-third street. Business was big. Then so many theaters were built in Woodlawn that something had to happen. The big ones got most of the business. The Imperial tried running vaudeville on Saturdays and Sundays and keeping closed the rest of the week. Then the owner, William B. Ester, who operates the Drexel and Lexington movies, gave it up. Yesterday he leased the property through McKey & Poague to the Diamond Auto Sales company for ten years at a term rental of $42,500. The lessees will take possession at once and remodel the building. The front store is 50x140, with the auditorium in the rear.

Choose Chicago as Site for Main Warehouse

Chicago has been chosen as the largest distributing point for the recently organized hardware business of the Winchester Repeating Arms company of New Haven, Conn. The company has leased from the Central Storage and Forwarding company through Louis B. Beardslee & Co., 67,000 square feet of floor space in the building at Thirty-ninth and Robey streets at a term rental of $134,328, or at the rate of 40 cents per square foot. The Winchester main plant has developed since the war to cover seventy-five acres. It plans a coast to coast system of warehouses.

Plan $15,000 Gymnasium for Chicago Boys' Club

Steps toward a new south side clubhouse for the Chicago Boys' club have been taken in the purchase by the organization of 75x125 feet at the southeast corner of Hermitage avenue and Sixty-fourth street for an indicated $7,900. A $15,000 gymnasium is to be built at once and connected with the residence at the south end of the property. A clubhouse will be built on the corner later.

Congress Cafe to Become Serve Yourself Food Shop

Another of the South Wabash avenue cabarets is to dim its lights and bow before the march of the serve yourself food shop. Dave Lewinsohn's Congress saloon, cabaret, and dance hall at the southwest corner of Wabash and Congress, where it attained more or less fame during the last twenty years, mostly acquired when it was upstairs and the 1 o'clock closing rule was a joke south of Van Buren street, has been leased. Lewinsohn is said to have left the city for a needed rest. The United Cigar Stores company will use the corner store and Thomas Valos, John Askounis, and E. M. Chirigos will open the Blackstone cafeteria in the cafe section. The term rental is $154,915, which is said to be higher than paid by Lewinsohn. The leases were negotiated by J. J. Harrington & Co., agents for the Peck estate.

Gives Son Wedding Gift of $40,000 Residence Site

When Lieut. William Roy Carney, pilot in the army air service, married Miss Marie Murphy last year he announced his intention of building a home, but high prices of labor and material made him decide to wait. Anyway, he first had to have a lot to build on, and he delayed his home plans still further.

But Lieut. Carney's father, W. J. Carney of the Carney Coal company, is a firm believer in the "own your own home" slogan and he believes in owning it now. So yesterday he paid Edward A. Cudahy $40,000 cash, or $600 a front foot, for 70x140 feet of vacant in Wellington avenue, north front, 169 feet east of Sheridan road—and this is a record figure for this neighborhood, according to the broker, Harold Bradley & Co. Then he gave it to his son and daughter as a wedding present, with the suggestion that they build their home there. Lieut. Carney is secretary of the Saylor Coal company.

Chauncey Dewey Residence Sold for $15,500 Cash

Chauncey Dewey, one time political leader in the old Second ward and now a resident of Manhattan, Kas., where he has a ranch, has sold his former residence at the northwest corner of Lake Park avenue and East Thirty-third street, lot 101x139, to N. E. Costello for a reported cash price of $15,500. H. G. Howard & Co. and August Tidholm were brokers. The residence when built was one of the finest in the ward.

TRUCK COMPANY BUYS WAREHOUSE.

Broadway Soon to Have Own Little $1,000,000 Motor Rou

Why should the south side have the only motor row, when there are said to be as many motorists, prospective and present, north of the river as south of it? This question was pondered over by Milton Plotke, Curt Teich, Page J. Thibadeaux, Fred M. Dickhout, Le Roy Huszagh, and several others, and the result is that a full fledged, white tiled, nifty little motor row, to extend on both sides of Broadway between Lawrence avenue and Ainslie street, is now under way. The total cost of the improvements is estimated at around $1,000,000.

With the exception of one building, all will be two stories and of a uniform type of architecture. This exception is a six story store and flat building to be erected by Fred M. Dickhaut, president of the Merchants' Lithographing company, on the 50x160 just north of the Green Mill. Automobile showrooms will be on the first floor, bowling alleys and billiards on the second, bachelor apartments on the next three, and a swimming pool and barber shop on the top floor. It will cost $300,000. Work will be started soon.

At the southwest corner of Lafayette street and Broadway, where the Adank livery now is, Curt Teich will erect a two story building for auto showrooms, with 100 feet frontage.

Page J. Thibadeaux is planning a two story building, with 100 feet frontage, for auto salesrooms and garage, in this same block.

On the east side of the street Mr. Plotke and his associates will erect a $200,000 two story building, 160 feet north of Lawrence. Just north of it a $350,000 two story building will occupy what is now the George Lill Coal company yard, 241x125. The Broadway Motor Sales company plans a building to cost $55,000 in this same block.

So far the motor row interests have purchased nearly 600 feet of frontage, and are negotiating for more in the Broadway block between Lawrence and Ainslie. Axel Tieson will be architect for several of the buildings, and Herman L. Cohen was broker in a majority of the deals.

'THE FAIR' PLANS MEN'S STORE IN MONROE STREET

Buys American Express Property, $1,400,000.

Following close on the heels of the announcement that Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co. had leased the De Jonghe hotel property, in order to secure an entrance on Monroe street, comes the purchase by the Lehmann estate of the American Express company property at 23 West Monroe street, for $1,400,000, to be the site of a magnificent building to be connected with The Fair and to house a men's store for The Fair.

The lot has a frontage on Monroe street of 90 feet and a depth of 190 feet, with an alley on one side and rear. Definite plans for the new men's store have not been made, according to E. J. Lehmann. The present American Express Company building, built many years ago, was not considered in the sale.

Will Bridge Across.

It is probable that a fourteen or fifteen story building will be erected, bridged across at each floor with The Fair, and it is possible that the long talked of additional four stories on The Fair may be built at the same time, making the two structures the same height.

The American Express company property has been the home of more theater rumors than any other site in the loop. It is an ideal location for a playhouse, with alleys on one side and in the rear, and only half a block from State street. The latest negotiations were made a few weeks ago by Edwin J. Bowes & Co. for a 1,000 seat theater for Harry Powers and the syndicate, but Mr. Lehmann decided in favor of the men's store project.

The Lehmann estate owns the Majestic Theater building, directly across the street, getting $50,000 annual rental for the theater, which lease still has twelve years to run.

Three Men's Stores?

Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co., it is rumored, are contemplating erecting a men's store building on the De Johnge property. Counting Field's "store for men," the first department store project of this kind, Chicago will have three men's stores housed in buildings separate from the main department stores if the Fair and Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co.'s plans are carried out.

WARNS POLITICS MESSES FEDERAL RESERVE BOARD

Vanderlip Considers It Good Party Issue.

New York, Feb. 21.—[Special.]—Campaign managers engaged in preparing party platforms should give serious consideration to eliminating politics from the federal reserve banking system, Frank A. Vanderlip, former president of the National City bank, said at the Saturday luncheon of the Republican club today.

Mr. Vanderlip said the federal reserve system opened the door to the inflation of the country's credit and asserted that the "brake" against inflation provided for in the act had not been used because of political considerations.

Says Treasury Makes Error.

It was provided, he said, that when danger of inflation occurred, rates for borrowing could be raised. Instead of acting on this authority the treasury, he said, kept rates low and opened the door to great expansion. The treasury, he said, took a circumscribed view of the financial situation, keeping rates low for the purpose of enabling the government to borrow at an advantage.

Because of inflation prices since 1914 have shown an advance of 234 per cent, with the result that the dollar will purchase but 43 cents' worth of its value in 1914. When wealth has been taken from the people, it has been scattered with a broad hand to the speculators and to the people who owned money."

"Weak at the Top."

The weakness of the federal reserve banking system, said Mr. Vanderlip in summing up the first five years of its operation, has been in its management. He declared that political influence had been injected into the system "at the top." In this connection he pointed out that the secretary of the treasury was head of the federal reserve system and that the controller of the currency was ex-officio a member of the bank.

"If we have the courage to stop this era of speculation, to halt these extravagant expenditures," he said, "we will be able to step down without a crash. It will be somewhat painful, but it must be done, and can be done by entering on a period of conservation. Our fate lies largely in the hands of the federal reserve board and the decision of that body."

POVERTY NO BAR TO COLLEGE FUN, HARVARD FINDS

Boston, Mass., Feb. 21.—A student in an American university can be successful in study, sports and social life, even when compelled to support himself throughout his college career, according to the findings of an inquiry conducted at Harvard.

The inquiry showed that some self-supporting students earned $5,000 or more in their four years at the university, and it was not unusual for a student to earn $3,000, stand well in his classes and be a leader in student activities.

One man who earned the latter sum belonged to four college clubs, rowed on the varsity crew and was among the best known men at college. Another, who earned a similar amount, was an officer of his class, was elected to three clubs, sang on the Glee club and was first marshal of Phi Beta Kappa.

Every man interviewed, except two, said the self-supporting student was at no disadvantage nor under any social stigma.

AID AVIATION OR DECLINE, SAYS PARIS EDITOR

PARIS, Feb. 21.—Pleas that "something be done for French aviation," which is described to be in a "state of paralysis," are made by the newspaper Liberte, which asserts the "next war" will be won or lost through the state of efficiency attained by air forces in peace times.

It is argued the commercial airplane should be capable of being transformed into a war machine in a short time and that the country should have enough civil aviators to put into the field a power fleet of planes during the first days of any conflict. Such a fleet would have a tremendous advantage, it is pointed out, in bombing towns and points of strategic importance.

Great Britain has appropriated £15,000,000 [normally $75,000,000] for its air service, £2,000,000 being for civil aviation, the newspaper states, while the United States, Roumania and Japan have made preparations to maintain their air fleets in a good state of efficiency.

MARTENS TELLS SENATORS HE IS REVOLUTIONIST

Washington, D. C., Feb. 21.—Admitting that he had been a "revolutionist" in every country where he had lived—Russia, Germany, and Switzerland—Ludwig C. A. K. Martens, Russian soviet agent in the United States, told a senate investigating committee today that he still was a revolutionist.

"You mean here in the United States you are a revolutionist now?" asked Chairman Moses.

"I am," was Martens' reply.

Wade Ellis, counsel for the committee, asked Martens if he had ever opened "secret communication" with revolutionary activities here.

"All my business has been done in the open," Martens said.

"Don't be too sure about that," the examiner warned him; "we're coming to that later."

Martens said he had no connection of any kind with the Russian Socialist federation.

LION, WITH BACK TO WALL OF DEBT, STILL UNDAUNTED

U. S. Chamber Tells World £ Is Sound.

LONDON, Feb. 21.—Great Britain is fundamentally sound, both financially and commercially, says the American Chamber of Commerce of London in a statement referring to differences in the financial position of Great Britain and the continental European countries.

The chamber expresses the belief that the recent unprecedented drop in sterling exchange makes it particularly desirable that the best opinions on each side of the Atlantic concerning this question should be understood on the other side.

Still the Money Gibraltar.

After a thorough discussion with the leaders of British finance, illuminated largely by the address of the chairman of five leading British banks to their stockholders in annual meeting, the chamber of commerce has prepared a message to the American business public. The message reads as follows:

"The collapse of the pound sterling in New York is no index to Great Britain's financial strength or weakness. London is today, as before the war, the monetary center of Europe. With inadequate assistance from American credit in Europe, Great Britain has been forced to supply the credit needs of the continent as well as those of her own traders.

"Dollar exchange is really 'New York-Europe,' not 'New York-London' exchange. Great Britain is neither bankrupt nor anywhere near it, although her external debt is larger than ever before in her history. This debt was incurred mainly to supply the needs of her continental allies, and she is owed approximately twice as much as she owes America.

British to Stand the Gaff.

"While America may fairly expect to collect all her British debt, Great Britain is preparing to write off 50 per cent of her continental debt.

"In spite of these facts, British business and finance are in a fundamentally sound condition. Business men and workers are recovering from the demoralizing effects of the war. Their customary energy is reviving and British factories are increasing their output.

"According to estimates made public by one bank chairman, the present year's exports will produce a profit of from $1,000,000,000 to $1,500,000,000. The expression, 'we are rounding the corner,' is now heard on all sides. Neither British bankers nor the British government expect, or ask, further government loans or long terms from America.

"Appeals for American credit in behalf of the destitute areas of Europe should not be misconstrued as veiled appeals for assistance to Great Britain. Such emphatically is not the case.

"British bankers and business men look to American bankers and business men only for such friendly facilities as they have enjoyed and have themselves afforded in the past."

LABOR NOTES

Miss Rose Turner, 1456 South Fifty-sixth avenue, Cicero, was granted a jury trial by Judge Stewart yesterday when she appeared in court to answer a charge of picketing the factory of Eiger & Bro., 1249 South Wabash avenue, where a number of milliners are on strike.

The Chicago Trade Union Athletic club will give a dance Friday night, Feb. 27, at the White City ballroom, East Sixty-third street and South Park avenue.

About fifty members of Knit Goods Workers' union, local No. 1, are on a strike against the Shaker Knitting Mills company at 426 South Clinton street for more wages, shorter hours, and recognition of the union.

Two Franks, Ragen and Dunn, have organized the Meter Readers, Billers, and Collectors' union among the employés of the People's Gas Light and Coke company and the Commonwealth Edison company.

About 100 carpenters who went on a strike against the Brunswick Phonograph company for more wages some time ago are now working at other jobs, according to William Brims, president of the Carpenters' District council.

Danish Butter Serves as Coin to Pay Packers

It is understood that the arrivals of Danish butter and potatoes at New York are the result of necessity rather than choice. Chicago packers some time ago shipped liberal quantities of hog products to Denmark, and were unable to get a satisfactory return due to the exchange situation. In order to realize as much as possible they took the butter in exchange for the hog products, and brought the former back to this country for sale. It was claimed that negotiations were under way for the sale of 20,000,000 lbs sugar from Denmark to America.

AUTOSALES CORPORATION.

The annual report for the year ended Dec. 31, 1919, shows surplus after charges and estimated federal taxes of $308,956, equivalent, after preferred dividends, to $1.85 a share, [$50 par value], earned on the $4,029,569 outstanding common stock.

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—Cotton goods and yarns were quiet today, with some easing on unfinished lines. Wool goods were being engaged conservatively. Burlaps were stronger at Calcutta, but quiet and easy here. Many linen mills are withdrawing goods from sale and discouraging orders in consequence of the scarcity of flax and yarns. Raw silk was down $1 a pound.

Forman Farm Mortgages and The Forman Monthly Payment Plan
How Forman Farm Mortgages Are Made

RAISING HOGS IN THE SOUTH

It is the common belief that only cotton is raised in the southern states. True, cotton is an important crop, but in 1919 twenty-two million, or about one-third of the hogs in the United States, were raised in the south. Large packing houses have been established and the farmers are enlarging their holdings in order to enter the hog raising industry on a larger scale.

This expansion requires additional capital.

For 35 years it has been the business of George M. Forman & Company to make loans on improved farms such as mentioned above. Our method of determining the actual value of the farm land insures a security of absolute safety.

We will sell to our customers selected FORMAN FARM MORTGAGES AND FORMAN FARM MORTGAGE GOLD BONDS yielding 6% and 6½% in denominations of $500 and up, maturing in 5, 7 and 10 years.

The Booklets shown explain in detail the advantages of this type of investment.

NEW YORK BANK DEPOSITS FALL; LOANS DECREASE

The stock exchanges, boards of trade and banks will be closed throughout the country tomorrow in observance of the Washington's birthday holiday.

The New York bank statement made an exhibit not altogether favorable in that while there was a fair decrease in loans there was a reduction of more than $60,000,000 in deposits. In the working out of the week's business the aggregate cash of reserves on hand decreased $23,028,000. The shrinkage in deposits and the lessened reserve requirements did not overcome the cash loss so that th surplus reserve was lowered by $15,090,740. The item now stands at $8,071,420, an amount that while not specially suggestive is still below a desirable maximum.

The treasury department reduced its balances by about $38,500,000. The account now stands at $26,350,000, rather small.

The statement follows:

Demand for Credit.

The weekly figures of the Chicago reserve bank reflect a continued demand for credit. The member banks increased their borrowings by about $10,200,000. These loans were made on government obligations. On commercial paper the banks showed an increase of about $200,000 in loans.

While the federal reserve board brought about for a time a reduction in loans secured by government collateral, the country's money requirements have caused the banks to increase their lendings to a larger volume than they were when the reserve board undertook to deflate expanded credit as represented in loans.

Other reserve banks showed borrowings from the local institutions to the amount of $40,889,500, a decrease of roundly $3,000,000. This item, as formerly noted, is gradually growing smaller.

A further evidence of the increased money demand is found in the statement of federal reserve notes in actual circulation. In the week ended last Friday these notes passed the $600,000,000 mark, a gain of about $5,000,000 from the previous week.

Whatever may be the theories of those seeking to analyze the credit situation, the fact is that more money is being required to conduct business than one year ago.

STOCK MARKET EVENS UP ON EVE OF HOLIDAY

The New York Times.

New York, Feb. 21.—[Special.]—Trading in stocks today was of a desultory order, directed mainly to the evening up operations usually seen on the eve of a market holiday.

Some railroad shares were higher at the close than the day before, others moved off. Industrial issues were very irregular. As a whole the tone was firm, with business rather light, even for a Saturday.

Prominent among the rail stocks were those of the low priced group in which on Friday a reaction followed an advance the preceding day. Today a number of them rose under speculative purchases, notably New Haven, with a gain of more than three points and Southern Railway, which moved forward 1⅛ points.

Sterling Suffers Loss.

The foreign exchange market developed more of an interesting turn than stocks. Sterling became weak at the opening of business, falling back during the first hour to 3.40, a decline of 4½ cents to the pound. The downward tendency of rates occurred simultaneously with rumors that further heavy shipments of gold would be made to South America before the end of the month.

It is understood in banking circles that a large part of the exports of February to the southern countries, principally the Argentine have been for London account and sales of sterling against metal transfers are credited with an important share in the recent pressure against quotations.

If this has been the case, it would be reasonable to look for a persistent overflow of offerings during the current week, sitmulated by prospects of new shipments of gold. During last week approximately $14,000,000 in coin was withdrawn from the sub-treasury for export to South America, which brought the month's total up to $32,000,000.

Gold Exports Shown.

Gold exports found reflection in another unsatisfactory weekly statement by the Federal Reserve bank. The report taken together with those of recent weeks, reflected the tremendous task entailed in efforts to reduce an inflated credit structure. In place of positive results there are so far only negative results to show. This is not in respect to the loss of gold, although the reserve ratio is depressed by withdrawals, but in regard to increased rediscounts and accumulations of bills acquired in open market transactions and a growing note circulation.

METAL MARKETS.

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—While there was no change in electrolytic copper prices during the past week, there seems to be a little better inquiry and the undertone is firmer. Leading producers are holding electrolytic around 19c for prompt and 19¼c for second quarter delivery.

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—LEAD—Stronger at $8.75. ZINC—Slab higher at $9.00.

·CHICAGO·STOCK·TRANSACTIONS·

Chicago stocks were dull. Price changes were without significance. Most issues were lower. Exceptions were in Orpheum circuit, which showed a gain of ½ point, and John R. Thompson common, which was up ¼.

Prosecute Blue Sky Law Violators.

It its gross results, the present "blue sky" law of Illinois has been a great success. If figures could be obtained of the total amount of worthless promotion stock sold in the state since the law was put in effect and the amount sold in a similar period before there was such a law an enormous decline would be shown. However, present conditions are far from perfect and a little more co-operation of law-abiding people with the authorities would bring improvement.

Numerous violations of the law are passing unnoticed. The amount of money being obtained by illegal promoters is small in comparison with the total of former times, but the loss falls on the people who can least afford it. Any person of average intelligence must know that, as sales of stock made in violation of the law are void, an illegal promotion has small chance of ultimate success. Before it can advance far in its financing some purchaser of shares is certain to become dissatisfied. Under the law he can hold promoters and stock salesmen liable for what he has paid in plus attorney's fees. A few claims of this sort would start a stampede and bring collapse to any illegal undertaking.

A dozen or more promotions—most of them small—have been offering stock for sale illegally in the last few weeks. The attorney general's office is inclined to await the complaint of an investor before prosecuting. If dissatisfied investors will act without delay they will be doing a real service to the public.

Brief Answers.

E. W., Shawano, Wis.—The Seaboard Airline railway earned only part of its interest in 1918. Last year it earned less. The adjustment bonds would seem to depend on what congress and the government do about returning the roads to the companies.

L. R., Lone, Rock, Wis.—The Armour Leather company is taking over properties segregated from Armour & Co. Its preferred stock is in a strong position.

From Hides to Soles

An outstanding feature of the Armour Leather business is the completeness of its operations in manufacturing and selling its product. Every task necessary in transforming raw material into a finished article ready for the manufacturer to utilize is cared for by this Company. Thus the Armour Leather Company's leather and wool properties comprise five main classes:

(a) Cattle Hide Tanneries
(b) Cut Sole Factories
(c) Sheep Skin Tanneries
(d) Wool Pullery, Scouring, and Carbonizing Plants
(e) Sales Stores and Agencies

These holdings number 13 cattle hide tanneries, 2 cut sole factories, 3 sheep skin tanneries, 1 wool pullery and wool scouring and carbonizing plant, and sales stores, offices and buying agencies in the principal markets of the world.

The Armour Leather Company does more than merely tan raw cattle hides. The cut sole factories turn this tanned leather into products demanded by the shoe manufacturer—outer soles and insoles, counters, heel-lifts, slip-taps, and blocks and strips for cobblers. The cut sole factories consume nearly 20,000 hides each week, a yearly capacity of hides from 1,000,000 cattle; 63 grades of outer soles are made for women and 59 grades for men. Practically every shoe manufacturer in the country is counted among the customers for Armour leather soles.

Every factor necessary in the production of the finished shoe leather is under the direction of the central management of the Armour Leather Company—plants, selection of raw materials, tanning extracts, processes, formulas, machinery, skilled help, use and sale of by-products, and finally the merchandising of the product to supply the market.

The same holds true of the sheep skin and wool departments of the Armour Leather business. The 3 sheep skin tanneries consume the skins of 6,000,000 sheep yearly—the material being made into roller skins, sweat bands for hats, and material for leather coats and gloves, shoe facings and linings, hand bags, suit cases and the like. Fifteen million pounds of scoured and carbonized wool come from the wool pullery and scouring and carbonizing plants each year.

Armour Leather Company carries production through to its logical completion, to the manufacture of a finished commodity with an immediate market. Business strength and stability are the result, making us the second largest concern of its kind in the world.

BEARISH NEWS RULES TRADE IN GRAIN MARKETS

BY CHARLES D. MICHAELS.

Bearish news and sentiment dominated the grain and provision markets to an increased extent with liquidation and stop loss selling and lower prices. The main support came from shorts taking profits and evening up for the holiday Monday. Closing trades were at a small reaction from the inside, with losses of 1⅛@1¼c on corn, ⅜@⅝c on oats, 1c on rye, and 2½c on barley. The finish was the lowest of the week, with net losses from a week ago on corn of 1½@3⅛c, while losses on oats were 1½@2¾c, rye 6⅛c, and barley 2c. In provisions losses on pork were 75c, lard 60@62½c, and 22½@30c.

Bear Raid in Corn.

While news was somewhat more bullish than of late, official notice being given that the 70 per cent car order was cancelled, and that the Grain corporation was buying flour again, sentiment was radically bearish. A little short covering early made a small advance, which was followed by a drop of 1@2c, with the close within ¼@⅜c of the bottom, with February at $1.39¼, and March at $1.37¾.

A house that was the biggest seller on the previous day's bulge was a free seller at the start. Later local professionals started to press the market, and caught stop orders, which carried May down to $1.30½, the inside figure of the week. There was little in the news to account for the decline. With a holiday Monday the pit traders looked for large receipts and a weak cash market, while cash handlers estimated receipts would not exceed 300 cars.

Corn Break Depresses Oats.

Local traders were free sellers of oats, and had considerable help from commission houses. After a small bulge early the market turned weak, and the close was well toward the low point. Buying against weekly bids was a factor in making the closing rally.

Eastern cash demand was fair, with sales of 70,000 bu, the call for March, April and May shipment being insistent, but dealers are not inclined to sell freely in view of the car situation.

Rye was unsettled and after a close of @3⅞c closed 2c lower. Bulk of the trade was of a local character. Weakness in cash wheat was a factor. Bids of 12c over May, track Baltimore, failed to result in purchases in the west. No. 2 on track was 1½@2c under May, with sales at $1.54½. Receipts, 4 cars.

Feed and mixing barley was 2c lower and malting grades unchanged. Spot sales were at $1.30@1.50. Receipts, 10 cars.

Liquidation in Lard.

Several of the big commission houses were free sellers of lard, and the supposition was that eastern longs are getting out. At the same time, houses who have been good buyers for eastern holders of late were on the buying side on the break. Weakness in corn was a factor, combined with the light cash trade, tended to create bearishness, and good declines were recorded, with the close around the low point. Shipments of lard and meats continue large, but were materially under last years. Packing in Chicago since Nov. 1 aggregate 3,034,000 hogs, or 658,000 less than last year. Hog receipts were 8,500, with the top $14.90. Estimates for Monday are 45,000 and for next week 180,000. The latter will compare with 306,000 last year. Western run for the week was 703,000, against 505,000 the previous week and 743,000 last year.

·WORLD'S·GRAIN·MARKET·NEWS·

All the grain exchanges in the United States will be closed Monday in honor of Washington's birthday. The Winnipeg market will be open as usual.

As grain prices decline the average speculator becomes more impressed with the idea that they are to go still lower, and all the bearish news is given more weight, in their opinion. There has been considerable liquidation by longs and a great deal of short selling, although many of the big professionals took profits on the decline yesterday, which assisted in sustaining values. All surroundings were against a maintenance of bulge, and they were limited in duration and extent.

One thing that the speculator has to contend with is the attitude of the farmer, a trader put it, if the farmer will not sell his corn, then there is no use of the speculator selling contracts for future delivery, because he must get the corn from the farmers with which to fill his sales. The farmer holds the key to the situation, and he is expected to be interested in the selling side on declines, unless he changes his attitude.

A Board of Trade membership sold at $10,300 net to the buyer, with this year's dues paid.

Those who are bearish say the outlook for lowering of commodity prices are improving daily. At the same time they look for rallies to come every few days from an oversold pit condition, but they are expected to be limited. Traders are looking for an accumulation of grains over the holidays and a weak cash market on Tuesday. It frequently happens, however, that a large supply of grain brings more buyers and offerings are absorbed with a removal of the loading restrictions at elevators, the 70 per cent regulation being abrogated late Friday afternoon, but were not announced until yesterday morning. Shippers are expecting a better business.

Ocean freights are declining and are off sharply from the high point during the war, with tonnage more plentiful. Wheat, corn, and barley to the United Kingdom are down to 40c per 100 lbs and oats 50c. Continental rates are $1.25 to $1.50. During the war rates were up above $2.50 on grains and $4.50 on provisions, while the latter at present are $1.00 per 100 lbs.

On March 2 the Grain corporation will receive offers of flour under its regular plan with certain modifications, to stabilize the market, the price of wheat in some markets having dropped to the guaranteed figure. The wheat guarantee act passed by congress specifies a preference in the export of flour rather than wheat. In view of the fact that some mills have an over supply of wheat, they can resell to other mills, providing that the price is not above the government guaranteed figure, subject to the approval of the Grain corporation.

Grain receipts at Chicago last week were 4,519,000 bu, or 623,000 bu less than the previous week, the losses being in wheat and corn. They were 1,676,000 bu in excess of last year, corn receipts increasing 1,022,000 bu and oats 857,000 bu. Shipments of all grains were 2,392,000 bu, or 809,000 bu in excess of last year. The movement of grains during the preferential period between Feb. 8 and 18 was 21,030 cars on western roads, an average of 1,956 cars per day.

South African corn crop is reported as practically a failure this season, according to a New York message to F. S. Lewis & Co. Orders for large quantities of corn goods have been received at New York, the first in over fifteen years.

PRODUCE MARKETS

Butter prices Chicago advanced ½1c Saturday for spot delivery, while futures were active at 63@63½c for standards, February delivery. Receipts for the week were 28,484 tubs, against 30,222 tubs last year. Cold storage stocks are 7,011,249 lbs, against 4,435,905 lbs last year. The four markets had 22,692,135 lbs, aagainst 17,829,000 lbs last year.

Eggs were in active demand, local consumption being large. Fresh firsts were 53c, and future deliveries were 49¼c for February and 39@39¼c for March, with storage packed at 41c. Refrigerator ranged at 25@40c Receipts for the week 75,340 cases, against 63,936 cases last year.

Live poultry prices were unchanged, with the offerings light. Fowls were 35c, spring chickens were 31c, and old roosters 34c.

Your Last Chance to buy a Paso Robles Almond Orchard at last year's price!

The keynote of this announcement is action—QUICK ACTION!

Mail the coupon below TODAY and get the entire wonderful story of our great almond development project at Paso Robles, California, as told in our beautiful illustrated book, "A Life Income plus California."

Make it a point to attend the free lecture tomorrow (Monday) evening. See special notice below.

Get the book—it's free! Attend the lecture—it's free! Call at our office when it best suits you. Get all the facts. No obligation at all upon you. Act NOW!

For a number of weeks past we have been telling the public that circumstances over which we have no control would compel us to advance the price of our almond land in the Paso Robles District, California, 20%, and that this advance would become effective March 1st.

If you mail the coupon, write, 'phone or call at our office any day this week we can assure you a saving of this 20%. But remember we cannot give you this assurance if you delay action beyond this week. So act—now!

In order to refresh the memories of those who have read our previous announcements and to explain to others the conditions which have compelled us to advance the prices, let us repeat:

1—That the general rise in the price of land all over the United States has had its effect in California. We have just secured an additional tract of choice almond land in the Paso Robles district—land which our Field Manager, Mr. G. A. Nehrhood, pronounces as fine as any he has ever seen—but we have had to pay a great deal more for it than we paid for our original holdings. This fact alone would compel us to sell it at a higher price than we have been selling for.

2—Nursery stock costs more. In this connection we ask you to remember that we plant only PEDIGREED trees that are grown under the direct supervision of Mr. Nehrhood. By "Pedigreed" we mean trees that have been budded from old almond trees, accurate records of which have been kept for years past and which are, therefore, known to be bearers of heavy crops every year. This insures the sturdiest tree growth and most prolific crop yield that can be produced. We could, of course, go into the open market and buy unlimited quantities of what are known as "Commercial" trees. Such trees do not begin to measure up to the standard of quality which we set for our orchards. Under no circumstances will we plant a single tree of that kind. Every orchard we plant is 100% quality all the way through and every tree represents the very highest type that horticultural skill has ever produced. With such rare skill are these trees pruned and developed that they look as much alike as peas in a pod. As we have stated, it now costs us more to raise this kind of nursery stock. The work is entrusted only to high priced experts.

3—Field labor costs more. We maintain a large crew of men for this work, and in California, as everywhere else, wages have increased in some instances as high as 50%.

4—The cost of machinery and equipment has gone up. Operating as we do on a vast scale, we must constantly be adding to our mechanical equipment—tractors, cultivators, disc harrows, etc. Ask any farmer and he will tell you how greatly the price of farm machinery of all kinds has advanced within the past year.

These facts speak for themselves. No further comment is necessary. A price raise to meet the increased cost of carrying forward our operation was inevitable.

This is positively your LAST CHANCE to buy at last year's price. You save 20%.

A moderate payment, and monthly payments as low as $2.50 per acre will put you in possession of one of these big money-making almond orchards. But you must act quick in order to take advantage of present prices and terms. Mail coupon today.

A NET INCOME OF

$2,500 a Year for Life

Can you confidently look forward to the time when you will have saved up from $40,000 to $50,000 upon which to retire? It requires that much money, invested in 6 per cent bonds, stocks, mortgages or other high-grade securities to yield an income of from $2,400 to $3,000 a year. But it requires only a mere fraction of those sums invested in a 10-acre Almond Orchard at Paso Robles, California, to yield a life income of from $2,500 to $3,000 a year.

To many this seems incredible. Yet those who have gone to Paso Robles, made a thorough investigation of the real conditions and have bought one or more of our 10-acre tracts say that we underestimate the true facts. As a matter of fact, our estimates of net profits of from $250 to $300 an acre—an income of from $2,500 to $3,000 a year—is most conservative. It is based upon a yield of 20 pounds of almonds per tree from 700 trees, which is the number we plant to one of these 10-acre tracts, at a selling price of 25 cents per pound. On this basis the gross profit is $3,500. After making a deduction of $50.00 an acre to cover the expense of cultivating, pruning and caring for the orchard into bearing, harvesting and marketing the crop, the orchard owner still has a net profit of $3,000.

Last Fall almonds from the Paso Robles district sold at from 30½c to 32½c per pound. The demand for these choice nuts is constantly increasing, and it is reasonable to suppose that the selling price next Fall will be still higher. Take your pencil and figure out the additional profits for yourself.

FREE ILLUSTRATED BOOK—Mail COUPON Below TO-DAY!

If you can't come to our offices or to the lecture, send for this book. It is filled with pictures of the almond district and gives an exhaustive description of the business as carried on by the growers at Paso Robles—very interesting to any one not yet acquainted with California and its opportunities. Send the coupon and get a copy—FREE.

Additional Profits From Increase of Land Values

From the day your orchard is planted the land value begins to rise. It continues to increase in value at the rate of about $100 an acre every year for from 12 to 15 years. If, therefore, after your orchard comes into bearing, you should at any time wish to sell, you could do so at a big advance over your contract price. In other words, you can safely figure on $1,000 a year net profit on ten acres represented by the land value increase.

Crops Pay Half You only pay half the purchase price in cash. We will accept payment for the balance out of the crops from your orchard. This means that we must bring your orchard up to a profit-making basis before we are fully paid for it.

Your Interests Safeguarded One of the largest financial institutions in the United States will hold the development fund and title to the land in your interest. When payments are completed your clear title and the deed will be delivered to you by them.

Money Back Guarantee If you visit our property, or have some one representing you do so, and do not find this investment to be exactly as represented in our book—and you will have thirty days in which to make your investigation—we agree to refund the payments you have made, together with your railroad and Pullman fares paid to inspect the property.

GEORGE WASHINGTON

THIS IS HIS BIRTHDAY—Our first president was born Feb. 22, 1732—188 years ago today—and became chief executive of the United States in April, 1789. The portrait reproduced herewith was painted by Gilbert Stuart in 1795, toward the end of Washington's second term as president. It was exhibited in the same year in the museum maintained by the Society of Tammany, and in after years became the property of William M. Tweed. Stuart painted seven full length portraits of Washington, all of them emphasizing the subject's impressive stature—he was 6 feet 2 inches tall—but none of them have been as widely known as the same artist's so-called Athenaeum portrait, which shows the left side of the face in profile.

oily skin and shiny nose

How to correct them

With warm water work up a heavy lather of Woodbury's Facial Soap in your hands. Apply it to your face and rub it into the pores thoroughly—always with an upward and outward motion. Rinse with warm water, then with cold—the colder the better. If possible, rub your face for thirty seconds with a piece of ice.

This treatment will make your skin fresher and clearer the first time you use it. Make it a nightly habit, and before long you will see a marked improvement.

Blackheads

How to keep your skin free from them

Apply hot cloths to the face until the skin is reddened. Then with a rough washcloth, work up a heavy lather of Woodbury's Facial Soap and rub it into the pores thoroughly—always with an upward and outward motion. Rinse with clear, hot water, then with cold. If possible, rub your face for thirty seconds with a piece of ice. Dry the skin carefully.

To remove blackheads already formed, substitute a flesh brush for the washcloth in the treatment above. Then protect the fingers with a handkerchief and press out the blackheads.

Skin blemishes—how to get rid of them

Just before retiring, wash in your usual way with warm water and Woodbury's Facial Soap and then dry your face. Now dip the tips of your fingers in warm water and rub them on the cake of Woodbury's until they are covered with a heavy cream-like lather. Cover each blemish with a thick coat of this soap cream and leave it on for ten minutes. Then rinse very carefully, first with clear, hot water; then with cold.

Use Woodbury's regularly in your daily toilet. This will make your skin so firm and active that it will resist the frequent cause of blemishes and clear your skin.

ECONOMY

And economy is one of the strong points of LARABEE'S BEST FLOUR—not cheapness of price, but the true economy of quality and value.

LARABEE'S BEST" is more economical to use than other flours because, owing to its great percentage of the highest quality Gluten, it actually does make "the most bread from the least flour"—and delicious, nourishing bread, too.

Test "LARABEE'S BEST" for yourself. If you are not satisfied return the unused portion of the sack and get your money back.

REX BEACH is writing for Goldwyn now, you know. He not only writes—he directs most of his own pictures. He is one of the few writers who have voiced the opinion that the motion picture is benefiting literature. "Makes our work more realistic," says Mr. Beach, "because it makes us visualize our characters and scenes more clearly."

Besides being a writer, Mr. Beach is an explorer and an athlete. He went to Alaska at the head of the first rush for gold, and he is the holder of the indoor record of 100 yards in swimming; the winner of the mile handicap swimming race at the Olympian games in St. Louis, and for some years was right tackle of the Chicago Athletic association football team.

He also loves dogs. For proof see picture! Mae Tinee.

PAULINE FREDERICK is simply wild about fans. Movie fans? \O, of course—that goes without saying. But what I meant was the fans one fans oneself with. She has dozens of them. One of them which has sticks of solid gold is said to be 200 years old. The lady is hot on the trail of an antique Spanish fan at the present time.

Miss Frederick's biography has appeared before—so 'scuse, please, this time.

The Highest Paid Writer in America Today —who is he?

C. Gardner Sullivan

Head of the Scenario Department of the Thomas H. Ince Studios, who commands a salary of $2,000 a week—$104,000 a year—greater than that of the President of the United States.

He c'a ms no literary style—he is a photoplaywright—a master in the n w field of art.

You will be well paid if you have any Story Ideas that can be used in Motion Pictures

FIVE years ago the scenario, or motion picture story, was inconsequential. Motion pictures were a novelty and people went for the novelty. But today when you go you want to see a real play.

This change in public taste has resulted in a famine in story plots. Producers must have material—new plots especially written for the screen. And producers are at their wits' end to get new plots; for as yet, not enough people have been trained to write for the screen. Motion pictures today require more stories than all the magazines in the country put together. Studios around Los Angeles alone need more than 3,000 new stories every year.

Today producers are paying $100 to $500 for a short comedy—$500 to $2,000 for five-reel dramatic scripts. Yet even at these prices the demand is growing greater every day.

In One Year's Time

With this critical situation facing the motion picture industry, the Palmer Photoplay Institute was organized a year ago to encourage photoplay writing.

In this short time, dozens of our students have become successful photoplaywrights. For literary genius is not required. Already many of our students have sold plays, some for as high as $1,000. A number of them have taken positions in studios—four in one studio alone.

Send for It

Our booklet, "The Secret of Successful Photoplay Writing," explains the Palmer plan in detail. In it you will find autographed indorsements of practically every motion picture producer and star. It explains the Palmer Handbook, furnished you with cross references to scenarios that have been PRODUCED. The scenarios come to you in exactly the form used by the studio directors. Under the Palmer Plan you also receive one year's free advisory service—personal, constructive criticism of your manuscripts by Frederick Palmer, one of America's best known scenario writers. Mrs. Kate Corbaley, former playwright for Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew, is at the head of our marketing service. In constant touch with the studios, she knows their needs. And her sole work is to help our students sell their plays.

If you feel you can write a better story plot than some you have seen in the movies, a genuine opportunity is waiting you in this new, highly-paid field. Literary ability is unnecessary, for motion pictures are told in the language of pictures. A simple story with one good thought is enough. For movies are made for the masses. So if you feel that you have story-telling ability we urge you to write for this book. It's free. It obligates you in no way. Just fill out the coupon and mail to us.

IN MEMORIAM: SEPT. 6, 1914—Frederick MacMonnies, the sculptor, at work on a model of the statue commemorating the first battle of the Marne, to be presented to France by the United States. Maux, the high water mark of the German advance in 1914, has been selected as the site of the memorial, which will be nearly as large in its proportions as the Statue of Liberty, France's gift to America. The project is indorsed by Secretary Baker and Gen. Pershing, and is to be financed by popular subscription, which the committee in charge proposes to launch late next month.

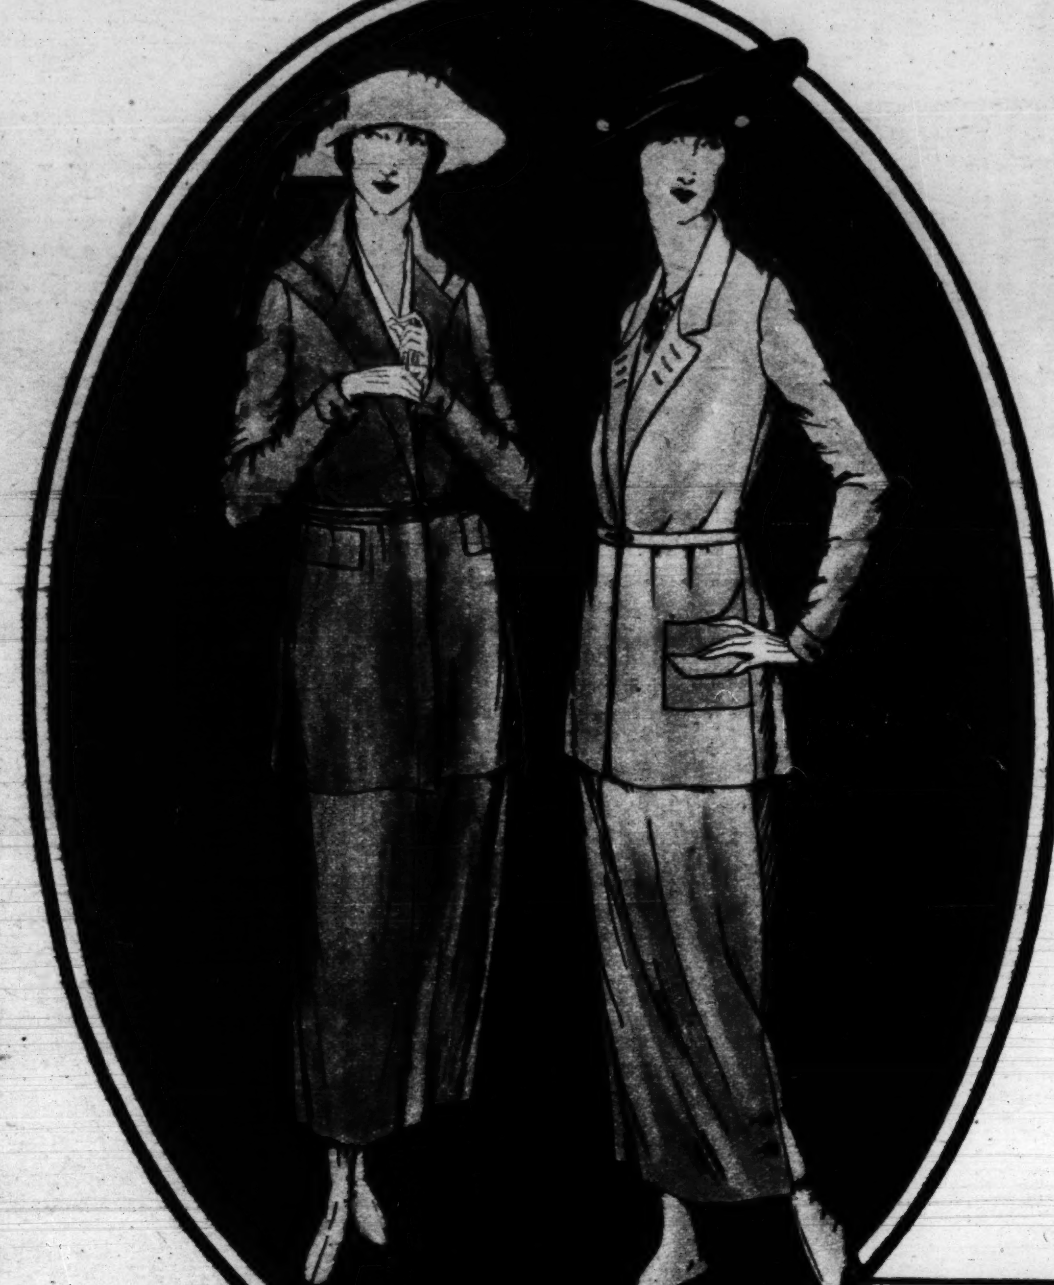
"THAT WELL-DRESSED LOOK"



Walking might easily become an obsession if you possessed either of these little Wooltex Tailormades! The little lady on your left chose the "Briarcliff" knockabout in a tan mixture Scotch Tweed—though she could have had gray or green. When you "look sharp" you see a touch of wistaria running through the belt and facing the pocket flaps. It comes without the color, too. You wear the collar high or low and the skirt is comfortable walking width.

On the right you see the "Lee" knockabout in Irish Homespun. The coat is quite "boxey" and fastens with one button. Both coat and skirt have double pockets, and the sleeve links keep the wrist snug fitting. The skirt is designed for walking and you'll like the colors—Reddish, Tan, Hemp, Blue and Brown mixtures.

It's just a bit of white satin embroidered in gold and black. But, neatly fastened inside the collar of your tailormade, it means that you'll wear the coat or suit with all the pride we take in signing it!

Remember, no matter how much it "looks like" a Wooltex Tailormade, it just can't be without that Wooltex signature shown above.

Wooltex Tailormades are priced at $45, $55, $65, $75 up to $125.

Wooltex
Tailor-mades

With a dollar note acting for all the world like fifty cents, buying a suit these days is somewhat like choosing a husband—it requires a bit of thought!

It's such a simple matter to get a good looking suit—you can try one on any day and see yourself reflected trim and smart. But, it's just as it is with a shoe, you don't begin to know it until you've worn it three weeks or a month. That's about the time you learn whether the lines were "tailored in" or "pressed in." Whether that snug shoulder is going to hold its boyish line and the collar lie flat to your neck.

And, that's about the time a Wooltex Tailormade begins to prove itself a thoroughbred. Sun and rain have done their worst (of course there were times, too, when you couldn't find an empty hanger and used the chair back instead) but your "well dressed look" never leaves you!

You are so delightfully sure, too, that the particular Wooltex style you've selected is not a fad or whim of the moment—it won't make you wish that you had waited until fashions were a little more assured.

If it's a knockabout you want, you'll find a Wooltex Tailormade with just enough "English" to it to make you fancy yourself strolling through Hyde Park. If it's a suit or coat for bestest-best, there's a Wooltex Tailormade with an indefinable air of Paris about it—a pert little flare or a temperamental bit of color.

There's no need to tell you about the materials in Wooltex Tailormades—they're all wool, of course, Tricotines, Home Spun, Scotch and Irish Tweeds, Suede Velour, Polo Cloth, Angora Polo and others. The linings are the kind that tempt you to walk swiftly and let your coat blow open!

When you go to look for your Wooltex Tailormade be sure to ask the salesperson for "The Tailored Woman"—it's a little magazine that gossips of styles now and styles to come. Or, if you like, write us and we'll mail it to you.

For the shop nearest your home showing Wooltex Tailormades, write us. They are being shown simultaneously by "The Tailored Woman," the exclusive shop on Fifth Avenue at Fiftieth Street, New York, and by

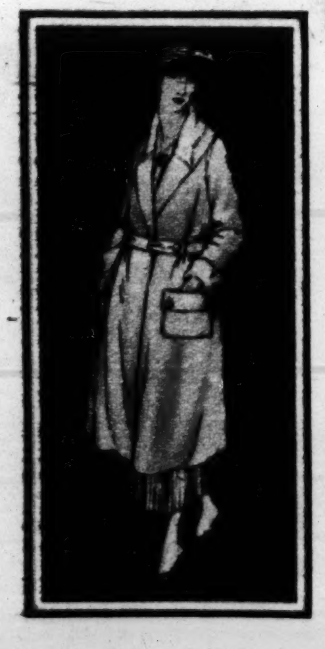
"Pinehurst." It's of French Blue Angora Polo, this little sports coat. The Gray Angora Tuxedo facing conceals two little pockets, and those sharp little points over the hips are extremely smart. The cuff is "linked," the shoulders snug, and the back full. It comes in Squirrel, French Blue and Tan—the Tuxedo collar is of self or contrasting Angora.



"Meadowbrook." This is another smart Polo Coat. Large, square pockets, convertible collar with self stitching and a nice broad belt make it unusual. The shoulders are snug, the back straight with stitched seam down the centre. It is open in back from about six inches below the waist to the hem. In the same colors as the "Pinehurst."

A Wonderful Service for Stout Women

Madame Sveltline Invites Every Stout Woman to Write Her

EVERY stout woman for her own benefit, and for the sake of her personal comfort and appearance, which is so important now-a-days, needs the advice and opinions of "Madame Sveltline." Every stout woman who neglects this wonderful opportunity is surely overlooking a chance to learn about the very things that have been the constant demand of stout women for years.

I am "Madame Sveltline."

Of course, that is not my real name, but it is the name which, I hope, will soon be known intimately to every woman of fully-developed figure. So, dear stout sister, let's become acquainted.

Perhaps my experience has been yours, and if so, the details of my graduation from the class of fat women into that of the "STYLISH STOUT" may prove of interest and benefit to you.

You see by my photograph I am a stout woman; and, as such, suffered the anxieties and disappointments that all would-be stylish-stout-women experience, because of inability to secure garments that met my necessities or desires.

I was, and still am, a business woman, in a position where general trimness of appearance counts. I wanted to be stylish, both in figure and dress, like my friends of more-favored slenderness; but, alas! how bitterly was I disappointed when obliged to accept such garments as were offered, large sizes of ordinary slender-figure garments, which utterly failed to meet my requirements.

In a happy moment, I was brought in contact with an Association of stout-wear manufacturers, who were devoting their efforts to manufacturing garments exclusively for the stout woman; that actually, not only gave her a much more slender appearance, but equally truly transformed her into that hitherto impossibility—a stylish stout woman.

Madame Sveltline

Thru the "Sveltline" System of designing and construction, and the combined experience and facilities of eight leading "Stout-Wear Manufacturers," garments under the label "Sveltline" Stylish Stout can now be purchased in the leading stores.

These garments are so perfectly proportioned and cut to such exact measurements that they give stout figures fashionably slender lines. The size of the stout woman is apparently reduced, and transformed into wonderfully pleasing appearance.

"Stylish Stout" Dresses Sveltline SYSTEM

Stylish Stout Dresses and Costumes contain many wonderful ideas created by exclusive designers. Long slender lines reduce the appearance of stout figures.

"Stylish Stout" Waists Sveltline SYSTEM

"Stylish Stout" Skirts Sveltline SYSTEM

Sveltline Skirts are made especially for stout ladies. Special faced waist bands permit adjustments to relieve fullness, and make a neat, close fit around waist and hips.

"Stylish Stout" Suits Sveltline SYSTEM

S. S. S. Stylish Stout Suits are specially designed for reducing the general appearance of stout ladies. They produce that appearance so much desired for the stout lady.

Stout-Wear Apparel, sold under the "Sveltline" label, guarantees to the stout woman absolute satisfaction, style, fit and comfort. In fact, fully developed women will appear with equal or greater attractiveness than their slender sisters.

"Stylish Stout" Underwear Sveltline SYSTEM

Poise and individuality are most pronounced when "Mildred" Stylish Stout Sveltline System Undergarments are used. They are built especially and exclusively for stout ladies.

"Stylish Stout" Coats Sveltline SYSTEM

Unger Stylish Stout Coats, cut over the Sveltline System, are an innovation in modernizing the stout lady's appearance to slender lines.

"Stylish Stout" Corsets Sveltline SYSTEM

Stylish Stout Sveltline corsets are made in low, medium and high bust, with varying skirt-lengths, to meet all requirements of the stout figure. BACK AND FRONT LACE.

"Stylish Stout" Brassieres Sveltline SYSTEM

Stylish Stout Sveltline Brassieres gracefully blend the bust lines in harmony with those of the corset, imparting youthful outline to stout figures and establishing the modish appearance so much desired.

Girls! Beautify Your Hair With "Danderine"

35c a bottle! Freshen your scalp! Stop falling hair! Remove dandruff! Have lots of wavy, glossy, beautiful hair! You can!

If you care for heavy hair, that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair; besides, it eradicates every particle of dandruff; you cannot have nice, heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its luster, its strength, and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp, the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast.

If your hair has been neglected and is thin, faded, dry, scraggy or too oily, get a bottle of Knowlton's Danderine, apply a little as directed, and ten minutes after you will say this was the best investment you ever made. We sincerely believe, regardless of everything else advertised, that if you desire soft, lustrous, beautiful hair and lots of it—no dandruff—no itching scalp and no more falling hair—you must use Knowlton's Danderine. If eventually—why not now?

THE TYPICAL YANK—A composite picture devised by the United States signal corps, which photographed nine American soldiers of various types on the same plate. The subjects were men of the Thirty-fifth division, seven of them from the Mississippi valley, one from the Atlantic coast and one from the Pacific. Their ancestry embodied strains of English, Irish, Scotch, French, German, Russian, Swedish, Jewish and Sioux Indian blood.

GETTING UP IN THE WORLD—The traffic cop is, by tradition, monarch of all he surveys, but in New York they feel he hasn't been surveying enough. Fifth avenue, therefore, is to have a series of high controlling towers, erected at the most crowded intersections. Stationed in these towers, the policemen will be able to see what's going on for many blocks, and by electric signals will direct the maneuvers of their assistants below.

A LAST FOND LIBATION—In ancient Rome, when they had occasion to use wine in a ceremonial, they poured it on the ground. In Los Angeles, when they found it necessary to dispose of the contents of ten 3,310 gallon tanks of liquid sunshine, they used a hose and flushed the streets with it. Careful statisticians computed that the wine flowed at the rate of $4 a second.

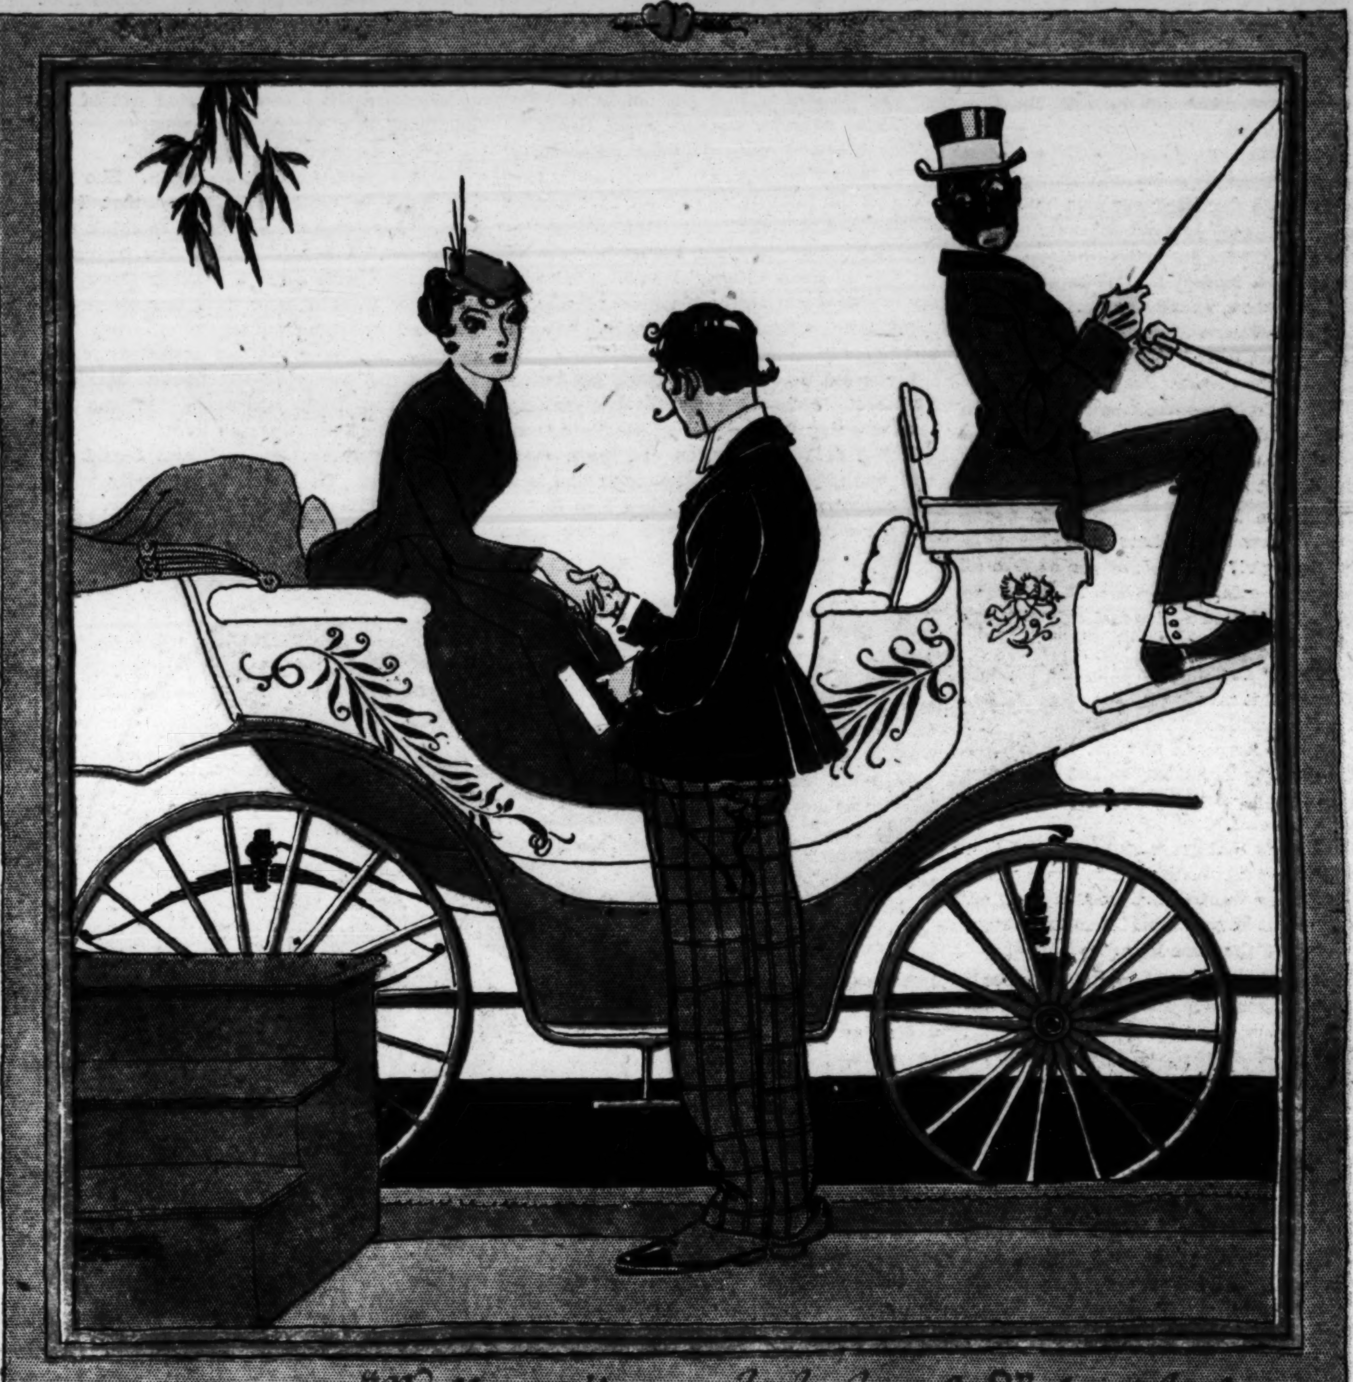
A Man Gets What's Coming to Him

by Ellis Parker Butler

Wads of Money and a Beautiful Girl—What Would You Have Done?



"Well, won't you shake hands?" she asked. So I shook hands.

YES, you're right about that. You're right about it as a general proposition. A man gets what's coming to him in this world. As a general rule that's right. A man gets what's coming to him—unless he gets what's coming to Condon.

Like this—I had hooked up with a fellow named Brixton. I ran across him in one of those 20 cent hotels over in Chicago when I was down to 30 cents and worrying over getting any more and nothing but my good clothes left. We took to each other right off the bat, and Brixy proposed that we work together—he was lonely. He offered to stake me to the goods—he was selling a patent screen doorstop—and said we could work together. He always had more fun out of life when he had a partner, he said. He did not have to ask me twice.

Well, it was a good game, that doorstop. A screen door hardly ever shuts clean and nice, and the way we did it was to walk right up to Mr. Door and whip out a screwdriver and screw one of these patent stops on the door frame. Then we would knock and the lady would come out and we would show her how it worked—not a chance for a fly to squeeze in. Only about once in twenty times would she make us take the thing off. Mostly she would hand out a quarter, or tell us to put one on the other door and hand us a half. We made 15 cents on each sale; 30 cents if she took two. It was a good game.

We worked out of Chicago and across the state to the Mississippi, taking life easy and seeing the roll of bills in our pockets grow fat, and then we went over into Iowa and started down river. That's the mosquito district. and it was August, and, say! Business? We had money, all right! And then we struck this town of Riverbank.

There was a good hotel there, and a couple not so good, but by that time the best was none too good for us. We got off the interurban and went down to the good hotel and Brixy and I went in.

"Welcome home," the clerk said, but I thought it was just a cheerful josh and I reached for the pen and signed my name—Harry P. Grace—and "Chicago" after it. The clerk looked at it and then winked at me and grinned as if it was a joke of some sort.

"O, all right!" he said. "Have it your own way," and he pushed the register at Brixy.

That was after supper, in the evening, and Brixy made tracks for a writing table. He had to order another gross of doorstops. So I said I would go out and look the town over a while. I liked to get the lay of a town as soon as I blew in, so we could lay out our work—Brixy taking one end and I the other.

I went out to the front of the hotel and looked at the river a minute or two and then turned up toward the main street. It was not very lively—Friday evening—but the stores were open. I got to the main corner and stood there, looking up and down and thinking we would divide the town right there, Brixy taking to the east of the cross street, maybe, and I the west, when a phaeton with two black horses stopped on the opposite corner. It was before automobile days or it would have been one of these $8,000 cars.

"Swell rig," I thought. "I bet Mr. Millionaire has a lot of screen doors on his house," and then my eye lighted on the girl in the back seat of the phaeton. "Christmas!" I said to myself.

Take my word for it, she was just a little bit on top of any girl I had ever set my eyes on. She might not have struck you that way, but she did me—she was the kind I admire. Snappy is a word for her. Dark and quick and—well—quick. And so handsome I couldn't take my eyes away.

"Christmas!" I said to myself. "If she was a hash slinger she'd be my girl if I had to fight for her," but I knew she was out of my class. "Ain't it a shame," I said to myself.

She got out of the phaeton and went into a store. That was all the business I had on that corner, but I stayed right there. I had to have another look at her, to cure the sore eyes I might get sometime. So, in a little while, she came out and climbed into the phaeton again—just touched her foot on the step and was in, like some sort of fairy. And then she looked right at me. She said something to the darky who was holding the reins, and he flicked the off horse with the whip and the phaeton started.

"Good-by, queen!" I said to myself, but the phaeton swung around and made a half circle and drew up at the curb right where I was standing.

"Hello!" said the girl.

I looked behind me, but there was no one there. She thought it was a joke, I guess—my looking behind me—for she laughed.

"All right," I said to myself, "if you want to flirt I'm willing," and I tipped my straw. "Hello, yourself," I said.

"Well, won't you shake hands?" she asked.

So I shook hands. It was like taking hold of a live wire from heaven. That's how it thrilled me. But that wasn't all. She didn't give me one of these touch and go handshakes. It was a talking one. It might have said: "Of course, I can't kiss you on the Main street corner, with Joe in the seat of the phaeton, and all, but you understand how I feel about it." So I gave her hand one that might have meant: "Put me down for all that and more."

"I didn't know you were in town," she said.

"Putting over a bluff for the benefit of the Negro," I said to myself, and to her: "I didn't know I was alive until I saw you just now."

She took that all right, too. It made her smile.

"Pretty, pretty!" she said, and then: "Well, drive on home, Joe," and to me: "Come up to the house tonight, if you can."

"Hey!" I called, for the black team had jumped forward with a rush. I wanted to ask her where the house was, but she only turned her head and waved a hand at me. "O, all right!" I said to myself. "Anybody will know who that team belongs to," and I turned to go back to the hotel. A man was coming up the side street from the hotel direction. He was a thin faced man, in a black alpaca coat, and keen, like a real estate man or smooth lawyer.

"He'll know," I said to myself, and I got ready to ask him, but he made as if to rush right by me. He did, too, only when he was right alongside of me his hand pushed out and pushed something into mine, and then he hurried around the corner and was gone. I looked at what he had slipped into my hand, and it was money—paper money, a wad of it.

"Christmas!" I said, and unwadded the cash. "Christmas!" I said again. There were $300 in the wad, all in twenties. "This is my kind of town," I said to myself. "The prettiest girl in the world comes up and makes a date with me and hatchet faced guys hand me cash by the hundreds. Come again! I've been waiting for this these many years. Virtue triumphs in the last act. A man gets what is coming to him in this world, if he waits long enough."

It had me guessing. I went on back toward the hotel, thinking hard. It was dusky now, and I thought I'd wash up and find out from the clerk who Miss Millionaire was and, maybe, make that call she spoke about. And then—bing!—on the top of my head.

You see, there was an alley right there and whoever was in the alley handed me a clip on the top of the head with a lead pipe or something. It laid me flat. It ought to have killed me, but I must have an inch skull. When I came to I was looking up at the sky. It took a while to get together, and when I remembered who I was, and where I was, and what had happened, I lay there and thought.

"I know now," I said to myself. "I'm not getting what is coming to H. P. G. I'm getting what is coming to some other fellow. That's the answer."

So I felt in my pocket and the three hundred was still there.

"He must be an awful jealous guy," I said to myself, "slugging a guy that only shook hands with his girl. He's got a mean disposition. Just for that I'll doll all up and call on his girl. And hold her hand, if she'll let me. Christmas!"

When I got back to the hotel the clerk looked at my straw, which was pretty well spoiled.

"Got another on the head, did you?" he

THE TEENIE WEENIES

BY WM DONAHEY

TILLY Titter alighted on the ground before the shoe house and waited patiently for the Teenie Weenies to come out and greet her. She did not have to wait long for the little folks spied her and came running out for the news.

Tilly, being a sparrow, was quite able to fly about and gather all the news in a short time. She was quite a gossip and she was just as useful to the Teenie Weenies as a Newspaper.

"I just heard the saddest thing," said Tilly, who was really very kind hearted.

"Oh what is it?" asked the Lady of Fashion, who was rather fond of sad things.

"Well, to start with," said Tilly in a very important way, "I happened to fly onto the window sill of a house this morning and it was there that I heard what I did. Mrs. Grimes lives in that little house and she is a very poor widow. She does washing for a living and she has two children. One is a girl about 8 years old and the other is a little boy 3½ years old. The girl's name is Anne and the boy's name is Peter. It seems that Anne and Peter have an invitation to a party and they can't go because Peter hasn't shoes to wear. Anne can't leave Peter at home because he is so little, so she has to give up going and she is crying her heart out because of it."

"Oh dear me. Can't we do something?" cried the Lady of Fashion as she brushed a tear off her tiny cheek.

"We can and will!" answered the General. "But first we must go over to the Grimes house and find out what size shoes Peter wears."

The little folks set out at once and after a long walk they found the house, where they were soon able to measure Peter's foot, for that little chap was taking his afternoon nap, which was a very lucky thing.

"The next thing we have to do is to find an old pair of shoes somewhere," said the General when the measure had been taken.

"There's a house not far from here where a little boy lives who is just about Peter's age," said the Turk. "Maybe we could find a pair there."

Several of the little men went over to the house and searched for quite a time, but they could not find a small pair of shoes. However, they ran across a mouse who gave them some valuable information.

"I was nosein' around in the cellar of the big white house across the street yesterday," said the mouse, "and you'll find a pair of shoes about the size you're lookin' for. They are lyin' on an ash heap in the north side of the cellar. They are old ones, but they're pretty good at that."

The Teenie Weenies thanked the mouse for the information and hurried to the ash heap, where they found the shoes and they were just the size the little folks were looking for. One of the shoes was badly torn, but with the help of a needle and a spool of stout thread, which the Teenie Weenies found in the house, they were able to mend it. The Cowboy found some shoe polish and with teenie weenie paint brushes the little folks were able to polish up the shoes until they looked almost as good as new.

It took the Teenie Weenies all night to get the shoes out of the cellar and carry them to the back porch of the Grimes home, but the little people were well paid for their work when Tilly Titter told them how happy Anne and Peter were with the shoes.

"Did t-t-they g-g-go to the p-p-p-party?" asked the Dunce.

"You bet they went to the party," answered the bird. "And Peter goose-stepped all the way so he could watch his shoes."

A MAN GETS WHAT'S COMING TO HIM

said. "This one looks like a good one."

"I'm no connoisseur," I said, "but it is as good as I want," and he grinned.

"One! Two!" he says, holding up his fingers like the fellow in the play. "Look out or it will be three strikes and out."

"I'll look out, all right," I said, and went up to our room. Brixy was loafing on the bed, smoking a cigar and reading the Chicago paper.

"This is some town," I said, and I told him what had happened to me and showed him the wad of cash the thin faced man had handed to me. I asked him what he thought it meant.

"This is real money, H. P.," he said. "It has the silk threads and everything. Three hundred real dollars. I know what it means. It means 'beat it'!"

"Skip out?"

"Just as fast as we can," he said. "When anybody hands us $300 it is a signal to us to pay at the desk and go away from here."

"You forget the girl," I said.

"That's the thing to do," he said, beginning to throw his collars into his grip. "What is a girl? Fifty-eight per cent of all births are female. There are 23,000,000 females in the United States and only this one $300 wad floating loose."

"All right," I said; "you take one hundred and fifty of this money and the other 22,999,999 females and beat it, if you want to. I'm going to stay here and find out what this is all about and hold that girl's hand again, if I have to wear an airpad in my hat to bounce the blackjacks off."

"And there's that gross of doorstops I just ordered," he said, hedging. "Anyway, it's your head they want to bounce things off of. I can stand it if you can. Somebody may hand you $400 the next time."

We talked it over and it was clear enough that I had been mistaken for some other party.

"That clerk downstairs knows who," I said, "and I'll get him to tell me. We may have to give this three hundred back——"

"Unless we beat it tonight" Brixy said.

"We may have to turn it over to the proper party," I said. "I don't want any cash or any broken skulls that belong to another party. But, anyway, before that happens I'm going to make a bold dash and see that girl once more, even if her pa pushes me off the front porch. That's how I feel about that girl."

Brixy put on his shoes and I straightened my hat the best I could and we went down to see that clerk. He was all human; some hotel clerks are, and they are the best folks you ever meet.

"Hello!" he said when we leaned against the desk. "Not dead yet, anyway."

"Now, listen!" I said. "This is my partner, Brixy. We're just the same as one person. I can see you are all white, and I want to be confidential for just a minute. Who do you think I am?"

He looked at the register and said, "Harry P. Grace of Chicago, Ill.," and grinned.

"Yes," I said. "That's right. That's who I am. But you think you know I'm some one else. Who is it?"

He grinned and winked.

"I know," he said. "A hotel clerk knows things he is not supposed to know, and—I'll tell you—I know. But I'm safe. A hotel clerk knows things but he don't tell them. So no more from yours truly at the present writing. I haven't anything to do from now on but keep my mouth shut."

"Yes. but look here." I said earnestly, "I am Harry P. Grace. I've never been in this town before. I'm selling door stops——"

"Fine!" he said. "Nobody will ever get anything else out of me. I don't understand the idea, but that's none of my business. I'm a clam."

So Brixy went at him, and then I went at him. We told him everything—our past lives and what had happened to me that evening—and he just grinned.

"Maybe you can put it over if you keep it up that way," he said. "It sounds earnest enough."

"Well, please! please!" I said, "will you just whisper the name you think I had when I was here before?"

"Fine!" he said. "You're all right! I guess you'll put it over. I didn't think you could, but I guess you can. You're great."

Well, it was no use. I could see what he thought; he thought I was some one who had gone away and had come back pretending I was some one else and that I was trying it out on him. I gave him up.

"Well, tell me," I said. "Who is the rich party in this town who owns a pair of black horses and a small phaeton and has a dark driver?"

"You're good!" he grinned. "Elon Overman is the man."

"What's his daughter's name?" I asked.

"Yes, you're good," he said again. "The one you mean is Marjorie. The darkest one."

"All right. And where does he live?"

"Eighth street, just east of Pine. The big house with the cupola. Am I right?"

"I guess so," I said. "I'm a stranger here."

"O, sure!" he said.

"And the hatchet faced man that handed me the wad of cash?"

"Sims. Silas R. Sims, lawyer."

"You do know things," I said. "Who hit me the wallop with the blackjack?"

"If I knew!" he said longingly. "O, sister!"

I guessed that was all I could get out of him then. Brixy walked to the door with me.

"I'm going up and call on Marjorie Overman," I told him. "You can walk along with me if you want to, but your cue is to walk right past the house when I go in."

It was a big house with a big lawn around it and a low, fancy cast iron fence with a gate with a latch that made a noise when you worked it. Three or four people were on the porch, but when I clicked the gate latch one of them came down the porch steps and down the walk to the gate. It was Marjorie. Moonlight night. Locusts and crickets going. Shrubbery and geranium beds. Fountain splashing and a lawn sprinkler whirling around. Big oaks.

"Christmas!" I said, as she came out of the shadow into the moonlight and into the shadow again. Then she put her hand into mine again and looked up at me.

"Well?" she said, holding up her face.

"In a minute!" I said. "Only I got to play fair."

"And I came all the way down to the gate just for——" she pouted. "And after so long, too!"

"It's all right," I told her. "Just wait until I tell you about it."

She did not take me to the porch. She led me to a hammock at the side of the house.

"Now, why?" she asked, still pouting•but snuggling up as if she was used to me.

"Well——"I said, and then thought how I had better begin. "I'll tell you," I said, "and then you'll understand. My name is Harry P. Grace. This is the honest truth. I'm a peddler—sort of—and my partner is a fellow named Brixton, as white as they make them."

"Yes," she said, "but that's no reason for not kissing me. If you don't like me any more, of course——"

"I did kiss you before, didn't I?" I asked.

"Hundreds of——"

"Well, I'm not that fellow. I'm not the one that kissed you. I'm another fellow. What was that fellow's name?"

"O, you!" she said, and sort of pushed me with her hand. "Stop teasing!"

"No, but honest! What was his name? What did he say his name was?"

"You tease!"

"But say it. Say it for me. Just once," I begged.

"Jack, then," she said.

"Jack what?"

"Jack Condon, you silly!"

"All right," I said earnestly. "Now I've got it. I'm not Jack Condon. No, hold on! I know what is the matter. I look like him, and I must talk like him——"

"But you don't act like him," she said, pouting.

"I must look like him," I said, "but I'm not your Jack Condon. I'm Harry P. Grace. I've never been in this town before. I never saw you, or the town, or anybody in the town before today."

"O! I know!" she pouted. "But that's all business. That has nothing to do with me. I don't care what names you take or who you pretend you are, but it's mean of you to go away for weeks and never write and then meet me as coldly as if we were strangers and not engaged——"

"Christmas!" I said, jumping out of the hammock in a hurry. "Engaged!"

"Well—as much as," she pouted.

"O!" I said, and sat in again. She put her hand in mine and I'll say that I let her. "Just give me a minute to think this thing out," I begged, and I was trying to fight it out with myself, whether there was any way I could hang onto this wonderful girl and not take advantage of what was coming to Condon, when somebody came around the corner of the house. Marjorie sat up and I did the same. It was her father, this Elon Overman man.

"Good evening," he said, and I said the same thing. He had a nice, kindly voice. He was old—gray haired, anyway. He looked into the shadow and found a stiff backed lawn chair and sat on it, pretty close to the hammock.

Yes, a man gets what's coming to him.

"I have been young myself," he said, pleasantly enough. "We did not have hammocks then, but I have been young."

There did not seem to be anything to say to that. The next he said was to me.

"Marjorie here has been telling me—her mother and me—about you," he said. "Of course, I have seen some things myself. I suppose, before long, you would have spoken to me anyway, but Mrs. Overman thought I ought to say something to you."

I headed him off.

"I can guess what you are coming to," I said, "but I want to set you right first. You think I'm a man named Condon, and so does your daughter here. I'm not. I'm a fellow named Harry P. Grace, and I peddle screen door stops. That's my business——"

He stopped me.

"All that is of no consequence," he said. "We understand that you must have various names and take various occupations in your profession. The main thing is that you seem a clean, fine, young man—or so Marjorie says. We do not want to interfere with any choice she may make. She is a sensible girl. One thing Mrs. Overman and I do think however. We thing it would be much better, if you and Marjorie decide to marry, for you to give up the work you are doing and come in with me. There is enough for you to do. The day you and Marjorie marry I would make you a partner.

The girl squeezed my hand.

"That is all," Mr. Overman said. "Mother only wanted me to tell you she thought it would be much better for Marjorie's husband to be less often away from home. I think so myself."

He got up and was going away.

"Can I talk with you about this later on?" I asked him. He said I could—that he would be glad to have me do that—and was going away when he stopped.

"Somebody is hanging around out there at the fence," he said. "Is anybody waiting for you?"

"I guess it is my partner," I said. "I'll go chase him."

I meant to have the talk with Overman that night and it might take a long time—nobody seemed willing to believe I wasn't Condon—to convince him I was Grace, and there was no use in Brixy waiting half the night. I walked down to the fence.

It wasn't Brixy. It was some fellow I had never seen before. He had a felt hat pulled down over his eyes, but he pushed it up when I reached him. He looked like a man just over a long spree. The hand he put on the fence trembled. He looked tough.

"Look here," he said, "I saw you come up here and I followed you up. I was waiting for you to come out."

"To give me one of those sweep wallops on the head?" I asked him.

"No," he said. "I didn't have anything to do with that. I was against that. When they begun to plan murder I was scared. I'd had enough. Is that offer still good?"

"What offer?" I asked.

"You know, Mr. Condon," he whined. "Don't go and say you didn't make it; I'm ready to take it up."

"Why do you think I'm Condon?" I asked, because it looked to me as if this was a chance to find out something.

"We all know," he whined. "We spotted you for the detective the league hired almost the day you first hit town. We been watching you every minute. But I can't do murder. I draw back at murder. Well——"

"Well, what?"

"If you do what you said—if you let me off free if I tell what I know—I'll tell everything," the fellow said. "I'm sick, Mr. Condon."

I could see he was sick.

"Go ahead and tell," I said.

What he told, across the fence there, was about a sort of dynamite plot they had had there, blowing up four houses of men that had tried to push the prohibition law hard. He told me the whole thing, names and all.

"You come in the house while I write that down and sign it," I said, "and I'll talk turkey to you."

He came in and Mr. Overman got us a pen and paper and I wrote down all the fellow told me. It was plenty. It was the whole story. Then he signed it and Mr. Overman witnessed it.

"That's what I got the $300 for," I said to myself. "This fellow Condon was a detective. I know that much now. That Sims lawyer fellow is the man to tell me the history of my mysterious past."

Would you believe it? Marjorie's father would not let me go back to the hotel that night. He was afraid I might get another of those wallops on the had. On the stairs, as I was going up to the room they gave me, this Marjorie girl stopped me again.

"Well, I'll tell you," I said. "I've told you I'm not Condon, and I've told you I'm somebody else, and if you'll give me time I'll prove it to you, but I'll say this for myself—I'd be tickled to death to marry you any minute, because I fell head over heels in love with you the minute I saw you, but I only want what's coming to me, not what is coming to Condon. On those terms——"

"It's you I love," she said, "whether you are Jack or Harry, or no matter who you are."

"Well, on those terms," I said, "and with the understanding that I'm not trying to get anything under false pretenses, here goes!"

So I kissed her.

The next morning I went down to see Sims. Marjorie drove me down in the phaeton.

"You come in," I told her. "I want to show you I'm not Condon. This man Sims will know. He'll know in a minute. He'll tell you."

I was getting close to desperate. After breakfast I had had a heart to heart talk with the girl's father and told him the whole business. I began at A and went to Z, telling him where I was born and where I had been since then. Right in the middle of it Brixy called me up to find out whether I was dead or not. Then I went on with my story. The old gentleman listened to me seriously enough until I came to the place where I said I wasn't Condon and never had been.

"We never thought you were," he said. "It was not to be supposed you would come under your own name. As a matter of fact, only ten of us knew you were taking the

"Please!"

Molly Martin's shoulders moved slightly.

"May I ask," she inquired cynically, "if you are going to say that circus men are thieves and that circus women are bedizened creatures without soul or honor?"

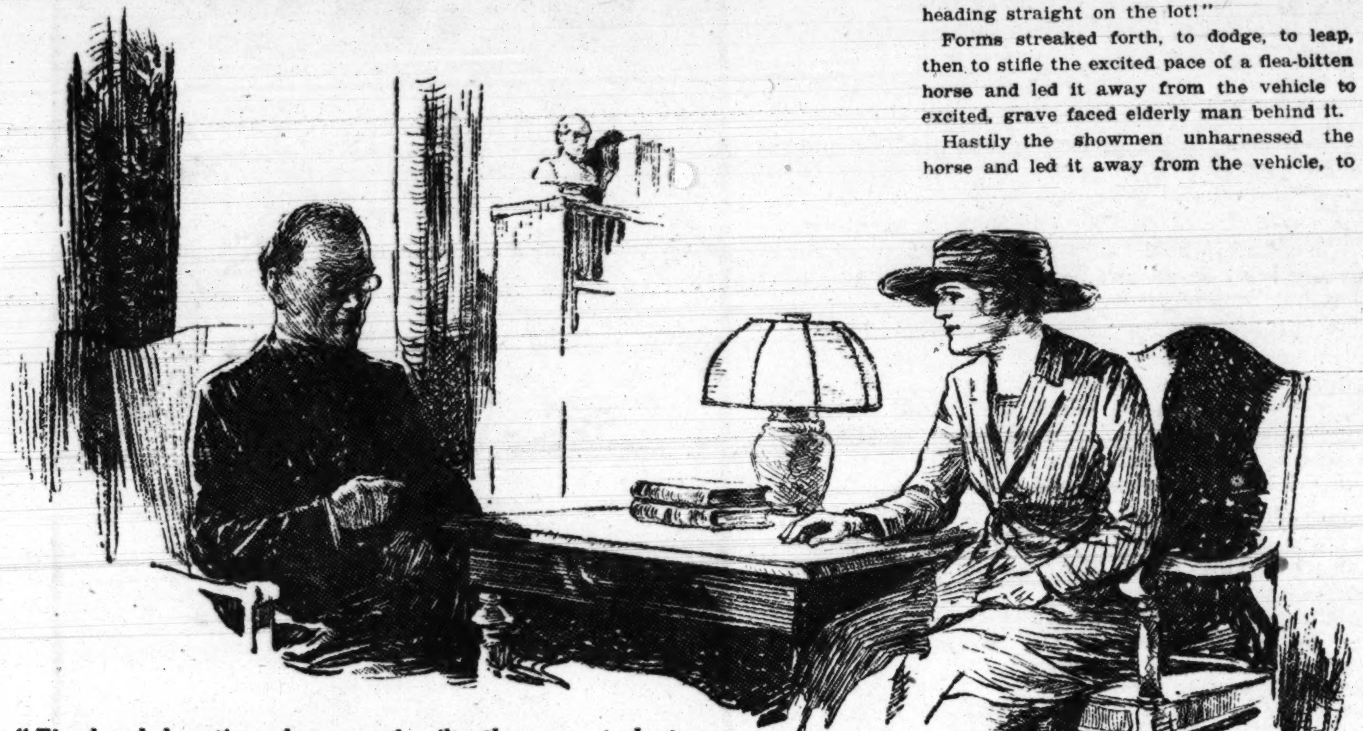
"I am going to say that they have that reputation."

"Thank you. You'll be sure to say that?"

The minister studied her queer smile.

"Why do you ask? There is no libel in stating a commonly accepted fact."

"Certainly not. And there's no malice in my question. I have tried to argue with you, but we haven't managed to get very far. I'm a circus woman; I've got a motto: If you can't beat 'em, join 'em. So you might as well have a lot of information to help you along. Circus people run mostly in families. I guess you know that—generations of them follow generations. I just thought I'd mention it to you—I thought maybe you'd forgotten to take into consideration what the children around a circus must have to put up with, and how they're constantly in danger of losing their souls and always in an atmosphere of sin. It might help you with that sermon. You could learn a lot if you'd only come out there," she added in a tantalizing tone. "The show'll be here next Sunday—and the tents won't be more than a half a mile from your house. If——"



"Tinsel and deception, glamour and guilt—those are to be two of my similes, and I believe they are well founded."

"No, thank you." A puzzled expression had come into the minister's eyes. "Even if I felt that I needed to come it would be impossible. My sermon begins at 11. But—" and he walked a step or two after her—"may I ask why you came here to defend yourself and then——"

"Gave you that stuff about the kids?" Molly Martin laughed—a laugh with a sneer in it. "I guess I just wanted to tell you something you'd believe. I'm glad I came. Good-by—and say what you please next Sunday. It'll only make business better for us; everything's advertising, and a knock often helps a lot. You never can stop curiosity, you know."

The old, grave faced man straightened.

"Please understand me," he said, a serious, agonized tone in his voice, "there's a reason for everything I will have to say. I don't care to discuss it and I won't discuss it. My mind has been made up for a number of years. If you know the cause—as you say you do—that is all the more reason why I cannot talk further about it. There is nothing that can change my opinion and——"

"Quite sure?"

"Quite."

"Very well." She turned abruptly and left the house. Out at the gate she paused, and looking at the old, slatternly buggy, the tired, listless horse, the broken pickets of the fence, the ill kept lawn, allowed her smile to die and a sigh to cross her lips. Instinctively, with the love of every circus person for a horse, be it spirited and young or old and rawboned, she went forward and patted the face of the flea-bitten old animal at the hitching rack. "Poor old fellow," she whispered softly, "dying together, aren't you? And he doesn't know what's killing him."

She patted the horse's face again, then went quietly down the street. Twenty-four hours later she sat in the "big" tent of the circus watching the riding act that was the main attraction of the wandering little wagon show. Particularly as she watched her eyes centered on the features of the girl in the act, usually bright with the love of life, with the glint of health, drawn now, and pitiful. And when the act was over, out in the padroom, she forced herself to look straight into the agony of suffering eyes as she placed a mothering arm about the shoulders of the panting little equestrienne.

"I've been meaning to talk to you," she said. "I want you to make me a promise."

"About——"

"Pampas. We've got to go in there. I figured a long time about it. Certain things that you wouldn't understand make it necessary. I want you to promise that you'll be just the same there as though it were any other town, and——"

"Some one will recognize me." The girl's voice was low, hopeless.

"Are you ashamed?"

"Of this? No!" She looked at her ring costume, at the form of her white, rosined horse being led to its canvas stall. Then her lips quivered, and with a quick, girlish gesture of despair went into the quickly folding arms of Molly Martin. "It's—it's what they think that I'm ashamed of!" she sobbed. "It's what they've thought ever since I went away and what they've said—and what it's done to him!"

"What it's done?" Molly was smoothing the heavy waves of her dark hair. "How do you mean, child?"

The girl straightened, and her lips pressed tight for a moment. She was silent as the clown went hurrying past. Then:

"That time I told you I was going to Fort Worth to shop?"

"Two years ago?"

"Yes. I didn't go—there. I went home."

"You saw him?"

"Everything. The church used to be bright and pretty and painted and our house was nice. And he used to laugh now and then and he was—O, so different. Now—everything's gone to nothing, and I know why! I—I——"

Molly Martin, still petting, still holding her, changed the subject.

"Did you talk to him?"

"I—walked on the porch and tried to ring the bell. It was out of order, just like everything else. I knocked, and he came to the door. But it wasn't him, Mother Martin; he'd never had those lines around his mouth or that look in his eyes—I—I ran."

"And he let you go?"

The girl nodded. Molly patted her head again.

"All the more reason that I want you to be brave when we get to Pampas—and to make me that promise."

There was a long moment of indecision.

"I promise," came at last, and "Mother" Martin, her arms tight about the form of the equestrienne, led her to the dressing room. Three nights later, in the early glow of evening, the little showwoman stopped the superintendent as he came on the lot.

"We're going to highball the show tonight," she ordered. "I want to get off the lot early and in Pampas before dawn. If you see Old Mike over at the stables tell him to look me up before he goes to his bunk."

"Yessum." The superintendent went on to obey commands.

And when Pampas, awakening to the dull lethargy of a Sunday morning, began to move about, it found that there had been others awake long before it—the Molly Martin's World's Best Wagon Shows was "on the lot" for its day of rest, its tents raised, its workmen sleeping in the shade of the heavy wagons, its stock bedded—and its little owner walking fretfully about with the air of some one watching for something she does not want to see.

An hour passed, and a bit of the worriment seemed to leave her features. Two, three, and she appeared to lose a great part of the anxiety that had oppressed her. Three and a half; from far away the church bells clanged, then the streets began to show the twos and threes of worshipers as they started on their regular Sunday journey, then——

A leap. A sharp call from the woman as she noticed a sudden scattering and excitement down the street, accompanied by the clattering noise of an ancient vehicle.

"Mike! Mike!" She ran toward the stable-tent. "Get that runaway! Quick! It's heading straight on the lot!"

Forms streaked forth, to dodge, to leap, then to stifle the excited pace of a flea-bitten horse and led it away from the vehicle to excited, grave faced elderly man behind it.

Hastily the showmen unharnessed the horse and led it away from the vehicle, to calm it, while Molly Martin ran excitedly forward. Then just as suddenly she stopped and put forth a hand.

"Welcome!" she said smilingly. The man in the buggy stammered, then, stepping out, accepted the handclasp.

"This puts me in a rather awkward position," he said lamely, "I—I hardly know what to say. I——"

"What are you trying to do—thank me?" Molly Martin laughed. The minister, embarrassed, ill at ease, cleared his throat.

"Of course. And naturally——"

"Worrying about being an ingrate if you preach that sermon? Forget it. Listen, you come with me and I'll give you plenty to preach about, if you want that sort of stuff. See that fellow asleep over there under the stake and chain wagon? One of the best all-around thieves in the business. Isn't working at his trade just now because——"

"Please!"

But Molly Martin interrupted.

"You want to be grateful, don't you? Then let me tell you facts. He isn't thieving any more because he's found out that he can make a better living going straight. Very few circuses carry 'graft' nowadays—but you'd be surprised at the number of sheriffs and chiefs of police that come out to the lot and offer to fix it so we can work the 'queer.' Want to hear some good cussing?"

She asked the question with the innocence of a child. The minister hesitated, but Molly Martin caught his arm.

"You've got time. That horse isn't ready to go yet. You want atmosphere, and you're right where you can get it. There's a bunch of stake drivers just on the other side of the tent—they ought to be doing some choice swearing—providing we can sneak up on them. They never do it when I'm around, you know. Come on!"

Involuntarily he followed her lead, stepping over the guy ropes and slanted stakes, making their way around the big top. Half around. Three quarters. The minister's jaw dropped. He stopped, staring——

"What's that?"

Molly looked at him sharply.

"I don't see anything."

"Listen!"

From within somewhere was sounding the voices of children, singing enthusiastically, happily—with the happiness that only children can know. Molly moved on.

"That isn't anything," she urged. "Nothing but the kids! Come on."

"But——"

"You don't want to go in there. It would not interest you. It is pretty though, isn't it?"

The minister nodded, absently. A wondering expression had come across his features, he had started to raise his hands, and they had halted in midair. His whole bearing was one of tensity, of concentration, on the childish voices coming from somewhere behind that wall of canvas, childish voices singing:

"For one thing only, Lord, dear Lord, I plead:
Lead me aright,
Though strength should falter and though heart should bleed,
Through peace to light."

A pause. The staring eyes of Jonas Reeves turned to the woman before him. His lips parted aimlessly.

"What's that?"

"Nothing. Only the kids. It happens every Sunday. Come on."

"But——"

From within had come the interruption, another verse, this time with the voices of women and a few men mingling with those of the children:

"I do not ask my cross to understand,
My way to see—
Better in darkness just to feel Thy hand
And follow Thee."

The hands of Jonas Reeves twitched. His lips sagged—dully he turned toward Molly Martin.

"What's it mean—here in the circus?"

"Forget it!" The little woman tugged at his arm. "It don't amount to a hill of beans. It's only the show folks doing what any one else would do, going to church! Nothing exciting in that, is there? Nothing——"

But the man suddenly had trembled, then stood transfixed. The voice of a woman had come from beyond, repeating the age old words:

"But this one thing I do, forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before, I press toward the mark of the prize of the high calling of God in Jesus Christ."

A palsy seemed to strike the tensed form; the white hands raised slowly toward the gray face, then dropped limply. The eyes rolled, white and staring, the lips sagged. Then, with a sudden, galvanic action, the man strengthened with a new life, a new force. He whirled. With one great motion he grasped a flap of the sidewall and tore it from its fastenings, then stood trembling and hesitant before the startled little Sunday morning gathering of the circus. A scream came from the lips of the little equestrienne, standing before her "church" and Sunday school in one, a scream of fright that trailed into wonderment, then died, as she looked at the man before her.

The Bible dropped from her strengthless hands. The fear went out of her eyes—for the old lines were gone from the man's face now, and an older light fighting to return.

"Grace—daughter," he grasped huskily as he came uncertainly forward—"I want to talk to you—I want to talk to you!"

An hour later, Old Mike of the stables answered a call from Molly Martin.

"Just got 'em started to town, mum," he said, pulling at his cap. "Everything's lovely, all three of 'em, the old man, mum, and Miss Dazie, and Dave Clayton, mum."

"He didn't say anything about the horse?"

Old Mike grinned.

"It's little ye could be expectin' him to, mum, he was that excited," came happily. "But I was a-fearin' all th' time. 'Twas a good match at that, mum. And it's a lovely thing for us he's a heavy sleeper. 'Twas an awful time I had gettin' that auld nag of his out of the barn this mornin' an' puttin' in a dupleycate that'd be sure t' bring him t' th' circus grounds. And 'twas fearin' all th' time I was that he'd wonder about th' why an' th' wherefore of a horse runnin' away that could hardly raise wan foot beyanst th' other."

But Molly Martin smiled happily.

"I don't guess he cares now, Mike," she said quietly.

name of Condon, or that you were here on the dynamite case."

"But, honest," I said, "I was never a detective."

"That's all right, my boy. We'll say no more about it until later. When you have wound up this dynamite business and the criminals are all in jail we will talk this all over. I see you are not going to depart from your professional stand until then, and I like you for it."

So it was no use talking. He called his wife in and we talked to Marjorie. They took it for granted that I was Condon and engaged to her, and they said that was all right. So the only hope I had was Sims—Sims and Brixy.

I went into Sim's office and Marjorie with me. The thin faced lawyer was at his desk and he looked up when I came toward him.

"You've got them!" he exclaimed. "You've got them or you wouldn't be here!"

"If you mean those dynamiters," I said, "I have got them. Right here in my pocket. A signed and witnessed confession from one of them."

"Condon," he said, and held out his hand.

"I'm not Condon," I said. "That's not my name."

"Certainly not, but who cares!" he cried. "You are a wonder, no matter what your name is. You've done what we thought was impossible. And I'll say, to my shame, that I thought you were a quitter. I thought they had you scared off the job. When they blackjacked you! When you disappeared so totally for three weeks. And all the time you were working!"

"Sure!" I said. "I was working. I was selling screen door stops over in Illinois! That's how I was working."

"The mysteries of the detective profession are beyond my comprehension," little Sims said. "I don't pretend to understand them. All I know is that you get the $5,000."

"What for?" I asked.

"For getting evidence to convict the dynamiters, of course," he said. He read the paper I had given him. "This will do it," he said. "I'll give you a check now, if you want it."

"No," I said, "I don't want it. I'd like to have it, well enough, but I don't want it, because I'm not Condon. I'm not your detective fellow. I'm not the man you hired. I guess I look like him, but, if you take another look, you'll see I'm a different individual altogether."

So Sims looked at me as if he would bore a hole through me.

"I don't know what the game is," he said, "unless Marjorie here won't stand for detectives, but you're Condon. I don't say I knew you as well as Marjorie here knew you, for it was my job as representative of the league to keep away from you, but you are Condon. I have a keen eye and I'll say you are Condon before any jury in Riverbank county.

"Christmas!" I said. "Won't anybody believe I'm anybody but Condon? This is a nice way to treat a man."

I was sore. Here they were, handing me wads of $300, and beautiful girls, and interests in businesses, and $5,000 rewards, and none of it really coming to me by rights. All of it was coming to Condon.

"Look here!" I said. "Brixy will be here in a minute. Brixy will tell you."

So Brixy came.

"See here!" I said to him. "You tell these people I'm not this man Condon they are all talking about. They want to hand me nearly everything in the town except the First Methodist church and the opera house because I'm Condon, and I'm not Condon. Tell them who I am, Brixy."

"You're Harry P. Grace," Brixy said.

"Sure I am!" I said. "That settles it. Brixy knows."

This man Sims looked at us and tapped on his desk with his fingers, studying us.

"I see!" he said, and then, to Brixy: "You've known him all your life, I suppose?"

"Well, no," Brixy said. "Three or four weeks. We met in one of those cheap room houses in Chicago. I hadn't known him before that."

Sims turned to Marjorie.

"Nothing to worry about," he said to her. "It's the effect of the blow he got on the head and it will pass away, probably. It's what they call amnesia or something. The time and everything tallies up all right; he must have turned up at the place he met this gentleman at just about a week after he got the clip on the head and we lost track of him. You're Condon," he said to me. "Don't worry. It will all come back to you in time."

"It will have to do some great coming, then," I said. I knew the facts, you understand. I knew how I had put in every day of my life."

"Will you do this for me, then?" I asked him. "Telegraph to whoever you hired Condon from and ask where Condon is? Do it for me, will you?"

So he telegraphed. He did not get an answer until afternoon, and by that time the dynamiters were all arrested and in jail. I went to Sims' office with Marjorie and Brixy.

"I got word," he said, and he pushed the telegram across to me.

It said: "Condon disappeared; no trace; are trying to locate."

"Christmas!" I said, when I read it.

"Here's what I wired back," Sims said, and he handed me a slip of paper.

It said: "Condon here, using name of Harry P. Grace. Dynamiters successfully traced and now in jail."

"Christmas!" I said again.

I sat and thought the whole thing over as well as I could. I saw I was up against the thing for fair. They wouldn't let me be anybody but Condon in that town and the only choice I had was to skip out and vanish or take what was coming to Condon.

That was twenty-odd years ago—maybe thirty—you understand. I looked up and saw Marjorie looking at me. Well, you see how I am now—grayish haired, oldish fellow, head of a couple of million dollar concerns and pretty well liked in this town, if I do say it myself. That's how it happened. When I looked up Marjorie was looking at me.

"Aw, Christmas!" I said to myself. "Why not? I've always played straight and lived straight and a man that does that always gets what's coming to him. Maybe what was coming to Condon is what was coming to me. If Condon shows up I'll make it right with him, anyway."

"All right," I said to the three of them; "let it go at that. I'll take what's coming to Condon."

"The check for five thousand?" Sims asked, reaching for his checkbook.

"I wasn't thinking of that," I said, and I put my hand on top of Marjorie's. "I was thinking of something a lot more valuable."

That's why I say a man gets what's coming to him in this world. Unless he gets what's coming to Condon.

Next week an original story entitled "The Spoon the Pig Bit," by Geo. A. Chamberlain, will appear in this section.

The LIFTED MASK by Oney Fred Sweet

THE visitor had been most entertaining during dinner. He had frequently been reminded of incidents and anecdotes picked up in a career that had apparently been full of color. Hod McGrew, as was becoming a gracious host, laughed at some of the gentleman's repartee, but he was undeceived. He was fully prepared for Humison Melton's, "Could I have a few minutes alone with you, Mr. McGrew?"

"No, I'm not interested in your proposition," Hod McGrew said decisively at the end of half an hour's one sided conversation. "I don't care how big a per cent you guarantee, I'm not interested."

Mr. Melton's sharp features twisted nervously at this abrupt turn of what had seemingly been progressing most satisfactorily. He did not continue his arguments. It was not so much McGrew's words of refusal as the tone of the refusal that checked him. Melton knew men and he knew that he had struck a stone wall. He was puzzled, too, considering the line that had been given him on the prospect—"a wild fellow who had suddenly fallen heir to 1,200 acres of middle west farm land."

There was a pause of several moments. Melton broke the silence, a huskiness of sincerity in his voice. "I don't mind telling you, Mr. McGrew, that your refusal to interest yourself in my proposition is a keen disappointment to me. Things have been breaking badly for me of late. I am no longer a young man, as you can see. I have made money, plenty of it, in my day—as much as $40,000 at a crack. I don't suppose you believe that, either."

"On the contrary," replied Hod McGrew, "I do believe that."

Seeing sympathy and understanding in the blue eyes, Melton went on. "It was a gift with me—getting hold of easy money. If I had been content with a reasonable fortune I would not be flitting around the country as I am today. But it was always when I saw my way clear to millions and took a plunge myself that things failed to pan out. We'll forget the stocks I have tried to sell you, McGrew. Could you lend me $500, say for thirty days?"

"And you would figure to pay it back as soon as things break right," smiled Hod McGrew. "You would reason that I'd never miss it. You'd call me an 'old tightwad' if I tried to hold you to your promise. An 'easy mark' if I give it to you, 'a skinflint' if I don't. There are times when it's a mighty fine thing to lend a needy brother a hand, but the borrowing proposition without cold business behind it has been taken advantage of so much that it's been spoiled for the deserving brother when he does come along. As a friendship affair, it's a wonderful enemy maker. You'd never pay me back, Melton."

"No, I don't suppose I ever would," confessed the visitor, "but I had counted on you. I made quite a trip down here. I'm owing a hotel bill in town. I don't see how I'm going to get away from here now. Things have been breaking bad for me of late. You were my last hope."

"Had you been to see Elijah Ellis on down the road here?" asked Mr. McGrew, the tiny lines about his eyes wrinkling humorously. "You must have had Ellis on your list."

Melton smiled, despite his predicament. "Is that old bird as tight-fisted as he's scheduled to be? Whenever I mentioned his name in town folks threw up their hands. It's a fact, is it, that he's still got his first nickel? Hasn't been pried loose of a cent in the thirty years he's been here? He's a hard one if what everybody around here says is true."

"I would hardly call Ellis a spendthrift," admitted Hod McGrew.

"They tell me he's pinched every dollar that's come his way until the eagle has screamed," mourned Melton. "They say he meets with an ax anybody who tries to separate him from any of it. Yes, I've been given his number."

"Don't take things so hard," counseled McGrew. "We'll fix up that hotel bill and transportation out of town. You can keep books, can't you? I need a man badly here for the next thirty days, a man like you. I want to know how much this farm costs me to run a year and just what my profits are, and there's other figuring. What do you say?"

Thus it came to pass that Humison Melton, with a penchant for garnering money for which he toiled not, became duly installed in the Hod McGrew farm house. And be it said to his credit that although he chafed under a fixed wage system, he applied himself dutifully to ledger figures that meant nothing to him beyond giving them proper addition.

Yet, as he checked off each day on the almanac beneath the clock shelf, he sighed. For Humison Melton, alias many other high sounding names, considered that day lost whose low descending sun claimed not a victim fleeced and "done." Many, many times his eyes left the dollar signs on the ledger and roved to the bleak snow covered prairie beyond the kitchen window. Somewhere a fortune waited, somewhere a sucker dwelt.

"Well, Melt, old top!" The fur coated McGrew, coming in from the wintry outdoors, had slapped him on the shoulder.

Humison Melton bent abstractedly until he had finished adding a column. "Slow, awful slow, this sort of thing, McGrew. Do you know where I was a year ago today? Denver. Stopping at the best hotel, champagne, six suits of clothes."

McGrew laughed. Then he said seriously, "You've been with me almost a month now, Melton, and you've worked hard. I'm going to give you shorter hours today without your striking for them. I want you to go visiting with me. I've got to make a call on Elijah Ellis."

"The hard nut, eh?"

"It's one of these 'drive' affairs," explained McGrew. "The committee has listed Ellis and they've made me the goat to try to get him to come across, for once. Neighbor of mine, you know. It's a worthy cause, but I can't appeal to Ellis on that score. To tell the truth, my nerve fails me when I think of that face of his. I want company."

It was but a walk of a mile or so down the road to what Elijah Ellis called home—a shed-like affair located in a clump of woods. The house had never been painted and its boards seemed blacker than usual against the drifted snow. There were only a few acres connected with the place.

McGrew knocked and it was some time before any one came to the door.

"I don't want to bother you, Mr. Ellis," began McGrew, apologetically, "but there is a matter——"

"Come inside."

The three of them were sitting facing each other in the cluttered room. Choosing his words, McGrew tactfully stated his mission. He spoke as one merely going through a formality as a matter of duty, not as one expecting results.

As he listened, Ellis tapped absent-mindedly on the arm of his chair. He seemed to be looking beyond his callers. "I see," he remarked when McGrew had finished.

Humison Melton glanced nervously at McGrew, but McGrew only winked back with as much as to hint that the storm of wrath would soon follow the calm. McGrew was already buttoning the collar of his fur coat again.

"We're only asking you for a small amount, proportionately," he interjected.

Elijah Ellis reached over to the drawer of the table near him and brought out a sheaf of yellowed pages. "Are either of you gentlemen up on poetry?" he asked. "There's a piece here that I wrote over thirty years ago that seems to just fit a day like this—the way the light falls on the snow. But I don't suppose there's any more merit to it now than there was then, though it gave me a lot of pleasure putting it together."

"Poetry, Mr. Ellis?" doubtingly inquired Hod McGrew.

"I used to call it that," the old man smiled. "Only took it up again the last few weeks. You see, I never was of a practical turn of mind. There was money left to me when I was a young fellow and most of it got away from me—just went for this and that and to anybody that asked for it. It was my failing; I couldn't hang onto it. All slipped through my fingers somehow.

"But before it was all gone I came out here where nobody knew me, and I took pains to establish a reputation for being close on money matters. I was just a little harder than any man around here when a note fell due. Instead of writing any more poetry I used my pencil to figure what 6 per cent would mean in the long run. Instead of letting my mind run to rhymes and meter, I acquired a vocabulary in which the main word was 'no.' I've thundered that word a good many times these last thirty years. It came hard at first, but I had to do it. I had to act the part. If I hadn't I would have been broke inside of six months.

"I fought my failing, McGrew. You know how successfully; you know about what I'm worth. Debtors used to come to me for mercy and I met them with flashing eyes and lips hard set and then after they were gone I'd break down. Finally, folks set me down as hard and dealt with me accordingly. But all these thirty years my biggest temptation was to plunge in purely speculative ventures—far off, fine sounding schemes, hundred to one shots that promised fabulous returns. That has been my hardest fight. Gad——"

"My name is Melton, Humison Melton," a voice interrupted eagerly. "I am representing——"

"About that 'drive' you spoke of," the old man went on, "you'll have to see Barnes & Burnam, the bankers, about a check for that. No doubt they'll take care of it if it's a worthy and legitimate cause. You see, about three weeks ago, maybe a month, something happened to me. Queer thing, for the first time in thirty years, the wall that I had built about my natural self suddenly melted. I couldn't play the part I'd taken any longer—just couldn't. There came over me the old failing regarding money matters. But no one came near to borrow, no notes fell due, no opportunity offered. Why, a week ago I would have written a check for all I possess on the flimsiest appeal. So a few days ago, to save myself, I put all my affairs in the hands of the conservative Barnes & Burnam. If you'll see them, Mr. McGrew."

"Don't take it so hard, Melt," soothed Hod McGrew, as the two started back on the frozen road to the McGrew farm.

But Humison Melton refused to be comforted.

The PASSERBY

Jonas Reeves, Clergyman, Enlarges His Experience of One Ring Circuses and Human Nature.

THE moon was low above the Pazos flats, softening the hard, gray lines of the semi-desert, giving to each clump of mesquite and chaparral a filmy, inviting appearance, and converting the jagged, muddy course of the Rio Norde to a thing of shimmering silver. Soft were the lights on the Pazos flats, soft was the air of summer, and soft the cludding of the horses' hoofs as string after string, in their team formations of six and eight, dragged the heavy trucking wagons through the noise effacing sands and on toward Nueva Padre in the shadowy distance.

A wandering thing it was, this long procession of squarely built wagons, its drivers shouting once in a long while, then slouching into their humped, dozing position again; its "pony punks" plodding stodgily, sleepily through the sands, their strings of shetlands following fretfully; its men, lurching on the rear of some wagon lower than the rest, and leading their groups of gray and mottled horses; then far in the rear, squealing pettishly now and then as he felt the prod of the "bull-hook," a tremendous, awkward, shambling shadow in the moonlight—an elephant. A wandering thing indeed, its wagons packed with performers, with "razorbacks" and other workmen, tired enough to sleep in spite of ruts and springless frames; a nomadic, gypsy-like procession, of which few remain in these days of efficiency and speeding railroads, the Molly Martin's World's Best Wagon Shows, bound for its next day's stand.

Time was when the dark red wagons had borne a different name, and when a man sat on the high seat of the pole wagon far in the lead, watching the road for the signals of torn paper, left behind by the route rider, far ahead, to designate a turn or danger.

But now a woman was in his place, small, very, very tired sometimes, but smiling in spite of it; a little woman tanned by sun and wind, while about her eyes were beginning to gather the fine little wrinkles which the years had sent to correspond with the gray that had crept into her hair. A little woman, watching the road, jolting along with the progress of the heavy wagon—and once a year, the Molly Martin's World's Best Wagon Shows played an engagement where there was no tent, no spangled performers, no clowns, no band, only a silent group in a cemetery; some flowers, and the people of the circus who stood awkwardly about a tired little woman, pretending not to see the tears. Then, in the night, the long row of wagons, the flickering torches, the horses plodding faithfully along—and the next day the band would play and the clown sing his song in the one-ring tent again.

That was why the name was no longer that of a man, that was why a woman rode the pole wagon o' nights along the varied roads of Texas where the show had made its route year after year. Sometimes in the security of the driver's familiarity with the route her hands would fold and she would doze—sleep meant much to the hard working little Molly Martin.

Tonight had been one of those times. The soft moonlight, the softness of the air, the comparative smoothness of the sandy road, all had gradually closed her eyes, and she had nodded away the miles.

Suddenly to awaken at the sound of an unfamiliar voice at her side.

"Mrs. Martin!"

"Yes, who's there?" The horses had stopped.

"It's me. Dave Clayton. Jack the Skinner got sick a ways back. I was awake, so I said I'd try to drive for him, and he took my bunk. You slept right through it."

"I must have!" Molly Martin laughed. "Anything wrong?"

"Nothing, only I can't see any markers here, and I don't know which fork to take."

Molly Martin looked about her in the moonlight, then centered her gaze toward the deceptive silver of the Rio Norde.

"Take the left," she ordered. "Follow the river all the way." And the long procession moved slowly on.

It was more than an hour before either spoke again, then the tall, serious faced young man who held the reins leaned thoughtfully forward.

"Mrs. Martin."

"Yes."

"Have you been noticing Dazie Glennon lately?"

"A good deal." Molly Martin studied the shadowy outlines of the sober face. "I've been noticing some one else, too."

"Who?"

"Yourself. You two are in love."

The volunteer teamster smiled sheepishly.

"Don't guess there's any secret about that," he admitted. "But I meant something else. Have you paid much attention to our riding act lately?"

"Yes. It's off; that is, Dazie's part in it."

"You've seen it, then?" There was hope in the young performer's tone. "It's liable to be off a lot worse, Mrs. Martin. And it's the feature act of the show!"

Molly Martin watched the horses a moment.

"I know it. Doesn't she care?"

"That's just it! She does—but she can't help it. There's only one person who can do that. Yourself. Switch our route. Put some other date in to take the place of Pampas. Please! Won't you, Mrs. Martin—for her?"

The keen brain of Molly Martin had leaped into activity.

"Pampas," she queried, "We're in there on the lot of a Sunday and show there on Monday. The town hasn't had a show in nine years. It means a lot of money to me. Why should I cut it?"

"Please," the voice was pleading, "It'll mean a lot to Dazie if you will! And she'll do better work! I'll promise you that—I'll give you my word on it; she'll get the old snap back the minute she hears about it! It'll mean a lot if you'll——"

"Why?" Molly Martin shot the question sharply. Dave hesitated, changing the reins from one hand to the other, his eyes centered hard on the faint outlines of the road before him.

"I—I can't tell you," came finally. "We're engaged—sometime—if she can get over a few little things that's troubling her we'll get married—and she told me in confidence. I can't break a confidence, even for her, can I, Mrs. Martin?"

"Hardly. You don't have to, Dave. I just wanted to be sure."

"She told you?"

Molly Martin's features, dim in the moonlight, showed a smile.

"A long time ago. She didn't have to tell me much, Dave. I learned it all from some one else—from the man who was responsible for everything. I guess she's told you that, too?"

But Dave shook his head.

"I never let her."

"And carried your own opinions?" Molly Martin's voice had a certain snap to it. "You were afraid of what she'd tell—is that it?"

The man nodded. A kindly, wrinkled hand went out in the moonlight, and touched the larger one of the equestrian.

"You needn't be, Dave. She's a good little girl, Dazie is—good enough to even make Tom Blazier know he had a conscience, and that's a good deal. Tom died on our show, you know."

"Was he the one?" A sullen tone of enmity was in the man's voice. Molly Martin pressed his hand a bit tighter.

"Easy, Dave," she said quietly. "He's dead. And he did what he could to make up. It was his money that bought the horses she used on this show, Dave."

The man made a gesture of impatience.

"All that kind of cuts, Mrs. Martin. If you'd start at the beginning——"

"That's going seven years back." The little showwoman's eyes were on the road ahead. "And it isn't much of a story at that. Seven years ago, and Dazie's only 23 now, so you can figure for yourself. You know how Tom was—and what he was, gambler, liar, and a good deal worse. And suppose you had been a 16 year old girl who'd never been anywhere, never seen anything, never known anything but a straight laced life that was so narrow that it almost cramped you to breathe. Suppose that you met a man who wore better clothes and had better manners than any one you'd ever seen—and Tom had 'em, you know that. And suppose he'd made love to you, a girl, full of romance and dream pictures and all that sort of thing? I don't care who it is, Dave, there's some one man in the life of every woman who can argue her into most anything. She may not love him; she can even know him for what he is, in her waking moments. But she has mighty few of them—she's walking in a dream and leading a dream life, and not seeing whether there are any markers on the road ahead or not.

"Tom wanted something to say, something to amuse himself with. He wasn't even serious enough to tell her the real name of the show he was with. Time had been heavy on his hands and he had lightened it with lies about himself and by making love to a girl who believed every word he said. There are times, Dave, when I believe Tom Blazier was innocently bad, if there can be such a thing. I know this—that he didn't expect her to believe all his lies. A man generally tells the truth when he's dying. He had spun her some sort of a yarn about being the half owner of the Hippodrome Shows, and about owning automobiles and private cars and spending his time in California, and only visiting the show long enough to relieve it of its money. He told her to come to him and they would be married."

There was silence. At last a man's voice, hard, rasping.

"Well?"

"He was dying with pneumonia when we got the letter—he took down about three days after he came back to the show. She'd showed up over at the Hippodrome and some one over there knew Tom Blazier well enough to figure out what was up. They wrote to me—and I showed him the letter. That's about all, Dave, except that the few hundred dollars Tom had went to try to make up for what he'd done—and I promised him the night he died, that I'd go get her and bring her over here and try to pay his debt for him. I thought it would be easy—that she'd go home. But she'd burned her bridges behind her—and she was afraid. I didn't even try to fix things up. I bought her horses with the money Tom had left, changed her name, and taught her to ride. That was seven years ago. Now we're headed for Pampas next Sunday and Monday."

"Deliberately?"

The woman pretended not to hear.

"I'm going to leave the show for a day or so tomorrow morning, but I haven't said anything to any one except the lot manager. I wish you wouldn't mention it."

Dave Clayton nodded and slapped the reins again.

"I won't," came soberly, and through the night the two rode on in silence. The next morning the Molly Martin's World's Best Wagon Shows sent its trifling little one ring "big top" into the air, its brass throated band blared its way along the unpaved streets, its grimacing clown shouted and guffawed, but there was one person absent from the roll call. Molly Martin had departed at dawn, for somewhere unnamed, "on business."

"Business" which halted her before the bulletin board of a neglected appearing frame church in Pampas late that afternoon, held her there a moment as she read the announcement of the next Sunday's sermon, drew her closer, that she might read the worn printing which gave the name and address of the pastor, then sent her hurrying down the street.

Two blocks away she halted, in front of a rather severe old old frame house, and waited until a tall, grave featured man had alighted slowly from a worn old buggy, carefully tied the listless, flea-bitten horse to the hitching rack and approached the awry palings of the ancient picket fence. Molly Martin smiled.

"Pastor Reeves?"

Jonas Reeves, obsessed with the thoughts of his Sunday sermon, halted absently.

"Yes."

"Could I talk to you in your study?"

They went within, the minister watching her with the wondering look of one who may be called upon for almost any service from baptism to the last confession. But Molly Martin smiled away his doubts.

"It may be a small thing to you," she said when they had reached the big, book-lined room, "but I was passing the church, and saw your sermon announced for next Sunday. It's to be about the circus."

"Decidedly."

"May I ask whether you are going to tell about its good points?"

The minister peaked his fingers, his eyes narrowed.

"Has it any?"

"Quite a number."

"May I ask who you are?" The question came with sharp curiosity. Molly Martin shrugged her shoulders.

"Only a passerby. But I wondered whether you were going to make the mistake of——"

"I am going to make no mistake in what I have to say. I intend to tell my congregation of the pitfalls that surround glamour, and use the circus as my basis. I know of no better—tinsel and deception, glamour and guilt—those are to be two of my similes, and I believe they are well founded."

"On what?"

"Experience."

"You've been around circuses then?"

"Never."

"And yet you are going to preach on something you don't know anything about?" Molly Martin had risen in defense of her calling. "Is that fair? I don't mind telling you that I'm a circus woman—and I'm proud of it! It's my circus that's coming in here next Sunday. I'm——"

But the man had risen also.

"I didn't have to go to a circus to gain my experience," he said coldly, "it came to me. I'm sorry that I can't listen——"

"But——"

"I am sorry, but my mind is made up! I believe I know what I am talking about—I naturally would expect you to be offended. We all are when some one talks of our shortcomings. I have based my observations on irrefutable evidence and——"

"Listen!" Molly Martin was looking straight into his eyes, "You're a man, play a man's game! I'm not afraid of you—or any one else. I'm not afraid to let you hear canvasmen swear when they put up the tents. Men swear when they dig sewers, but you let them in your church. I'm not afraid to let you really know that women of the circus wear tights and yet are mothers. Strange, isn't it, that they never try to defend themselves? And that there are times when men steal—and fight. Every word of it's true—they'll flaunt it in front of you. And do you know why?"

"Godlessness!"

"Helplessness!" Molly Martin smiled again, "because people expect them to. Did you ever beat a dog? If it's a cur it will cringe and whine. If it's a thoroughbred you'll never get its confidence again until you've petted it. That's all. I've come to ask you a favor, pastor—won't you come out to my circus? Won't you look around for yourself? Won't you see if there isn't as much good as there is bad, and as much Godliness as Godlessness? Won't you——"

The minister raised a hand.

"You've been talking on the surface, madam. I'm sorry, but my observations have come from a deeper——"

"Suppose I talked to you about that?"

She had spoken the question quickly and with an implication in the tone. The minister eyed her quizzically.

"I hardly believe——"

"Suppose I told you that I knew the reason you're going to preach this sermon Sunday? Suppose I said that this hatred you have for the circus didn't exist before seven years ago and that——" The minister moved quickly to his desk and fumbled with the jumbled papers there.

"I'm afraid our conversation's not getting us anywhere. If you'll excuse me——"

"And let you do an injustice to yourself and to your——"

WHICH ?

THE STORY THUS FAR—On the evening of the third day of her honeymoon in a strange hotel Betty Le Baron is disconcerted by her husband's abrupt desertion of her on the plea of a vague business engagement. Finding herself too lonely and frightened to read, she decides to change her gown, and is in the midst of doing this when Bob Le Baron returns with John Rush, an old friend. Betty opens the door of a clothes press to hang up her discarded gown, and out tumbles the body of a beautiful young woman with a knife through her heart. Betty's screams bring Le Baron and Rush hurrying into the bedroom, to be followed a moment later by a mysteriously self-possessed girl, who asks a few calm questions, points out a little black cross on the woodwork of the closet door, and then disappears without revealing her identity. Rush thinks he has seen her before. When the police come, Le Baron stubbornly refuses to explain his absence early in the evening. Rush recalls that he had seen a bellboy hand Bob a note which seemed to disturb him greatly, but says nothing to the police about this or about the mysterious girl investigator. The hotel employés, brought up in an effort to identify the body, declare that none of them has ever seen the murdered woman, but the head waiter attracts Rush's attention by fumbling nervously with a handkerchief. And when Rush leaves to take dictation from his employer, Harrison Hardy, he glances back and finds that the little black cross on the closet door has disappeared. The murdered woman is identified as Olga Ordinoff, a Russian. The name proves familiar to Hardy, who exclaims, "Then they got the $2,000,000 already." But he refuses to say more. Rush and a Miss Anna Blair decide to join forces to solve the crime riddle.

THIRD INSTALLMENT.

Rush Finds Himself in Love.

LE BARON laughed, a short, ugly laugh. "I don't know who Olga Ordinoff is. I never saw her in Russia or anywhere else. About the note, I might as well tell it since Rush has mentioned it. I'll tell you two where I was last night, but it must go no further. Mrs. Le Baron must never find out. I was not out of the hotel at all last night."

"I knew that," said Rush. "You were natless in the elevator."

"I guess I'm a pretty poor liar," said Le Baron grimly. "That note was from a woman, a widow with whom I was once mixed up. She lives in the Ritzmore, and recognized me. She sent me a note asking me to come to see her. Like a fool I went. I wanted to hush her up. She kept me talking for hours, out of pure malice, I guess. That's all there was to it, but Mrs. Le Baron must never find out about it. I know women. My wife will forgive my being locked up for a murder I did not commit, but she never would forgive my having gone to see that widow. I can explain away my arrest, but I never could explain that."

Smith's penetrating eyes never had left Le Baron's face as he was speaking.

"I believe you," he said tersely. "We will find the murderer and your wife never need know about the widow. Come, Mr. Rush, we will return to the hotel."

"Do you think you can find the murderer?" Rush asked anxiously as a taxi bore them away from the police station.

"Of course," said Hugh Smith, with a cocksureness that was amazing to his companion. "I wanted to be sure that Le Baron had no part in it. He is telling the truth. What then? The murder was committed by some one who could enter Miss Ordinoff's rooms without arousing suspicions. Who would that be? A waiter, of course."

Arriving at the hotel, to Rush's surprise, Smith made no attempt to inspect the scene of the crime. Instead he demanded at once to see the manager.

"I am making a private investigation in behalf of Mr. Le Baron," he explained, "at the request of his friend, Mr. Rush. If you wish the mystery immediately solved, you will have brought for me a list of the waiters and the hotel records of yesterday."

His calm self-assurance was effective in stirring Mr. Edgar to activity. In a few minutes the investigator had before him the loose-leaf sheets that recorded the activities of the hotel for the day before. For a quarter of an hour he studied the sheets critically and then turned to the manager.

"Is there a detective upstairs still in the Le Barons' rooms?"

"Two of them," said Mr. Edgar.

"Tell one of them to come down here."

"Here, you," he said contemptuously, as the police detective entered. "Get your chief on the phone at once. Tell him this is the story of the murder." He spoke sharply and decisively, as though he expected and was used to having prompt obedience. "Miss Olga Ordinoff arrived at the hotel at 5:45 last night. She was assigned to apartment 806. At 7:15 she telephoned for a waiter. Waiter 47 answered her summons, bringing the dinner card. He returned with the meal she had ordered at 7:45. He saw that she was alone here. He saw her jewels carelessly displayed on the dresser. He determined to rob her. Returning to the kitchen, he picked up and secreted a sharp knife. At 8:45, the records show, he returned to remove the dishes. He attacked the girl. She fled into the corridor, with him in pursuit. She saw the door opposite ajar and ran in there. He followed and killed her as she battled with him. The clothes press offered a convenient hiding place for the body. He thrust it in there and, returning to the girl's rooms, stole her jewels. Carrying the dishes downstairs he left the hotel."

He turned abruptly to another sheet, that giving a list of the names and addresses of the hotel's dining room employés.

"Waiter 47 is Emil Lehman. He lives at 603 Third avenue. Arrest him and you will have the murderer."

"I'll telephone the inspector at once," said the detective, evidently much impressed by Hugh Smith's air of authority.

"That's all," said Smith, turning to Rush. "Your friend will soon be free. Most of these cases are simple. I return to my office."

Rejoicing at this rapid solution of the mystery which promised speedy freedom for his friend, Rush hastened up to Harrison Hardy's suite to report developments to his employer. He found him in conference with Mayor Jackson, both apparently so absorbed by the topic of discussion that they did not hear his entrance.

"I tell you, Jackson," Hardy was saying heatedly, "your detectives are no good. Only last night, right here in this hotel, a woman was murdered, and it is a mystery——"

"A mystery that has been solved," interrupted Rush.

"What's that?" cried Hardy, sharply.

"The police have made an arrest in that case already," interposed the mayor, "a man named Le Baron."

"Le Baron didn't do it," sneered Hardy.

"No," added Rush, "the murderer was Emil Lehman, a waiter, who served dinner in Miss Ordinoff's rooms. He murdered her for her jewels. The police are on his track now."

"Humph," grunted Hardy, unbelievingly; "humph, a waiter. We'll see. That will be all, Rush. I won't need you again today."

Accepting this obvious dismissal, Rush left the room rather unwillingly, it must be confessed, for he was all keyed up over the new developments, and felt that he just must discuss them with some one. He went to the Le Baron apartments, and asked the nurse in attendance there to break the news to Mrs. Le Baron that her husband's innocence would soon be established, and that he would quickly be freed. He thought of visiting the police station again to see Le Baron, but rejected that plan as unwise. Mr. Hardy had counseled him against getting mixed up in the case any further than was necessary. Miss Blair had said she would be at home at 4. He looked at his watch. It was just 1, and he remembered that he had not yet had luncheon. A daring idea came to him. Perhaps Miss Blair might be in her rooms. He knew that she would be keenly interested in what had occurred. He called her on the phone, and to his great delight found her at home.

"I have so much to tell you," he said, "I was wondering if you would join me at luncheon."

"I'm afraid not," she said, her eager tones betraying her interest despite her refusal. "You remember we breakfasted together in the hotel this morning."

"How about the Casino in the park?" he suggested with sudden inspiration.

"That would be splendid," she cried enthusiastically. "I'll meet you there in twenty minutes."

Hastily calling a taxi he drove to the Casino, and, selecting a table near the driveway in a corner apart, he eagerly awaited her coming. He decided to tell her everything. Her shrewd deduction that it had been a waiter's crime convinced him that her logical mind would be of great aid to him in following up the case. He was still puzzled by his employer's concern over Olga Ordinoff's death. Perhaps Anne Blair could aid him in clearing up the phases of the mystery that still perplexed him.

Presently she approached with that frank air of camaraderie that had so appealed to him at their previous meeting. There was no trace of self-consciousness in her manner and she was frankly glad to be there.

"While I'm no prude," she said as she sat down, "I don't like to get myself talked about even by hotel servants. Eating together twice in one day in the Ritzmore might have attracted notice to us."

"You're quite right," he replied, "but I want to congratulate you on your wonderful intuition. You said it was a waiter's crime, and the great Hugh Smith agrees with you. He told the police a few minutes ago to look for Emil Lehman, a waiter."

"Really?"

"Yes, Smith arrived at his opinion by studying the hotel records. They showed that Lehman had three times been in Miss Ordinoff's apartment."

"Tell me everything," she commanded.

He described in detail his visit to Hugh Smith's office, their journey to the police station, the explanation Le Baron had given of his whereabouts the evening before, and of their return to the hotel and Smith's searching examination of the records that had led to his deduction that the murderer must have been the waiter.

"So," he concluded, "your deduction that it was done by a waiter was correct, even though you jumped to conclusions, and suspected that it was a result of a plot. It proves to have been just a murder for robbery."

"Say rather," she corrected, "that Hugh Smith thinks it was an ordinary murder for robbery."

"Then you do not agree with him?" cried Rush in amazement.

She shook her head and wrinkled her brows thoughtfully.

"It was something more than that. I am certain of it. Even if you had not told me of Mr. Hardy's strange interest in the case and the money he mentioned, Hugh Smith's glib reconstruction of what happened last night had easily detectible flaws."

"I don't understand."

"Imagine myself in Miss Ordinoff's place, alone in that hotel room last night. A waiter tries to throttle me, to rob me. What would I do?"

"Of course you would resist."

"No, I'd do what any woman would do under such circumstances. I'd scream. I'd scream at the top of my voice. If Miss Ordinoff ran out of the room and across the corridor into Le Baron's rooms she would have been screaming at the top of her voice. The floor clerk would have heard her. The occupants of other rooms along the corridor would have heard her. I'd have heard her myself in our apartment. Now, nobody heard any screams."

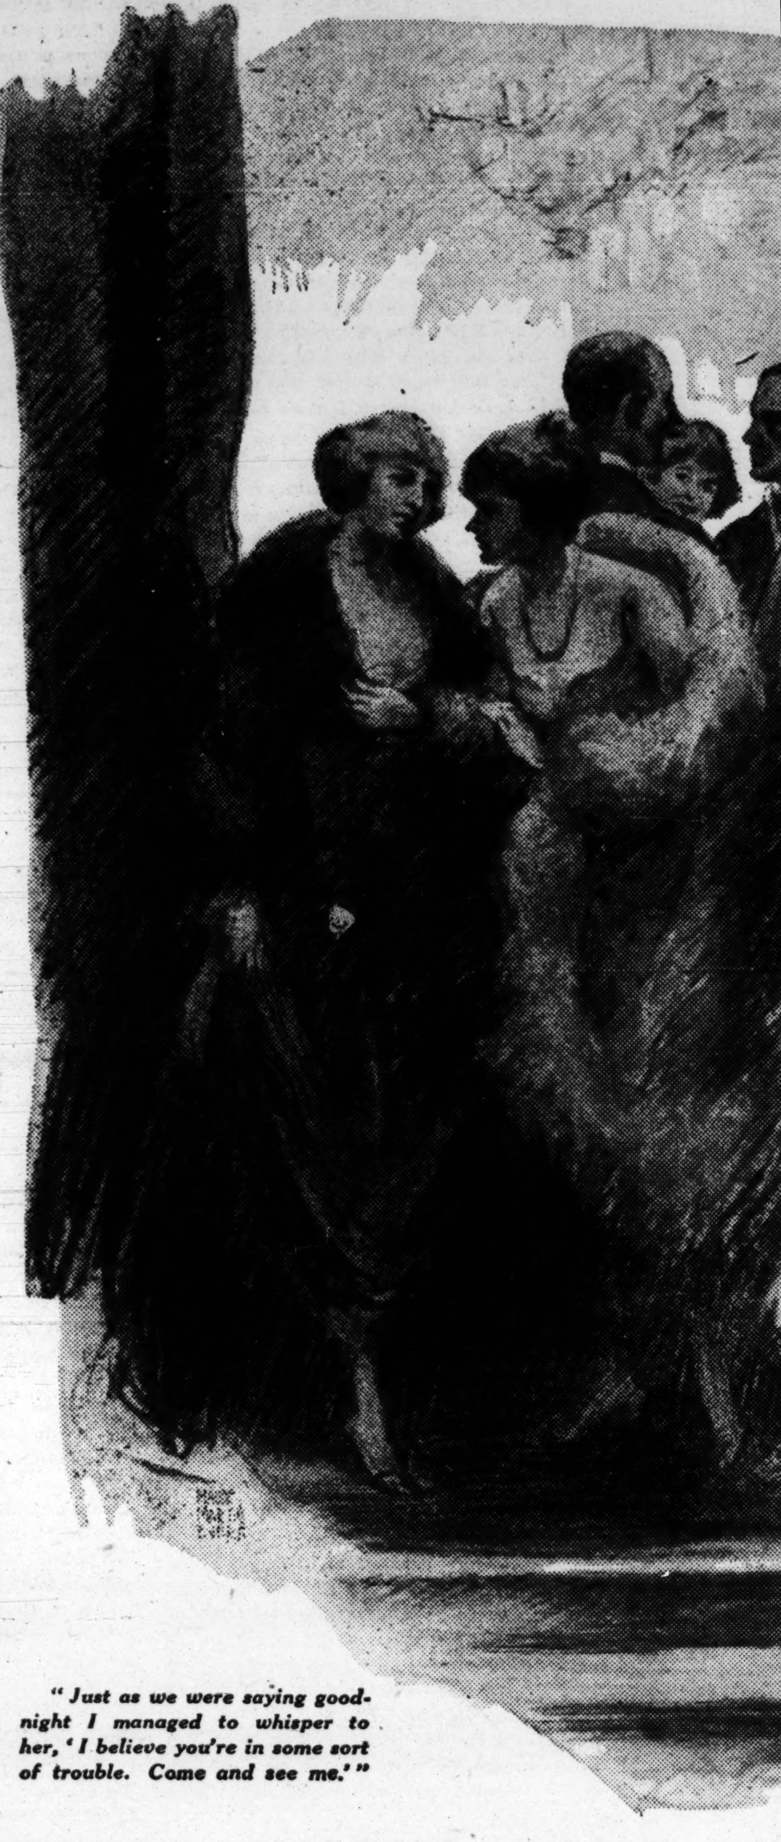
"That's so," said Rush, perplexedly.

"Now, then, either Miss Ordinoff did not rush out into the corridor, as Smith suggests, or she didn't scream."

"What do you think did happen, then?"

"I suspect," said Miss Blair thoughtfully, "that she was killed in her own rooms before she had a chance to cry out. It looks to me as if a deliberate attempt was made to cast suspicion of the murder on Mr. Le Baron. I am positive that Miss Ordinoff's body was carried in there after she had been killed. Probably Hugh Smith is right that the actual crime was committed by this waiter, but I am convinced that some other brain, some brain more intelligent than the ordinary waiter's, conceived the crime and directed the murder."

"Whose?" asked her companion.



"Just as we were saying good-night I managed to whisper to her, 'I believe you're in some sort of trouble. Come and see me.'"

"I don't know," she answered, thoughtfully, "I don't know—yet."

A newsboy passed crying the evening papers, and Rush summoned him to the table. Together they eagerly scanned the first page. Under flaring headlines was a brief bulletin:

Emil Lehman, a waiter, 40 years old, living at 603 Third avenue, a rooming house, at 2 p. m. today shot himself through the head as the police arrived to arrest him for the Ordinoff murder in the Ritzmore hotel. His clothing was packed and he evidently was preparing for flight. On a scrap of paper beside him he had scrawled in pencil: "I killed her." In his valise were found secreted several valuable rings and a diamond bar pin. Lehman had occupied a room at this address for only three days and nothing was known there of his affairs.

In the paper were also dispatches from Philadelphia which said that Olga Ordinoff was the daughter of a former imperial Russian general. Her father had been killed in the revolution, and she and her mother, escaping to America, for more than a year had been living quietly in a suburb of Philadelphia. They appeared to be comfortably off. On the day before the girl had gone to New York on a shopping trip.

"Mr. Le Baron was only in Vladivostok, wasn't he?" asked Miss Blair.

"Yes, he was there for a month. He went by way of Seattle."

"See how absurd it would have been to suspect him because he had been there. It says here that the Ordinoffs came from Petrograd by way of Stockholm. He never had been within several thousand miles of the Ordinoff home in Russia."

"It doesn't pay to jump at conclusions, does it?" admitted Rush.

"It certainly doesn't," agreed Miss Blair, "and yet I'm still jumping to the conclusion that this girl's murder was a plot. There was that funny little black cross——"

"Oh," cried Rush. "I forgot to tell you about that. It's gone!"

"What?" cried the girl. "Gone!"

He nodded.

"Just as I was leaving the room last night, after the police had all the hotel servants up trying to get the girl identified, I looked at the door again, and the cross wasn't there."

"Who could have wiped it off?"

"I don't know. It just wasn't there."

"Think," cried the girl. "Think. Who was in the room? Who was near the door? Who could have done it?"

"Let me see," said Rush thoughtfully. "None of the detectives was near the door, except when they held it open looking at the place where the body had been hidden. The Le Barons were on the other side of the room. The clerks just filed in and out. O!——"

He stopped short, and a sudden light of comprehension came into his face.

"What is it?" cried his companion, eagerly. "Tell me."

"I remember now," he said thoughtfully. "Meyer, the head waiter, all the time he was in the room stood in front of that door. He had a handkerchief in his hands. He kept twisting it about. I thought he was just nervous. I remember I saw him once raise it to his lips, and another time put his hand behind his back. I wonder if he could have erased it? Yes, it must have been he who did it?"

For a moment they both of them sat there in silence, trying to fathom the meaning of this.

"Mr. Rush," said Miss Blair, speaking with conviction, "I know I am right. This poor girl's death was the result of a plot. We must find out who directed that waiter to kill her. We must find out why she was killed. We must ascertain what Mr. Hardy knew about her. We must discover what he meant by that exclamation of his about the money. We must try to ascertain the significance of that little black cross and why it was erased. I'm crazy to get at the bottom of all this. It's the first time I ever have had an opportunity of the sort. It's the kind of thing I adore. You will help me. We'll work together and solve it, won't we? Say you will."

"I will," said Rush, with all the solemnity of an oath, inwardly delighting at the prospect such an association would give him for increased intimacy with this charming young woman, and little dreaming whither and into what black terrors the path on which they were so eagerly setting out would lead them.

Inasmuch as the waiter's suicide amounted to a practical confession of guilt, the police lost no time in releasing Le Baron with such apologies as they could make. His return to his wife's bedside with his reputation cleared was all that was needed to restore her in health and spirits. Fortunately, too, for her husband not a hint had reached her of the errand that had caused him to absent himself on the night of the murder, so their interrupted honeymoon now continued blissfully.

Le Baron, exuberantly joyful over his escape from what had promised to be a most disagreeable entanglement, insisted on giving a dinner to celebrate. Rush, of course, was asked and had suggested that Miss Blair, too, be invited, trusting that her interest in the mystery would be sufficient to induce her to waive the informality of her acquaintance with the Le Barons. They had had a merry evening, six of them, dinner at the Plaza, a theater afterward, and a snack and a dance later at the cabaret.

"Did you notice that poor little Dushane girl," said Miss Blair to her escort the minute they had left the others and gotten into a taxi. "She's frightened to death about something."

"Probably she's terrified at the thought of marrying that Italian count," suggested Rush.

"Don't be silly," she retorted. "That has been her life's ambition, to marry a foreigner of title. She's pitifully happy about that and imagines herself very much in love with him. It is something else that's troubling her."

"Pooh! pooh!" scoffed Rush. "I'm afraid you are overworking your deductive faculties since we began investigating the Ordinoff case."

"If you would only learn to observe closely you would have seen it yourself."

"Have seen what?"

"Didn't you notice all through dinner how her fingers kept twitching and how she kept picking at the lace of her costume? Every time a waiter bent over her shoulder she gave a start."

"Schoolgirl nerves."

"It's more than that. In the box at the theater when her face was in repose I studied her. She never heard a word of the play. Her mind was far away, absorbed in something the very thought of which terrifies her. Every time I glanced in her direction she seemed to be seeing hidden horrors."

"But what has she to fear?" cried Rush. "She has everything in the world to make her happy. Her father left her a lot of money. She hasn't a relative in the world to bother her. She has chosen the husband of the sort you say she wanted. Count Guido de Carlo seems a delightful chap as Italians go. He has a fine war record and a distinguished title. A lot of society matrons have been trying to capture him for their daughters. A girl of 22, protected by her wealth and her chaperon, isn't likely to have any specters rising from her past to terrify her."

"Who can tell?" said his companion, a queer little pucker that gathered between her dark curving eyebrows alone indicating that her mind was absorbed with the problem she herself had advanced.

That the cycle of existence of either of them should suddenly have swung into the orbit of Ruthina Dushane was peculiar, to say the least. A week ago they had known neither her nor each other. Mrs. Le Baron it was who had brought them all together. She and Ruthina Dushane had attended the same finishing school and a chance meeting in a hat shop had revived their acquaintance, so Miss Dushane and her suitor had been invited to round out the party.

"Tell me, Mr. Rush," Miss Blair asked, suddenly rousing herself from her profound study, "how much do you know about Ruthina Dushane?"

"Only what everybody knows—what has been in the papers. Old Tom Dushane was a mysterious roughneck who turned up thirty-odd years ago with a fortune. He was supposed to have been a seafaring man and to have made it in pearls or piracy or something like that. He built himself a palace up on the Hudson, and when he was 50 married a chorus girl. She tried to play the society game, but every one snubbed her. She gave him a daughter, led him a dog's life, and finally eloped with an actor. She died a year or two afterward. When old Tom passed out a couple of years ago he left everything to his daughter—ten millions, they say it was."

"It would not surprise me in the least," said Anne Blair thoughtfully, "if some one wasn't trying to blackmail her, attempting to extort money from her."

"The count's after her money, of course. He certainly is not marrying her for her beauty."

As he spoke Rush mentally contrasted the appearance of the heiress with that of the charming girl beside him. While from her chorus girl mother Ruthina Dushane had inherited a cupid's bow mouth and baby blue eyes, her hair was a coarse nondescript mane that no skill of coiffuring could possibly make attractive. In figure she was slight and thin chested, but her great, unshapely hands and thick ankles marked her for old Tom's daughter. Anne Blair, on the contrary, no matter how she was gowned, always looked the patrician. She had wonderfully soft, intelligent brown eyes that looked out from a thoughtful forehead, shaded and softened by great masses of well kept dark hair. Her fingers were long and tapering and her wrists, ankles, and feet were small and dainty.

"Certainly Count Guido wants her money," she admitted. "All Italians marry with that in consideration, but she will gladly surrender her fortune to him. All her life she has been starving for two things—affection and social recognition. She expects him to give her both. Whatever it is she is afraid of it is not her approaching marriage."

"Well, I don't see that we can do anything about it."

"I'm not so sure. Just as we were saying good-night I managed to whisper to her, 'I believe you're in some sort of trouble. Come and see me. Perhaps I can help you.'"

"What did she say?"

"Not a word. The tears welled up in those big blue eyes of hers and she gave me a look of gratitude, but I feel sure she'll come."

"I doubt it."

Miss Blair looked out from the taxi window, trying to recognize the buildings they were passing.

"My, we're nearly home," she cried as a familiar corner came into view. "Tell me, did anything new happen today about the case?"

"Not a thing."

"What about Mr. Hardy? Has he let slip anything more about the missing money?"

"Not a word. He went to Philadelphia this afternoon."

"That's funny. The Ordinoff girl came from there."

"I don't believe that has anything to do with his going there. He is a director in several companies and for years he has been going over there to attend meetings and dinners. Still, it is worth looking into."

"Has he seen the mayor again?"

"I don't think so. He always makes appointments to meet him through me."

"What about the head waiter? Have you succeeded in learning anything more about him? I'm sure it must have been he who rubbed out that mark on the door."

"I have been watching him every chance I get. If he is in any way involved in the Ordinoff murder he certainly is a cool one. He goes about in that condescending way the same as ever. There is one thing I have noticed, though. He seems to be interested in us."

"In us!" cried the girl incredulously.

"Yes," said Rush, "in us. The two times that we have happened to be together in the dining room I noticed that he was constantly hovering about our table as if he was trying to overhear our conversation."

"We must be careful not to attract attention to ourselves. We must not meet in the dining room again."

"O, I say!" cried Rush, alarmed at the prospect of losing such an interesting table companion.

"No," insisted Miss Blair, "it will not do at all."

"But," he protested, "I must see you again. We must talk over the case. I am apt to find out something important about Miss Ordinoff. I've just got to see you."

"You can telephone me, can't you?" she suggested, smiling mischievously at his perturbation? "And besides," she whispered as he was helping her out of the taxi, "there are plenty of other eating places besides the Ritsmore in New York."

The look of gratitude he gave her surely was sufficient reward for her kindly suggestion, for as he escorted her to her door and bade her good-night Rush was in an ecstasy of delight. As he strode down the corridor and took the elevator to his own apartment he was walking on air. He construed her last remark to mean that she liked his society, and his heart glowed at the thought.

Each time that he had talked with Anne Blair he had found himself more and more fascinated by her charm of manner and more deeply impressed by her mentality. Hitherto he had been inclined to attribute her interest in his society to her eagerness to solve the mystery of the Russian girl's death, but now he felt encouraged in the opinion that she really liked him for himself.

Was she, he wondered, heart free? At their first meeting he had observed that she wore no engagement ring. It seemed strange that a young woman of her pleasing personality and position in life should not be surrounded with suitors. Surely there must be some one in whom she was interested. There was one man, he remembered now, of whom he had heard her speak, some Capt. Dudley, apparently abroad with the army of occupation. Somewhat to his own amazement he found himself hoping that there was nothing serious between Miss Blair and this man in Europe.

Vaguely he began to wonder if there would be any chance for him in Miss Blair's heart. Hitherto he never had thought of marrying, in fact had been inclined to self-congratulation on his care free bachelor existence. But somehow the spectacle of Bob Le Baron and his bride together had stirred him strangely. He found himself wondering whether the happiness they showed in each other's society was sincere. All at once he came to a realization that his own mode of life was futile and terribly lonesome. And what a wonderful wife Anne Blair would make.

But, he cogitated, how silly of him even to think of her in that light! What had he to offer as a matrimonial prospect? He had a good salary, to be sure, and some small savings besides, but his time was never his own. Generous though Harrison Hardy was in money matters to those who served him, in other respects he was a hard taskmaster. It was his constant demand that the personal affairs of his employés never should be permitted to interfere with his own convenience. He would hardly tolerate a married man in his service, and for his private secretary to contemplate matrimony was wholly out of the question. Mr. Hardy wanted a man to whom he could dictate letters at midnight, or send to the coast at a moment's notice.

So long as he retained his present position Rush realized it was worse than useless to let his thoughts run to the taking of a wife, but an inspiring thought brought consolation to him. Perhaps he might induce Mr. Hardy to find a place for him in one of the financial institutions he controlled. With a fair salary and regular hours he might——

What was that?

As he mused he had arrived at the door of the apartment he shared with his employer. Just as he was about to insert his key he stopped short and listened intently. By rights the apartment should be unoccupied, yet surely he had heard something, the sound of some one moving about on the other side of the door. Softly removing his key he stooped and applied his eye to the keyhole.

EARLY SPRING BLOUSES HAVE KIMONO SLEEVES

by Corinne Lowe

This department appears every day in The Daily Tribune.

FASHION'S BLUE BOOK

NEW YORK.—(Special Correspondence.)—The blouse is a kind of Pied Piper that has drawn all other garments after it. For instance, the overblouse with its short sleeves and peplum has proved so popular that whole costumes exploit the idea and some of the most stunning "dresses" shown for midwinter have skirt of one fabric and bodice of another.

The overblouse has even consented to become a wrap. Witness some of the new blouses of heavy duvetyn that take the place of sweater or silk coatee for wear with separate skirt.

The blouse proper remains meanwhile in higher favor than ever. This is not strange. There is the zest of blocks about the overblouse. One never tires of seeing how many costumes one can build out of a few waists and one skirt.

Just at present the kimono sleeve seems to be steadily gaining in popularity. One notes this feature in all varieties of blouses, and all of the four waist models which we illustrate on this page emphasize the fancy. The short sleeve has apparently come to stay.

Another new feature of the latest bodices is a revival of the stand-offish collar that is raised a little in the back. Some of these borrow a cowl-like air, as, for example, the second model from the left. Of course, the round Dutch neck is used frequently, and so is the surplice front. But in both imported frocks and waists I have noted a tendency to go back to the neck line of several seasons ago.

The first of these models here is made of one of the supervoiles. It comes in the toast tint inspired by Paris and which, together with ecru and flesh color, are now being widely exploited in georgette and cottons. The vestee is of the same fabric, but it is laid in plaits of a most original treatment. From the coral tinted buckles of the girdle depend small tabs intended to satisfy the most reasonable of peplum appetites.

In blouses there is always a tendency to let georgette do it. However, this accustomed fabric lately has had a strong rival in tricolette, both plain and figured. The second model from the left is made of this material in rose color, and a yoke of lighter tint is attached by faggoting in rose colored floss. There is, by the way, a passion for fagoting just now, and one finds it done on lingerie frocks, blouses of all descriptions, and even on street frocks.

Looping the anything seems at present one of the designers' favorite sports. Quantities of ribbons are used on every kind of garment—loops of ribbon contrasting to the dress, edge panels, and the oval apron tunics of which one sees so much; they finish off neck lines, and sleeves, and pockets, and often they give the only touch of bouffancy to a frock otherwise slim as a fishing rod. Buttonholes are worked of ribbon; lattice work on taffeta frocks is carried out through this medium, and ribbons have become an integral part of the finest handmade blouses from abroad.

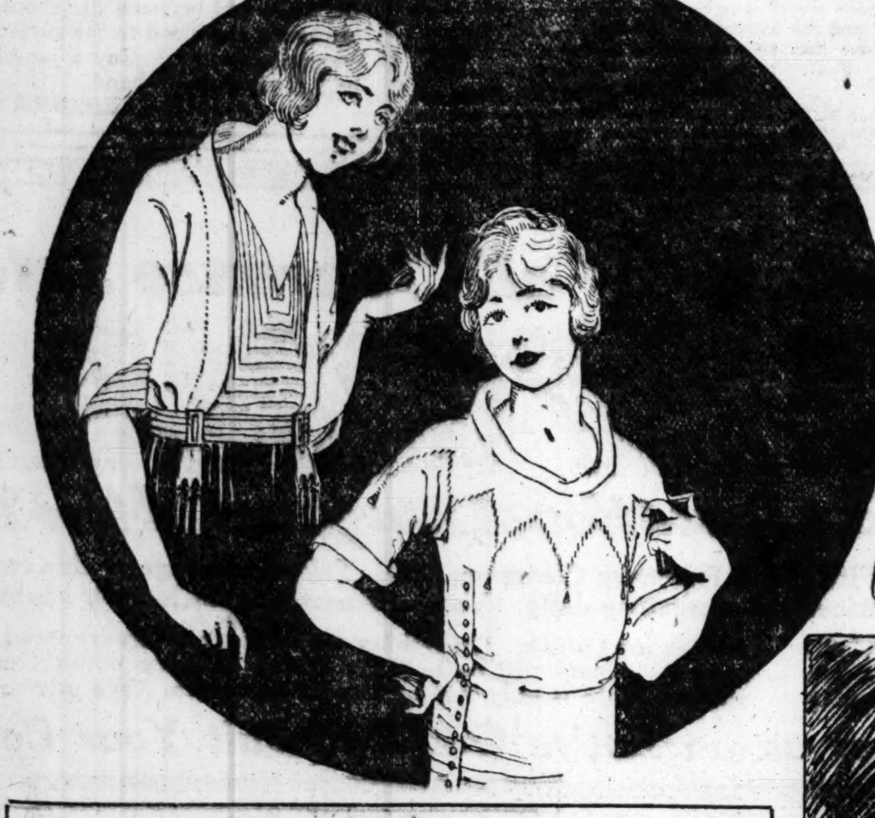
This ribbon culture is illustrated in the blouse model at the left of the right hand circle. Here the material is peach bloom charmeuse, and its only trimming is grosgrain ribbon of the same shade. Following this we find a pearl gray shantung with collar and cording of coral satin. Among the more elaborate blouses one finds much embroidery and much couch tracery. There is some use of tinsel and of nail heads. And of lace we have no end. Filet, Irish, and even Bruges weaves are all used with georgettes. The same laces, together with Cluny, encrust voile models. And you may combine several different weaves in the same blouse. One of the most interesting experiments in this line which I have seen was the use of Swiss embroidery cut out to form medallions that resembled those of Venice. This touch of dazzling white centered some ecru laces which had been showered on the same model—one of peach bloom georgette. It was really stunning.

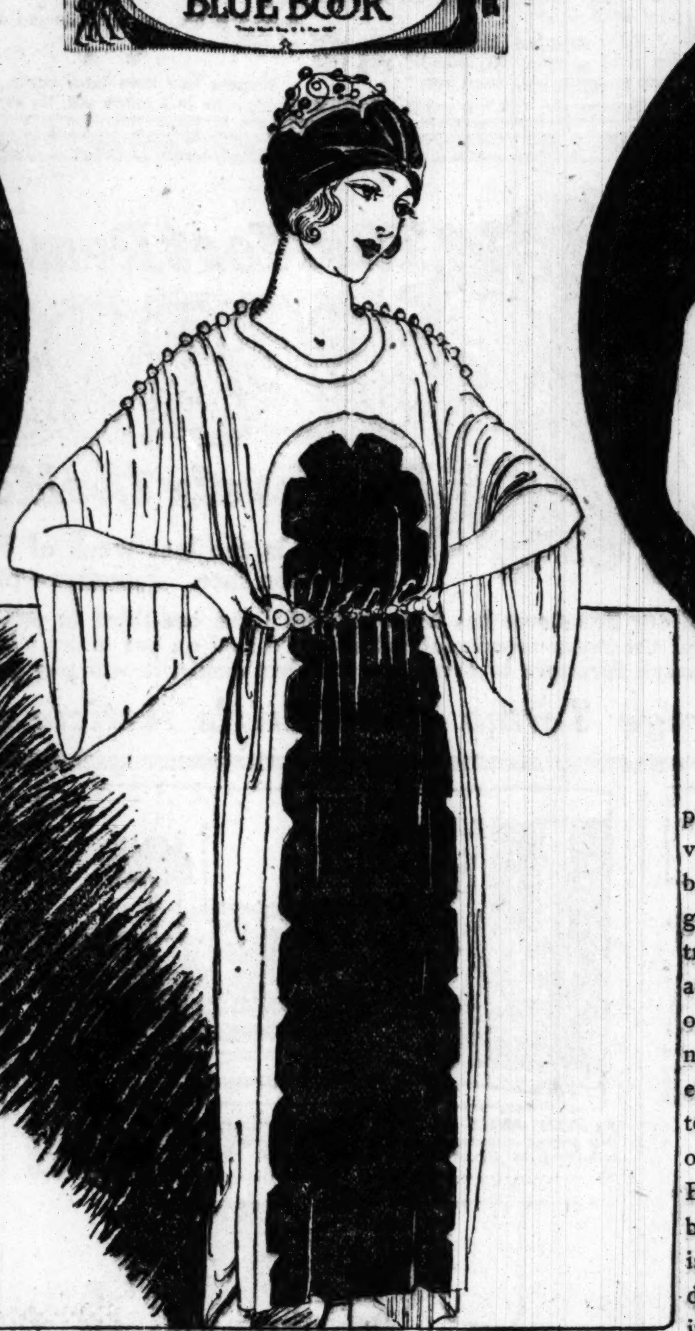
Net is also occasionally tried out in dressy blouses. Indeed, net has become an energetic invader of almost every domain of clothes. To illustrate the versatility of white net, I may mention three separate types of clothes on which I found it recently. One was a black georgette, the neck line and sleeves of which were outlined by scalloped tabs of this sheer fabric, each bound in white satin. The second was a smart blue tricotine frock which a famous New York designer had finished off with vestee of white net ruffles—and exceedingly charming they were with the bolero bodice. And the third was a set of Parisian lingerie, making use of white net for the most exquisite bandings.

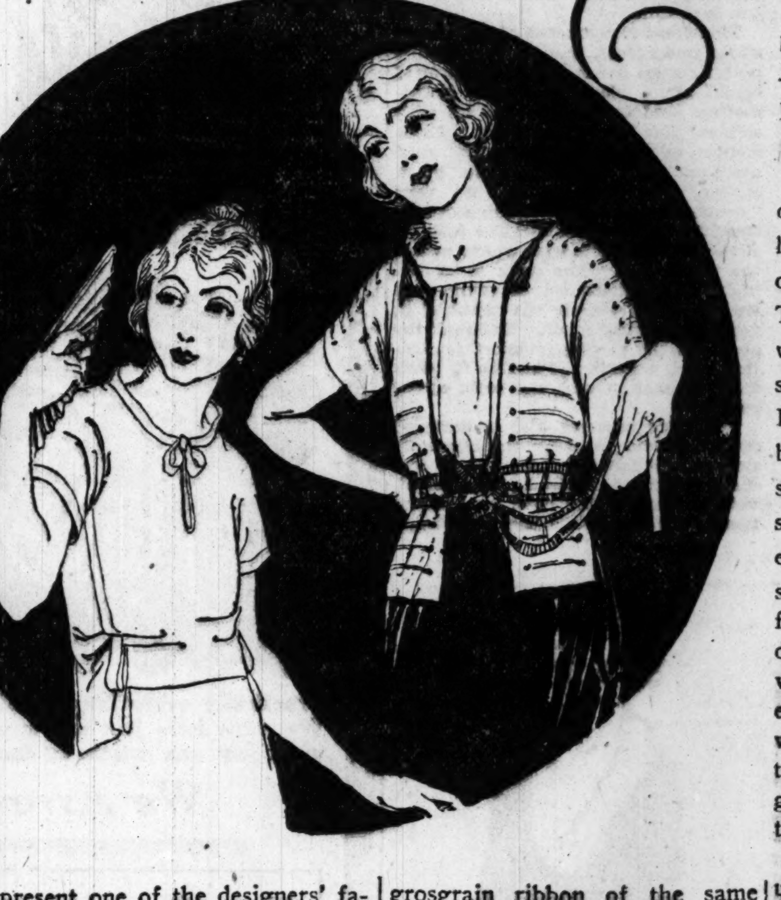
Of course net is so frequently used in the negligee that somebody I know calls it the netligee. On some of the simplest georgette or chiffon kimonos it appears merely as guileless rufflings about throat and sleeves. In others it extends its duties to plaited panels, capes—all manner of cloudlike draperies.

Of course, the chief ambition of a woman in her boudoir is to look like a tropical sea. All sorts of wonderful colors swim through these super negligees—orchids and peacock blues, silver and shimmering, brilliant greens. They really sound like a poem by Christina Rossetti!

The center model is coral tinted voile with back and front panels of rose violet satin outlined with silver beads. The girdle is formed of large wooden beads in coral, and the buttons defining the shoulder line are of the same hue.







DONE—yea, overdone—is "toast." This tint in one of the super voiles is the model to the left. Next, a blouse of rose color tricolette with yoke of lighter shade attached by the fashionable faggoting.

Next, an Egyptian looking robe of coral tinted voile with back and front panels of rose violet satin outlined by silver beads.

That ribbon gets along as well with blouses as with frocks and hats is hinted in the model at the left in the right hand circle—one of peach color charmeuse decked with grosgrain ribbons of the same tint. Pearl gray shantung touched with coral achieves the other blouse.

A PRACTICAL BUDGET FOR HOUSEMAIDS

By Alice Manning Dickey

In every profession there are certain expenses which those who enter it must pay; and, likewise, in every profession there are certain advantages, some of which may have a money value. In planning most budgets the biggest problem of all is to discover how much must or should be allowed for food and for rent or shelter.

The housemaid has an advantage in this particular, because these two items are a part of the return she receives for her services; and there is no anxious figuring to be gone through to see whether her income will cover the grocery bills, coal bills, and the monthly rent. Her budget is therefore the simplest plan, for it needs to make provision only for clothing, recreation and self-improvement, health, and savings, with church expenses coming under self-improvement.

Her clothing expenses should not be so much as those of a stenographer, for instance, because she wears wash dresses during the day and house shoes, and her good dresses get only evening and Sunday wear; whereas a stenographer has to wear durable wool dresses or suits and good shoes, and her hats receive the hardest kind of wear, being out in all kinds of weather and worn every day.

A budget is more useful to her than to anybody else except the housewife, because having in most cases only her own personal expenses to consider, she can more readily plan out what her year's expenditures are to be.

Savings Easily Figured.

Just how she shall apportion her wages depends upon what she wants to do in the future. The more she saves of her wages, the better off she will be when she marries, or the better able to start some business of her own if she should wish to do so. At the same time, if she should never do either of these things, this money put away and going on growing and growing from year to year enables her to take long rests if she needs or wishes to, gives her always a feeling of security in any emergency, and is constantly adding to itself to provide a fund for the time when she may want to stop work altogether.

Since what are usually considered the necessities of living are provided her in addition to her money wages, the amount she saves will depend entirely upon how much she spends for her clothes and for amusements.

It is fun saving if one is doing it for a special thing, like a visit to one's old home abroad. One can do without many pleasures for the sake of this pleasure in the future, and there is no hardship about it at all. But to save just for the sake of saving is not quite so satisfying; we are not usually willing to do without every other pleasure, and neither should we, for the fun we have as we go along is worth a great deal and not only makes life a happier experience but helps to keep us healthy and efficient.

Wages for Housework.

Wages for general housework, so the employment agencies say, run from $10 to $18; for second work, from $12 to $15; for a cook in a house with several other maids, from $12 to $20. Taking the wages of a girl who gets

Yes!

"Yes," said the woman with sweet determination in her face, "this is the electric washer I see advertised so prominently in the Saturday Evening Post, Ladies Home Journal, Good Housekeeping and everywhere. This is the one I want."

"There is no electric washer," the electrical appliance dealer replied, "so persistently preferred by women who can discriminate, and so thoroughly satisfactory for an everlasting period of time after its purchase."

"That's exactly what my friends say who paid the price of experimenting with other washers," the woman answered. "Please send this A-B-C to my home today!"

This is a typical conversation that may be heard in better class electrical appliance stores everywhere every day.

Electrical Appliance dealers sell the A-B-C Super Electric in preference to all others because the preference extends to the women who know.

Surely you will not buy less than an A-B-C, nor be satisfied with less of freedom from all wash day or laundry troubles than A-B-C so generously and easily provides.

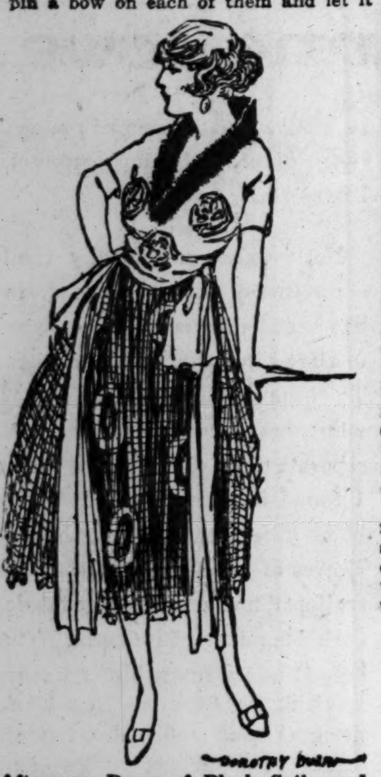
The Last Word in Paris Fashions

By Mary Brush Williams.

HIPS TRIMMED AND SQUARE.

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—If you wish to dress according to the Paris mode you will continue to trim your hips, and if you are running low in ideas for hip trimmings, you can pin a bow on each of them and let it go at that. One of the smartest dresses at Worth's does not exactly that, but something similar. The young woman in the first sketch is wearing it.

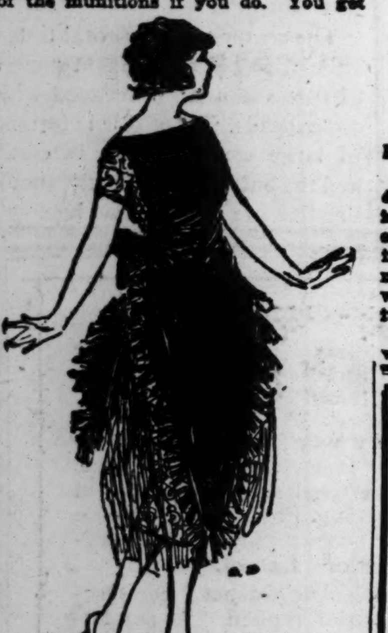


Afternoon Dress of Black Satin and Lace.

The blouse goes into bows on the sides, which fall down to a point slightly below the hem, and as they are of the new rust color [which is anything but inconspicuous], and they fall over a black skirt, they make quite a showing. They give even a squarer effect to the hips than the American girl, recently arrived, who has made the drawing, dared to show them. Go as far as you like, I will put in as a general injunction in the matter of squaring your hips.

The skirt of this costume is of black satin with an overskirt of black lace. On the satin round patches of the rust colored material are sewed on with an embroidery stitch. Designs of black beaded embroidery ornament the bodice. The V-shaped neck is outlined in a wide band of loutre, or sealskin. The sleeves stop at a point some distance above the elbow.

This is a good frock to have in one's wardrobe for late afternoon wear and for dining at restaurant, and even for going to the opera. For nowadays, stalls, or boxes, are so expensive that nobody sits in them. It is almost a sign that you have made a fortune out of the munitions if you do. You get your seat down in the body of the house, put on your late afternoon dress, hold your hat in your lap during the performance, and enjoy yourself untroubled by whether your tiara is on straight.



Evening Gown with Apron of Black Satin.

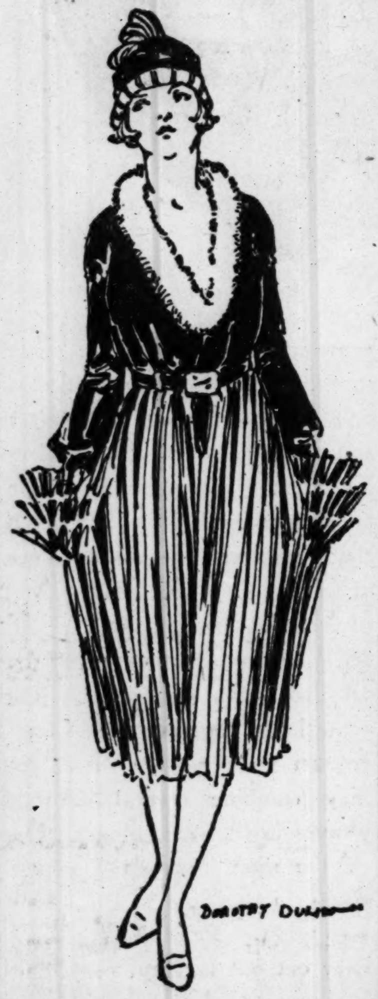
We went to an opera the other night that was based on a Russian legend. I think every functionary from the court of the late czar was there in sables. The percentage of sables that escaped from Russia is indeed high. And never had I realized what sable was until I saw these coats in their magnificence. But they were on display in the body of the house and not in the boxes, and the gowns under them were simple afternoon frocks—simple, that is, with all of the chic Parisian dash. The awful extravagance which we hear of from America is not practiced so ostentatiously here.

Other styles are still quite possible for those who decline to go in for squaring the hips—and there are many such. People exist today who continue to believe that woman's place is in the home and that a woman's hips should slope. Even those who go so far as to permit woman the ballot take their stand in many instances in favor of hiplessness, or the woman made more or less after the model on which her sex was originally designed.

For these there is the model in every house with the pointed overskirt, like that worn by the Miss of sketch two. I do not say that the houses go so far as to permit this line for wear in the day time of 1920, but for evening it is perfectly good form—and it does make one look thin.

This dress is composed of a blue and silver underdress, and its overdress is nothing more nor less than an apron of black satin, such as your grandmother used to wear to sew in, with strings that tie in the back. These strings and this apron, unlike your grandmother's, are ruffled in black chiffon, thereby giving a very "dressy" effect indeed to the costume. Over the arms fall shawl-like folds of silver and blue material which makes the foundation. The neck is of the high, wide cut known as round—but that is surely merely the name of it, for it isn't round at all. To break the shock of the extremely short foundation skirt, a veiling of chiffon in black falls between it and the satin apron overskirt.

The third costume also is designed for those who go in for the slogan of sloping hips forever. It is a very chic costume, indeed, of black panne velvet, with pockets as the chief ornamentation of the dress, and they are accordion plaited in three layers. The bodice ably keeps up with it in the manner of ornamentation, its garnishment being a low, V shaped ermine collar. The narrow belt is of velvet, held together with an ivory buckle. There is also ivory trimming on the belt.



Black Velvet Costume with Ermine Collar.

The small hat is of black panne velvet, garnished at its apex with a white tassel. The brim, what there is of it, is of white silk striped in gold. Metal trimmings are being used a great deal on costumes of every description.

TURPO Helps in Flu Prevention

One of the successful preventives used during the epidemic last year was Turpo, which is a combination of the old-time remedies of turpentine, menthol and camphor, in ointment form. Many physicians use and recommend Turpo.

Snuff a little Turpo up the nostrils several times a day as a preventive.

External applications will help relieve the congestion which is caused by influenza. Rub Turpo into the chest, throat, under the arms and between the shoulders. This stimulates the skin, attracting the blood to the surface and thus aids in reducing the congestion within. Buy a jar of Turpo of your druggist while he has a supply on hand.

8595—Woman's house dress. Sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, and 46 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 4½ yards 36 inch or 4 yards 44 inch material, with ⅝ yard contrasting. The lower edge of the skirt measures 2¼ yards.

How to Use the Patterns

If you have any question relating to sewing that you would like to have answered write to Clotilde, Chicago Tribune, inclosing a stamped, addressed envelope.

Pattern No. 9381 will be especially good looking made of one of the stunning plaids which are so popular now. If a gingham is chosen, pockets and sash can be of the plaid, too, and the pocket hems, collar hem, sash end hem, and cuffs can be made of organdie, plain gingham matching one of the colors in the plaid, or a fine pique. And these can all be attached by a simple fagoting stitch, for this is going to be a favorite among decorative stitches this spring and summer.

The hems will have to be perfectly cut, folded, and basted so that the folded edges meet perfectly, and then basted on a piece of heavy paper, and the edge of cuffs, pockets, etc., to which the hems are to be attached, are basted to the paper also, at the desired distance. It is a good idea to draw parallel lines on the paper, say ⅜ of an inch apart, and baste the cloth exactly on these lines, then the fagoting will be easy to do.

If the sleeves are finished with the deep cuffs, the cuffs can be attached to the sleeves with the stitch instead of setting separate hems on.

If the round neck and short sleeves are used, ruffles of a square or plain mesh net will be an attractive finish.

When a waist fastens on the shoulder there will never be any trouble if the work is accurately done; but those sewers who think it waste of time to do careful work either turn out badly made clothes that are always giving trouble or else do a discouraging lot of undoing in the making.

Trace or clearly mark all seam lines in any garment to be made. Then pin seams carefully together exactly matching the marked lines, and when correctly pinned baste just as carefully. After the garment has been fitted and is ready for stitching and finishing, lay a straight strip of strong lining or the dress material on the wrong side, so that one edge comes exactly on the shoulder seam line of the front. This is for the left shoulder seam that has to be left open. The shoulder seam on the back is finished for the faced hem, and the front for the extension part. After the strip is basted in place on the wrong side, turn the shoulder seam back over it, so that the folded edge is where the seam is traced, and hem down invisibly or stitch. It depends on the material and whether or not the waist is lined. The collar will about cover any stitching there.

The "stay" piece for the extension (or front part of the shoulder) should have both long edges turned in, and laying it on the wrong side of the seam, one turned in edge is basted on the shoulder line marking and the other edge is pasted to the edge of the shoulder seam, which has also been turned in. It is not a bad idea to oxerhand this edge nicely before stitchin on the machine. And the other edge is stitched right on the shoulder seam marking. Now you have a firm place for the snaps or hooks and eyes to be attached. Then the shoulder seam should be pinned togther at each end and pins put in both front and back at the points where the snaps are to go on.

No. 9383 is a pretty design for a girl's dress and is suitable for wash or other materials. The directions on the patter are clear and there should be no trouble in putting it together.

If the dress is made of a wash material or silk, in other words something light weight, the sash can be cut double, the same as the cuffs,, seaming the pieces together on the wrong side, then turning right side out and pressing smooth. If the dress is made of something like serge or velveteen the sash should be lined with silk.

No. 8595 is a good design for a comfortable house dress, and is cut with more than the usual fullness at the bottom of the skirt—not a bad feature for wear during working hours. It will be attractive looking made of plaid or figured wash material and with the collar, cuffs, belt, and pocket facings of some plain, contrasting color, and with no other decoration.

Putting a sleeve into an armhole is not always easy for the home sewer. Most patterns are notched to show the position of the front seam of the sleeve, but if you don't happen to have a notch as a guide, put a pin in the armhole 2⅜ inches toward the front, measuring from the under arm seam of the waist. This is the right point for the usual sized armhole (say one measuring 15 inches or a little more). Then, measuring from the under arm seam of the waist, put a pin on the front of the armhole 4½ inches up, and then put a pin in on the back 3½ inches up from the under arm seam. Holding the waist toward you put the sleeve in the armhole, pinning the front seam of sleeve at the 2⅜ inch point; then holding the sleeve edge and armhole together, pin the two together at the 4½ inch point; then do the same on the back, pinning the two together at the 3½ inch point. The waist should be held toward you, and the sleeve basted into the armhole between these two outside points; then, holding the sleeve toward you, gather the sleeve across the top from one point to the other and arrange the fullness evenly and baste and try on. If the slight fullness that is in the present day sleeves is well adjusted it hardly shows, and in woolen materials can of course be shrunken out so the sleeve will be perfectly smooth across the top.

The reason for holding the waist toward you in basting the under part in is, that a waist curves considerably through that part, and one is less likely to injure the line; while in the upper basting, one must always hold toward one any fullness in order to adjust it properly.

Practical Budget for Housemaids

$10 a week, she is really earning about as follows:

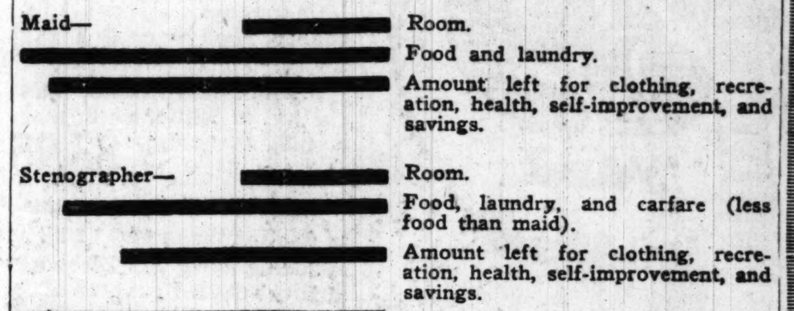
In money	$10.00
In room with bath	5.00
In board	14.00
In laundry	1.50
	$30.50

Th same breakfast bought at a restaurant would cost her probably 50 cents; lunch the same; while the ordinary family dinner cannot be duplicated at a restaurant for less than $1.

As for her room, if she has a room with a bath she could not of course secure that at much less than $10, while a room without a bath in a good neighborhood would cost her $6 or $7 ordinarily, so estimating her room at $5 is a low price to put on it.

As a matter of fact, it doesn't make any difference what room and board cost elsewhere; the only object in listing it in the payment a maid receives is that she may realize how much she is really earning, and that she has what is really much more than the average income to decide what to do with.

Comparison of $25 Salary as Stenographer with $13 Salary as Maid



In the Matter of Clothes.

In dividing up her money she should consider carefully just what she will need for the year in the matter of clothes. First, of course, she has to consider the clothes in which she does her work. It is a part of her job to be neatly dressed and have sufficient wash dresses for morning work, a black uniform for afternoon, and proper house shoes. On these she should not economize below a standard of perfect neatness and cleanliness, as they are part of the service she is to render for the money received.

It is wise, then, to begin by making a list of the things needed for work—four house dresses, say, at $4.50; two pairs of house shoes in the course of the year at $5.50; one black uniform at, say, $7.50; a total of $36.50. The mistress furnishes white aprons and collars and cuffs.

The next thing to decide is what to buy in the way of personal clothing. Here the desire to save may influence. Since the dresses purchased are only worn at night, on Thursday afternoon, and Sunday, they do not have as hard wear as most people must give their wardrobes, so this should be considered in deciding what is necessary.

Miscellaneous Expenses.

Then the matter of recreation comes next. "How much money shall I spend for a good time each week?" is the question to ask one's self. Car fare should be figured in, movies, a dinner or lunch on Thursday out, and all other forms of recreation. Church is apt to be a fixed sum weekly, with occasional other contributions. And there should be always a certain sum allowed for doctors, dentists, oculists, medicine, etc.

There are two kinds of savings that might be provided for—savings for a special purpose, like a trip to the old home, and savings which are to be permanent and stay in the bank from year to year. Here is a budget based on $10 a week for a maid without dependents:

	Per week.	Per year.
Room	$ 5.00	$260.00
Board	14.00	728.00
Laundry	1.50	78.00
Clothing	3.50	182.00
Recreation, including vacation	2.50	130.00
Self-improvement, including church	2.00	104.00
Savings	2.00	104.00
What she really divides	$30.50	$1,586.00

The first three items above are provided for outside of the $10 by terms of her employment. The other items are to come out of weekly wages.

Earns More Than Stenographer.

At $13 a week, a maid should be able to add $156 more to her savings, or she can allow herself a little more for clothing and recreation than the $10 budget allows and still add to her savings more than $100. The maid earning $13 a week in money is really earning $33.50—much more than the average stenographer.

A stenographer at $25 a week, paying $5 for a small room without bath, 35 cents for breakfast, 40 cents for lunch, 75 cents for dinner, and 12 cents car fare, has only $8,66 left weekly to pay for her clothing (which must stand the wear of all kinds of weather, daily), her recreation, her self-improvement, vacations, church, health, and savings; while the maid, with more substantial meals, has $13 left for the same items with less than a third of the wear on her clothing.

I emphasize this because I like women who earn a good salary to realize that fact and respect themselves accordingly, and maids have a larger earning capacity than the majority of women and should not underestimate it.

FAUST
Instant Coffee

Here is better coffee—already made. Good coffee—clear, strong, fine flavored coffee—always the same. And already made, waiting only a cup of hot water to each half-teaspoonful of concentrated coffee powder. Try it today! Get it at the nearest grocer, drug store or delicatessen. It is delicious! And it is instant! We selected the beans, roasted and ground them, and then made the coffee by the famous French drip process to extract all the aromatic oils, all the elusive flavor. Then, after removing the grounds, we evaporated the water. You merely replace it, cup by cup, as you use it. No grounds, no waste. Economical, too. Every 45c can holds 30 steaming cups.

NOW FOR THE Last and Greatest Week!

Everything must go! With the enormous stock on hand we are prepared to make the closing week of the February Furniture Sale even greater than the opening week.

It is worth while repeating to you our warning that if you are going to buy furniture during the next few years, buy it now. As much as we regret to say to you, it is a fact that prices must advance considerably—at least 40% to 50%.

Our warehouse space is now about full of sold goods; therefore, in many cases on the goods sold tomorrow we must arrange for prompt delivery. In a few cases, to accommodate young housekeepers who have no homes as yet, we will store large purchases until May 1st.

There is one fact however, we would like to impress upon our patrons, and that is that it must be thoroughly understood that there can be no cancellations.

You are most cordially invited to make inspection of our department, and our salesmen will assist you in every manner possible to make your selections.

BEAUTIFUL FINGERNAILS

By Antoinette Donnelly

What's your beauty ill? Too fat? Too thin? Shy on hair? Oily hair, oily skin, freckles, pimples, or blackheads? Flat chested or flat footed? Write to me. I have a tonic, a diet, or a set of exercises for what ails you and you're welcome to them and to all the advice I can give you. If you wish a personal reply send a stamped, addressed envelope. Address Antoinette Donnelly, "Chicago Sunday Tribune."

This department appears every day in The Daily Tribune.

"I'M ashamed to take my gloves off," apologized the moleskinned, French slippered dear with the near to nature glow on her upper cheekbones. "My nails are so dirty. I meant to get a manicure, but——"

"Aw, go on with your apologizing," broke in the heavy gentleman accompanying her. "They're always dirty. I never saw them clean."

"You should talk," slanged the apologee. "Yours are nothing to brag about."

"Well, they're clean. They are always clean. You never saw me come to the table with dirty nails," he said convincingly. "What's the matter with you women, anyway? You are always apologizing for your dirty nails, and so far as I can see you never do any work to get 'em dirty. Why don't you take the time to clean 'em? You have time enough to lay the paint on and curl your hair."

That was the beginning of a heated row on women's finger nails. The man protested that men were much more particular in this feature of cleanliness and delicacy than our sex. In fact he went so far as to wager $20 that at a male banquet of thirty men as compared with a gathering of the same number of women, the percentage of dirty, neglected finger nails would go to the women.

Is there anything much more thoroughly pleasurable than a pair of beautiful hands, which is synonymous with beautiful fingers, since the latter will make beautiful any shaped hand?

The value of a lovely pair of them was appraised and recognized by one insurance company recently in granting the owner of the most ravishingly beautiful hands in captivity $100,000 insurance. The insurance was in the event of their beauty being marred, mind you—not their usefulness.

How much do you think yours would be worth insuring for at the moment of reading this? Neither would mine.

But then there are women around us who keep their nails in the most amazing state of cleanliness in the midst of the same toil and grime and dirt as we encounter. How do they do it?

I've asked a number of these shining examples of what our nails ought to be and without exception they tell me it is due to the habit they've acquired of giving them a dose of attention daily. Not once a week or a visit to the manicurist's once in two weeks or once a year, as the case may be.

Which certainly hath the sound of reason. For no matter what little act of improvement, it's the daily application and not the spasmodic that serves us most. Note the woman who diets today and tomorrow eats a box of chocolates and the next day a quart of ice cream and the next cleans off the French pastry plate and the following day diets. Yet when she tries to convince her friends she is dieting she is comparable to the young woman who apologizes for soiled finger nails with the explanation that she went to the manicurist's last week.

At a luncheon, at an afternoon gathering where you serve or sip tea, turning over the pages of a book, or the pages of a theater program, there is a surer grace of movement where there is the consciousness of a pair of well kept hands. And there is a thrill of genuine pleasure to beholders.

And there's a practical turn to the habit, too. An employer told me the other day an applicant's nails were in his opinion the barometer of whether her work would be well or sloppily done. And on such evidence his decisions were made.

If you give your nails five minutes' care each day and a thorough manicuring once a week, your hands will always be presentable. You can easily train yourself to be your own manicurist.

The instruments needed for the weekly manicure are a good slender nail file, a pair of fine cuticle nail scissors, an emery board, an orange wood stick, cuticle knife, a chamois buffer, a small bottle of peroxide, castile soap, absorbent cotton, nail rouge, polishing powder, a glass bowl large enough to hold a quart of water in which to immerse the hands, and a nail brush.

Never use a metal instrument and don't use the scissors for cutting the nails. The nail file is the proper instrument for trimming the nails. After the nails have been filed and shaped becomingly, dip one hand in the bowl of water in which the castile soap has been used to make a suds, remain in the water for about five minutes, then remove and dry gently.

With a small amount of absorbent cotton wrapped around the sharp end of the orange wood stick, dip into the peroxide bleach, then gently rub this swab under the edge of the nail to remove the dirt or stain.

Wipe the finger tips dry and proceed to smooth the edges of the nail with the emery board. The emery board is really a file, only it is finer and more delicate than a metal instrument. Proceed to remove all roughness with the emery board, looking carefully to the removing of hangnails. If the hangnails are stubborn, resort to the cuticle scissors.

Go after the cuticle at the base of the nail, bearing in mind that the desirable shape there is the half moon. With the flat end of the orange stick gently crowd back the cuticle that has grown upward on the lower section of the nail. Then take the cuticle knife and scrape away the loosened skin. If you find that the skin does not come away, use cuticle scissors and cut it away carefully.

Then rub a little cold cream upon the nail and the upper surface of the finger end. Then go over all the fingers with the cuticle scissors and remove the ragged edges of the skin. Next remove the cold cream from the nails. Now dip the small buffer into the nail powder. Next touch the surface of each nail with nail rouge, follow this by applying a touch of polishing powder to each nail. Also put a liberal supply of powder on the chamois buffer. Rub the buffer briskly on the body of the nail from side to side. Again place the hands in a bowl of water and with a nail brush and a little soap scrub the finger tips well to remove the powder from the nail crevices. Then give the nails a final polishing with a small quantity of the polishing powder in the palm of your hand and rubbing until the desired gloss has been acquired.

For the daily care of your hands, keep the orange wood stick on hand wrapped with a piece of absorbent cotton. Dip into a glass of soapy water in which a few drops of peroxide have been added and go under the nails. Also gently push back the skin from the nail, then apply a little polish either with a buffer or the palm of your hand.

This Quarrel Is Final.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a young girl, 15 years old. Last February I met a boy a few months older. He has always been very nice to me and has clean habits and ideals, but he can not dance, therefore I am obliged to go to dances with some one else. A few days ago he called me up and said he would not bother me any more and said goodby. I acted snippy to him, too. He refuses to give me my picture and ring, though. We have had minor quarrels before, but this one was final, he said. What would you advise me to do?

"MARY JANE."

O, Mary Jane, and you but 15, with problems of the "one and only" to answer! And you gave him your picture and your ring! Dear, dear! I must be hopelessly old fashioned, because it all sounds so blase and so ungirl-like to me. Go back to your dolls for a year or two, Mary Jane, or by the time you are 18 you will be so bored with life you will look the part.

All the Fellows Admire Her.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a girl of not quite 17, and would like to have your advice. Is it proper to skate with any young man that comes along and asks me to skate with him at the roller rink? There are many boys that ask me to skate with them, and not to hurt their feelings I do, but still I hesitate and would like to know if I am doing right. There are a great number of fellows that want to take me home, and I can't decide which one I want. I am known as the most handsome girl in the neighborhood, which I think must be true, as all the fellows admire me. Please give me your advice, as I have no one else to warn me.

"ALICE."

Oh, Alice, what a wonderland you live in! But your mirror may not be telling you the truth and besides it is not well to encourage one's self to believe she is a raving beauty. That spoils the loviest of them all. I doubt if all the men admire you if you are willing to be picked up by any one that comes along and asks the favor. Don't you see how quickly you will make yourself common? Instead of being known as the handsomest girl in the neighborhood, wouldn't it be dreadful if you were to be known as the most common? You want to be careful, Alice, because a reputation like that is easily earned.

Pick Out Your Man.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a young woman 28 years old. I do not go with any men. My parents wish me never to marry. My most dreaded thought is to be an old maid. This being leap year, would it be wrong to try to attract a young man? L. Y."

Why should you sacrifice your entire life because of parental selfishness? Your mother didn't do that—nor did your father when they wanted to marry. It wouldn't be wrong to try to attract a young man any year. That is the particular business of woman and it's her business if she wants to be married and have a home to do everything in her power to attain it.

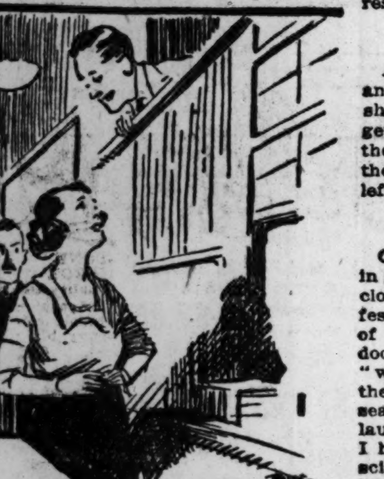
A Date for the Evening.



When I was a girl, clerking in the notion department of a dry goods store, one of the rules of the store was that clerks should not carry on conversations during business hours. It was Saturday evening. Business was slow and the store quiet. One of the young men in the wrapping department directly above me leaned over the rail and called softly, at which I looked up. He then asked me if I had a date for the evening, to which I answered in the negative. "May I see you home then?" he said, and I had just answered "Sure" when the gruff voice of the manager said, "Mack, loan me your camera till I shoot the turtle doves." Never in all my days before or since have I heard such a loud, clear, resounding voice as was his! A. T.

It Comes High.

A new neighbor came to call on me and we got to talking about the sugar shortage. She said, "I just can't get sugar at all," and I said, "O, there is plenty of sugar if you've got the money to pay for it." She soon left and has never been back. M. S.

Wool Gathering.

One day at school during a recitation in grammar the sentence, "John, please close the door," was given by the professor for analysis. Sitting at the end of the recitation bench nearest the door, which was open, with my mind "wool gathering," I arose, walked to the door, closed it, and returned to my seat. Not until I heard the roar of laughter from the class did I realize I had done the bidding of my subconscious self. To say I was embarrassed is putting it mildly. J. W. S.

PARTOLA

Like Other Doctors in these respects, Partola, "The Doctor in Candy Form," follows in the steps of best physicians. First, Partola is a laxative. It regulates the bowels and removes constipation. It sweetens the stomach and aids that organ in its work. It stimulates the liver and thus Partola does everything that the best laxative prescription can do.

Laxative and Antiseptic

But Partola is more than a mere laxative. It is an internal antiseptic as well. It helps overcome and drive out of the digestive organs the disease germs and poisons which are said to cause more than 90 per cent of all human ailments. The antiseptic effect of Partola on the bowels is the same as the antiseptic effect of tooth or mouth preparations.

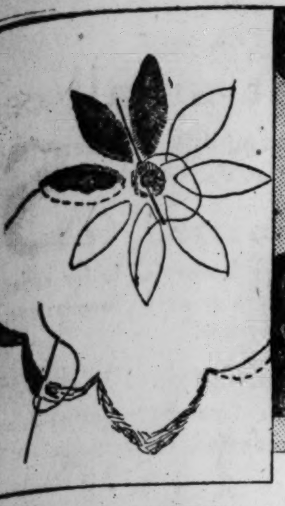
Practical and Fancy Needle Work

By Clotilde



EYELET EMBROIDERY.

MUCH embroidery is to be used on the summer clothes, stitches of many kinds from which to choose, and the work will be done in wool, silk, linen or cotton, depending of course on the cloth on which the work is to be done.

Eyelet promises to be a favorite embroidery, and is fascinating work to do. Of course eyelets may be simply small round holes punched with a small stilletto or they may be holes of different and larger sizes, or again they may take an oblong shape. The principal thing is to keep the outline of the design when working.

Each eyelet should be outlined with a small running stitch, and the material is then clipped in the center and gently pushed back towards the outline. In working an eyelet always point the needle towards you, and keep the thread thrown up to the right, which will keep it out of the way. The stitches are taken close together and must just cover the running outline. The clipped cloth can be pushed back towards the wrong side as you work.

In rather large eyelets, one side will frequently show the narrow over and over of the small one, and the opposite side of the eyelet will be done in a stitch twice as wide. This means that after the outline stitch has been run in, there must be padding stitches taken on the side where the work is to be wider. In working the eyelet, the stitches are drawn pretty tight where they are worked just over the edge, but where they are to cover the wider outline, they must, of course, not be too tightly drawn. But they should be taken perfectly evenly and every few stitches use your needle to push the cut cloth back.

Each eyelet should be fastened separately, and one good way to do this is to take the last four or five stitches a little looser than the previous ones, then when the eyelet is finished slip the needle carefully under these last stitches and bringing the needle through, cut the thread off close to the stitch, first using the point of the needle to pull each one of the loose stitches to the proper closeness.

In the oblong eyelets, outline them and clip the material the same as for the round ones, and do the work in exactly the same manner. Push the cut cloth back towards the outline stitch every few stitches and if any of the edges show on the wrong side after the work is finished they can be cut away.

Sometimes in transferring a design to material, there will be parts that are not clearly marked. Use a pencil with a good point and make every detail of the outline clear before doing anything else. For any kind of fancy work is beautiful if accurately and perfectly done, and bad looking if done carelessly.

They Save Teeth Now

In a New Way—By Ending Film

All Statements Approved by High Dental Authorities

Millions of teeth are now cleaned in a new way. You see them everywhere—white, glistening teeth. Perhaps they are teeth you envy. Then make this simple ten-day test and find out how to get them.

The great tooth wrecker is a viscous film. You can feel it with your tongue. It is ever-present, ever-forming. It clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays.

The tooth paste does not end it. The ordinary tooth paste does not dissolve it. So it stays—much of it—and may do a ceaseless damage. Most tooth troubles are now traced to film.

Why Teeth Discolor

That film is what discolors—not the teeth. It is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. All these troubles are constantly increasing, despite the wide use of the tooth brush. And the reason lies in that clinging film, and brushing leaves much of it intact.

Dentists long have known this. They urge periodic dental cleaning to remove film and tartar. And dental science has for years sought a way to constantly combat film.

That way has now been found. Able authorities have proved its efficiency by convincing tests. Now leading dentists everywhere are urging its adoption.

For daily use the method is embodied in a dentifrice called Pepsodent—a modern, scientific tooth paste. Millions have already proved it. And a 10-Day Tube is being sent to anyone who asks.

A Way to Fight Film

Pepsodent is based on pepsin, the digestant of albumin. The film is albuminous matter. The object of Pepsodent is to dissolve it, then to day by day combat it.

But pepsin must be activated, and the usual method is an acid harmful to the teeth. So pepsin long seemed impossible. But science has discovered a harmless activating method. Convincing tests have proved this. Now pepsin in this form can be every day applied. And in a tooth paste which conforms to every modern dental requirement.

Now you are urged to try it. Let it argue for itself. Compare the results with your present methods. Let your mirror tell the story.

There are few things more important. Bad teeth cause endless troubles. And teeth cannot be kept white, safe and sound if you leave that film.

For your sake and your family's sake, find out the way to combat it.

Results Are Quick and Apparent

You can see very quickly what Pepsodent does, and our book will tell you why.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the slimy film. See how the teeth whiten as the fixed film disappears.

Once learn what clean teeth really mean and you'll always want them.

Mail the coupon to us today so you won't forget.

BREAD IN LENTEN FARE.

LENT is here. Once you are interested in what classical food usages have been for this period you will find them strangely fascinating. And if you can discover anything truly authentic about Lenten food observances for century after century you may come to the conclusion that the one classical article of food, the one most truly Lenten food, is bread. An Englishman, writing of one of the ancient saints, says he "lived on bitterness and biscuits," but perhaps this poor man had no cook.

In exceedingly early times there seem to have been Lenten days of "dry eatings," or that is the way the Greek word for the day has been translated. Later there seems to have been an express prohibition of what were called "white meats," which were eggs, milk, butter, and cheese. And always dry bread seems to have been the fare of the truly or highly penitential, nothing savory being permitted, even when fruits and vegetables were added to this fare.

Diet of Saints.

For hundreds of years Lenten fare seems to have been fish, bread, wine, and fruit. Eggs must have been allowed some centuries ago, for one of the interesting articles on "The Diet of Saints" says: "It is extremely difficult for the human mind to realize the idea of a bishop of London never breaking his fast till the evening, and then being satisfied with a solitary egg, an inch of bread, and a cup of milk and water."

We have some reason to believe that the churchmen must have quarreled about the matter of diet in more than one century. Some were inclined to be extremely fanatical on the subject, and others were for being lenient, living up to the spirit of the matter, and not to the letter, since some of their numbers, by living by the letter, had become prematurely old and infirm, eating seldom, and then of poor food. It is stated that some of these men and women even lost all sense of taste by such a practice.

Some of these lenient persons worked to counteract food fanaticism by teaching that to satisfy hunger was no crime, but that "to abuse appetite and God's gifts, too, was an offense." Wise temperance is as suitable a thing to this day as when inculcated by the men who came to be called saints.

Abstinent Bread of Good Flavor.

But about bread as Lenten fare. It may be made by the most abstinent sort of a recipe and yet be one of the most agreeably flavored of all breads, while for toast it will give off a pleasanter aroma than any bread ever made, an aroma that would make any of the numerous toast lovers we find among Dickens' characters more than smack their lips.

This praiseworthy or abstinent bread contains neither milk, sugar, nor butter, but only flour, water, yeast, and salt. In other words, it is French bread. A given amount of French bread dough will make just twice the bulk of bread that a milk dough will make, according to my experience. For instance, if you want to make rolls you should take only half the bulk of dough for each that you would take for a roll made of a bun dough—that is, one made with milk and sugar and possibly an egg.

To make this bread weigh out two pounds and sift half of it into a large bowl, and make a fountain or crater in the center of it. Boil one cup of water and when it has cooled to tepid pour it over one yeast cake, and stir the two until the yeast is completely mixed with the water. Pour this mixture into the crater of flour and stir in the flour a little at a time, or "gradually incorporate," until all has been mixed in and you have an even batter. Set this to rise just as you would any other sponge, but remember that it takes longer because the yeast has no quick food such as sugar is to work on. When doubled stir down and let rise again.

Temperature of Flour.

To make the dough add to the sponge another cup of boiled and cooled water, in which has been dissolved one teaspoon of salt, and add by stirring and kneading the rest of the two pounds of flour. Let this rise to double and then make up into forms. You can make it up at once after the kneading, but it will not behave as well in the baking as though it were allowed to rise after the kneading.

The French cook says about the flour: "In using flour for making any kind of bread always remember never to employ flour when it is either cold or warm. It should be in a place of 60 degrees temperature for at least twelve hours before using." If yeast had to work on cold flour with no sugar there certainly would be discouragement all around.

By the way, many tables of cook's measurements give four cups of flour to the pound, but our present day bread flour and pastry flour as well, mostly will be found to measure three cups to a pound, or approximately that.

Good Oven Essential.

French bread is baked on sheets or on the bottom of a pan. It can be baked on the clean bottom of the right kind of an oven, but that is not convenient. Mold the dough into the long roll and score it before putting it into the oven. If it has not been raised well it will not stay flat on the bottom. Rolls baked in a 500 oven, to make them nearly all crisp crust, will kick out at the side if too much dough is used per roll. The management of this water dough is considerably different from the management of a milk dough, and must be learned largely by experience.

One needs an exceptionally good gas oven to bake breads of this type, but fair results may be obtained in an oven far short of perfect. The ideal oven for this bread is of brick, solidly hot, without any quick scotching effects. The difference between this sort of an oven and a gas one is about the same as between a thin bottomed and a thick bottomed frying pan, slowly heated.

Once learn to make this bread and you can have a hot roll of a type that is unexcelled, and a kind of toast for your breakfast that will give even the most drooping appetite some "pep." For a Lenten breakfast, whether in rolls or as toast as an accompaniment of a solitary egg and coffee, it is all that the best traditions could ask for.

All measurements are made level in these recipes. A teaspoon of regulation size holds sixty drops. Three level teaspoons equal one level tablespoon. Sixteen level tablespoons equal one cup (one-half pint). The half-pint measuring cup is the standard measuring cup used in modern cookery.

By Elizabeth O. Hiller.

French Onions.

Cut one large Spanish onion crosswise in one-eighth inch slices, cover with ice water, and let stand until crisp. Then drain and dry on towels. Separate the large rings and use the smaller ones for seasoning salads sauces, etc. Cover the larger rings with skimmed milk; drain a few at a time from the milk, and dredge heavily with flour. Fry until crisp and a golden brown in deep hot fat; drain on soft brown paper, sprinkle with salt, and continue until all are fried. Use as a garnish around braised calf's liver, roast beef, or pork tenderloin. Prepared in this way, the onion becomes at once a rare delicacy.

Potatoes a l'Italienne.

To two cups of hot riced potatoes add one tablespoon of finely chopped chives, one egg yolk well beaten, and one half cup of grated cheese. Season with salt, pepper and a few grains of cayenne. Then cut and fold in the stiffly beaten whites of three eggs (four when eggs are plentiful). Pile lightly in a well greased baking dish and bake twenty-five minutes in a hot oven. Turn dish carefully around several times that mixture may puff evenly. Serve immediately.

Boiled Rice.

Pick over and thoroughly wash one cup of rice; add slowly to boiling salted water so as not to retard the boiling of water. Boil until the kernels are soft (about thirty minutes). If the rice is well seasoned (old) it will absorb more water than new rice and requires longer cooking. Drain in a coarse strainer and pour over hot water to separate the kernels; return to saucepan in which it was cooked; cover and let stand on back of range to dry off, when the kernels will be distinct. When stirring rice while boiling use a cook's fork to prevent mashing the kernels.

Curried Salmon with Rice Border.

Cook a slice of fresh salmon or halibut, weighing one and one-half pounds, in boiling salted acidulated water until the flakes separate from the bones. Drain, and when cool separate the flakes with a fork, discarding the skin and bones. Reheat fish in two cups of white sauce. Season with two teaspoons of lemon juice, one-half teaspoon of salt, and a few grains of cayenne. When preparing the white sauce, sift one-half teaspoon of curry powder with the flour and seasonings before adding flour to the melted butter. Serve salmon on a hot platter and surround with a border of well seasoned hot boiled rice. Sprinkle rice with paprika.

Keep The System Clean And You'll Be Healthy

Elimination helps to avoid colds, headaches and epidemics

ANYONE who has watched himself knows there is nothing so important to health and comfort as regular daily elimination. Half of the minor illnesses of life are due to neglect of this. The five million men who were in our army know the importance the doctor attached to this function.

By all means try to regulate yourself by intelligent diet and exercise, but when these fail you will need a laxative, one as near to nature in its action as skill can make it. In the opinion of many thousands of good Americans such a one is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which is a combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin. It acts promptly, gently and without griping and will with certainty regulate any tendency to constipation that you may have.

Take it when you feel drowsy, dizzy or bilious, when you feel a cold or a fever coming on, when there is an epidemic, when you have eaten anything about which you are in doubt. It is at such times that you need to be free of poisons and of fermenting foods. You can buy Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at any drug store. Thousands of families have it constantly in the house against emergencies.

In spite of the fact that Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the largest selling liquid laxative in the world, there being over 6 million bottles sold each year, many who need its benefits have not yet used it. If you have not, send your name and address for a free trial bottle to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 511 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois.

The Irresistible Appeal of Our Annual March Furniture Sale

Ninth Floor

Lies not alone in the matchless excellence of the varieties it provides, in the great size of the stock, in the real artistic designs of the furniture, in the sturdy way each piece is constructed, in the care used in finishing, but also in the many extraordinary values it offers each day throughout the month—values that only a store that both buys and sells strictly for cash could think of offering; values that are so very much better than elsewhere that you have but to see the furniture here and at other stores to instantly realize it yourself—and the more thoroughly you understand furniture the more you will appreciate the March Sale's offerings. Our Annual March Dress Goods Sale-Again-Greater

In all America there is no other sale of dress goods that equals this famous annual event. Again it is greater than its predecessors, because no effort is ever spared here—a gathering of dress fabrics that for grandeur and scope of selections transcends any of the past, and presents at the same time the authentic "trend of fashion" as it concerns dress goods to every woman to whom beautiful clothes appeal. It is an exposition that outdistances any to be seen elsewhere. To every woman to whom values appeal it is an event of tremendous importance, as any item that follows will readily illustrate, and they are but a small part of the many items that the March Sale has for you. All dress goods requiring it sponged, shrunk and refinished without extra charge.

Bring The Children to The Fair Tomorrow

Two Boys' Suits for $15

The price at which we secured these suits was so attractive that we couldn't resist. We took more than we care to have in stock at this season, but, if we can sell them all in a day, we are glad to forget profits in order to give our customers such an unusual bargain.

To be sure of doing that, we must sell two suits where we usually sell one. So here's the plan of the sale: Not less than 2 suits to any one customer. By this plan you will get two suits for very little more than you would usually pay for one, and we can sell the entire lot out in a hurry.

This sale offers for your choosing a great number of high grade Norfolk suits made to withstand the hard usage that a healthy boy gives his clothes. Coats are lined with durable linings, pants all full lined. Fabrics are cheviots and cassimeres in browns, grays and neat mixtures; sizes 6 to 17.

2 Suits for $15

DONE IN CHINTZ.

NOW that we have learned to love the cheer and cleanliness of chintz, and also to appreciate the transformation miracle it works at the least expense, some alarmist sets up the hue and cry, "Isn't it too bad that chintz is going out?"

Surely this is a false alarm. It must be conceded, however, that chintz has been badly overused and abused, and by chintz is meant all of the cotton and linen figured drapery stuffs, such as flowered reps, cretonne, blocked linen, etc.

What we should do is not to abandon these most pleasing fabrics, but on the contrary study their correct use. Let them not overrun everything, but keep them within bounds. A room in which every piece of furniture is covered with flowered cretonne matching the lambrequins and draperies is quite absurd—absurd as it would be if every guest who entered should be arrayed in the same material. Properly modified it is charming.

Let us study a series of rooms into which chintz, correctly used, holds its place as a distinctly decorative note.

A living room wherein the furniture is walnut and brown mahogany is done in a color scheme of barley and old blue with accents of gold and apricot. The two comfortably upholstered chairs shown in the foreground of the sketch are covered with two toned barley colored damask. The walls are in barley colored grass cloth. The rug is of midnight blue velour made in one piece, and the floor around it is painted a tone lighter than the rug. The inside of the window frames is also painted blue, and the tiling matches this color. More blue in a still more faded tone is seen in the velveteen window cushions.

The casement curtains are of lovely block printed linen. It is this linen, of course, that gives life and color to the whole room. The flowers, bold in contrast, but laid on in flat colors, are of dull blue violet, amber, dull green, and bright apricot on a barley colored ground.

The curtains are trimmed with blue and apricot fringe. One big cushion of this material piped with apricot velour is used. The lamp shade is of brilliant apricot silk.

Other pieces of furniture in the room are a gate leg table, a chest of drawers raised upon legs and stretchers and having old brass drops for handles, several walnut chairs with seats in plain rep a little deeper than the wall color, and a big, comfortable davenport. The latter is covered with blue velour, and has two great oblong cushions. In front of it is drawn a long narrow floor cushion made of an old Khorassan rug which is figured in minute pattern of camel's hair and old blue on a dull orange tinted ground.

As to accessories, they are few and simple—a few good etchings, a mirror framed in a gracefully curved walnut frame and hung with silk cords, a pair of brass candle sticks, copper jar and a piece or two of pottery.

In furnishing and decorating adjoining rooms a safe plan is to see that one predominating neutral color is repeated. For example, in the room above the largest surfaces are barley color, so keep to a predominance of the color in the other rooms. Barley with a combination of blue and accents of apricot in one room. Barley with a combination of brown, with touches of blue and mulberry and accents of apple green in the next.

The adjoining room in this case is a dining room. The barley paper is in fine two tone. The rug is a Wilton rug in light brown with a tracery all over in blue. The cretonne lambrequins have a barley ground with flowers of violet blue and blue violet with green and blue foliage.

The side lights over the mantel have shield shades of apple green silk, and trained up to the wall around them are branches of ivy—the conventional Della Robbia ivy made of tin and painted in natural color. The chair seats are in old blue. The glass curtains are of barley colored net; over the buffet is an old fashioned painting of flowers and fruit, framed in a walnut frame.

Next to the dining room is a gay little sun room that is used as a breakfast room. For floor covering it has a barley colored linen rug, and the furniture is painted barley color with a tiny lemon colored edge. The lambrequins and draw curtains are of lemon and turquoise striped cretonne over glass curtains of light greenish gold colored gauze. On the window seats are two black velour cushions dazzingly embroidered in apricot, lemon, violet, turquoise, and green.

Wouldn't the sunshine and the life be withdrawn from any one of these three rooms if the chintz were barred out? The whole point is to use chintz, but discriminately. Not to let it run riot all over everything. See that the chintz you select is not only of excellent quality and design, but see that the colors produced in it hold the key to the colors in the room; that is, that they repeat all the other colors employed in the room.

More than 50 per cent of all the fabric in the room should be unfigured The result will show judicious selection, restfulness without monotony, and quiet dignity without mournfulness.

Cheer up, O ye of slender means; chintz is not yet on the prohibition list!

DOG SUPERSTITIONS

by DORIS BLAKE

NATURALLY anything which has produced such splendid tributes in prose, in poetry, and in human devotion as a dog would have much folklore accumulated around it.

Everybody is familiar with the southern Negro superstititon about the dog baying at the moon being an omen of death, and if it howls twice and stops it is for a man; if three times, a woman.

Did you know if you wish on seeing a spotted dog, and you do not see it again, you will get your wish?

If a girl dislikes dogs, she will never get a good husband.

If you meet a mastiff, and it makes friends with you, you will soon meet some one who will prove a fine friend.

It is bad luck to give a dog away.

If you step on a dog, there will ensue a change in your vocation.

Another Negro superstition is that a little white dog is supposed to be a messenger of coming evil.

Another interpretation of the dog howling heavenward is that it foretells a great fire disaster.

In slavery times the Negroes thought that if they wanted to keep dogs from scenting their tracks, they should go to the graveyard, get some dirt out of the grave and rub the feet with it.

It is bad luck to meet a barking dog early in the morning.

The lively barking of dogs in Lent is a sign of a wedding to which there is much objection.

If a dog dies under your house, it is a sign that you will soon move to another residence.

The Indians offered up a small dog when a child lay sick, supposing the dog to be the cause.

It is good luck to have a dog return after it has been driven away.

If the pet dog is unhappy, its master is the same.

To encounter a Mongrel dog is to expect sickness in the family.

In ancient Persia if one was dying a dog was brought in to drive away the waiting demons.

It is unlucky for a dog to pass between a couple who are going to be married or between two friends.

If your dog leaves home, as some dogs have a habit of doing, you can make him stay home by placing a few hairs of the end of his tail under the steps at the entrance to your home.

If on entering a strange house a dog should make much of you, especially if it should lay its head on your lap, you are going to meet a man who will be a strong and faithful friend.

It is good luck to be followed by a dog if it comes of its own accord.

For a strange dog to track up a newly scrubbed porch is a sign the family will move soon.

When you pick out a friend do not take the man whose dog never wants to follow him. Also beware of the man your dog refuses to make friends with.

If a pet dog utters inarticulate sounds as if trying to speak you will hear news.

Dogs rubbing their noses on the floor is a sign of windy weather.

The ancient Gauls believed a dog knew of its master's death, no matter how far they were separated.

It is a good sign if a dog approaches a sick person.

For a sleeping dog to bark is supposed to be a sign of impending ill.

If a strange dog follows you wagging its tail, you will receive a letter.

If a dog wallows on his back, he is said to be measuring somebody's grave.

The southern Negroes hate the hound. They say it used to be a nice sleek watch dog which Adam left to guard the gate of Paradise, but it went snuffing around to find a hare or rabbit and let the old devil sneak in. Then the Lord said it should be a dog no longer, but a hound, always hunting and always starving, so to hear a hound is a bad sign.

In ancient Egypt, to put a dog to death was as if you murdered your grandfather.

The ancient Persian would never kill a dog, for if he did he would slay his own soul, and the effects of the act would continue to the ninth generation.

In Japan it is unlucky to kill a dog.

A Chinese will not kill a pariah dog; to do this is the sign of a terrible calamity.

Etiquette

By Elizabeth Van Rensselaer.

Questions on etiquette will be answered if you write to Elizabeth Van Rensselaer, Chicago Sunday Tribune. If you wish a personal reply please inclose a stamped, addressed envelope.

BLONDE: The boy is quite right in not kissing you good night, since you are not engaged. Well bred girls do not allow such familiarity, and the young man is probably wise enough to know this.

MRS. G.: Except to servants or employés of some other kind, it is proper to speak of your husband as "my husband," or, to intimate friends, as "John."

* *

C. M. L.: It is the man's place to thank his partner for a dance, but she may add, if she likes, that she, too, has enjoyed it. Consomme is quite suitable to serve at luncheon. Club sandwiches are eaten with a knife and fork.

* *

Mrs. R. K. S.: For such a small luncheon you might serve consomme and crackers, creamed chicken and mushrooms in patty shells, French fried potatoes, spinach, rolls, tea, fruit salad and crackers [this course could easily be omitted if you wish], vanilla ice cream in meringues, and lady fingers. Place cards are not absolutely necessary, but they are often effective in carrying out a desired color scheme. Pretty ones are quite simply made by pasting butterflies cut out of crepe paper napkins on plain white cards.

Hair Curled This Way Looks Naturally Wavy

Tonight, after you have brushed out your hair, dip a clean tooth brush into some plain liquid Silmerine and draw it through the hair, strand by strand. This is by far the best thing you can use if you want your hair to appear naturally wavy and curly, glossy and beautiful.

When you behold yourself in the mirror tomorrow morning, you will vow never to go back to the drying, devitalizing curling iron. Liquid Silmerine is neither sticky nor greasy, and will not discolor the hair, spot the scalp, or produce any harmful effect whatever. A few ounces, which of course can be had at any drug store, will last for weeks.

For and By BUSINESS GIRLS

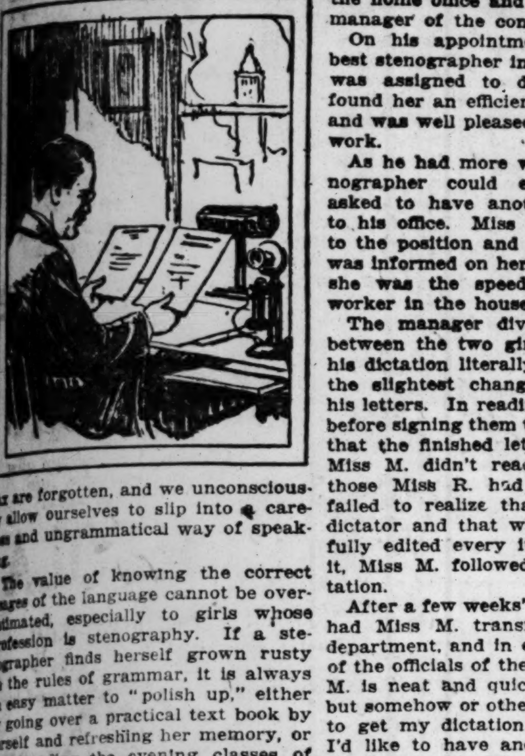
By Loretta King.

KNOW YOUR GRAMMAR.

Miss King will be glad to help business girls solve their problems. If you want a personal answer send a stamped, addressed envelope. Address Miss Loretta King, The Sunday Tribune, Chicago.

If we are to judge by the careless use of the forms of speech by the average business woman in conversation it is evident that too little attention is attached to the importance of expressing oneself clearly and grammatically in conversation and writing. The advantages of a knowledge of the rules governing our language are appreciated by too few women in business.

School days are hardly over before the rules governing grammar and syntax are forgotten, and we unconsciously allow ourselves to slip into a careless and ungrammatical way of speaking.



The value of knowing the correct usages of the language cannot be overestimated, especially to girls whose profession is stenography. If a stenographer finds herself grown rusty on the rules of grammar, it is always an easy matter to "polish up," either by going over a practical text book by herself and refreshing her memory, or by attending the evening classes of the public school in her district, or one of the many private institutions that gives such courses.

A great many business men depend upon their stenographers to turn out well formed and correctly punctuated letters. Some men frankly and admittedly leave the matter of correct phrasing of their dictation to their stenographers. Others, while fully as dependent upon the stenographers, never realize that their letters are carefully edited before they are ready for signing.

As an instance of the latter there is the case of the new general manager of a large manufacturing plant. After serving as branch manager for a number of years he was recently called to the home office and appointed general manager of the concern.

On his appointment, Miss R., the best stenographer in the general office, was assigned to do his work. He found her an efficient and capable girl and was well pleased with her finished work.

As he had more work than one stenographer could easily handle, he asked to have another girl assigned to his office. Miss M. was appointed to the position and the new manager was informed on her appointment that she was the speediest and neatest worker in the house.

The manager divided his dictation between the two girls. Miss M. took his dictation literally and never made the slightest change in transcribing his letters. In reading over his letters before signing them the manager found that the finished letters turned in by Miss M. didn't read as smoothly as those Miss R. had transcribed. He failed to realize that he was a poor dictator and that while Miss R. carefully edited every item while writing it, Miss M. followed literally his dictation.

After a few weeks' trial the manager had Miss M. transferred to another department, and in explanation to one of the officials of the firm, said: "Miss M. is neat and quick with her work, but somehow or other she doesn't seem to get my dictation as Miss R. does. I'd like to have another girl for my department like Miss R. She just suits me."

He tried several girls before he found one just as good as Miss R., but she probably would have gone the way of the others if Miss R. hadn't suddenly realized the source of the trouble and coached the new girl in editing the manager's dictation.

REAL LOVE STORIES

AN AUTUMN REUNION.

Do you know a real love story—one that is stranger than fiction? It is the idea that is wanted. No attention will be paid to literary style. The Tribune will pay $5 for every story published. No manuscripts returned. Address Doris Blake, The Tribune, Chicago.

John and Mary were born in Ireland in the same village. They grew up together, and when Mary was 18 and John 21 became engaged to be married. John set out for America to make his fortune, and promised to send for Mary just as soon as he was able.

In course of time John, who was faithful to his first love, began to hear rumors of Mary's flirtations, and Mary, who in turn was most faithful to John, began to hear the same rumors about him. Both were piqued at what they heard, and in their jealousy did not take the trouble to find out the truth.

The result of this misunderstanding was that Mary married one of John's rivals at home and later came to America. John, hearing of Mary's marriage, eventually married a girl in this country. Though in the hearts of both the old love was much alive, they made respectively a good wife and husband, and reared families.

Years passed, and John's wife died, as did also Mary's husband. Both were dependent, as fortune had not favored them kindly. So John lived with one of his sons, and Mary left her own home and went to live with a daughter who happened to live in the same town as did John's son. Eventually the two met, and their joy knew no bounds, though at this time Mary was 70 and John 73 years old. They kept their early history entirely to themselves, letting it be known only that as children they lived in the same village.

In their frequent visits they renewed their youth, and found out the mistake that both had made. And then one day they were quietly married without the knowledge of their friends. Each went home and continued to live as before, with the same visits, the same reminiscences, the same exchange of confidences, only that it was noticed and often remarked that those two old people seemed to have some wonderful new source of joy.

And then one day the visits ceased—John came no more; he had "gone home," they told Mary. It was evident that she missed him sorely, but she appeared sort of exalted and to live out of herself, as it were, from that time on. And when a short time after her turn came to go, she told the story to her daughter, and asked that her rightful name be placed on her tombstone, adding: "For though I had him not, nor he me, still I had him always and he me, and in the end we came into our own."

Mary was my grandmother.

White or Rye?

Once while I was stopping at a boarding house there happened to be a young man who was trying hard to learn proper table manners. One evening at dinner he handed me his fork and in a polite tone of voice said, "Please fork me a piece of bread."

R. E. R.

Once a Month.

My uncle lived in a boarding house where the windows were so dirty that everybody got disgusted. So one day he wrote with his finger on the dirty pane, "Mary, wash this window." When Mary, the maid, saw it the next day, she wrote under it, "Wait until the first of the month." The landlady hearing about it, ordered every window in the house washed, much to the delight of the rest of the boarders.

When the Glassware Fell.

In completing my college course it was necessary for a few weeks to wait table for my board. One of our duties was to reset the tables for the following meal. One of the young men waiters was a noisy fellow to begin with and danced along as he carried two armfuls of glass tumblers reaching higher than his shoulders. If he chanced to break any of them he would start to sing at the top of his voice to avoid the noise of crashing glass as he threw the fragments out of the window, and the proprietor never knew where his china and glassware were going, as he never discovered any broken pieces.

SERGEANT'S
MANGE MEDICINE
Makes Healthy Scalps

CHILDREN get sick and have skin troubles when they are underfed. The scalp gets sick and is covered with dandruff when it is underfed.

Sergeant's Mange Medicine stimulates increased circulation of blood to nourish the scalp. This in turn feeds the hair roots. By making the scalp perfectly healthy Sergeant's stops dandruff, itching and falling hair. Its invigorating qualities refresh and strengthen the scalp tissues so that they can grow handsomer, better hair and make men and women look younger.

Recommended by physicians to prevent fever baldness after Influenza, Grippe, Typhoid, etc. 65c at all drug stores. Guaranteed satisfaction or money refunded. Applied by leading barbers.

THE THEATERS

By Percy Hammond.

WHEN Shakespeare comes to town it is a practice of the Swan's faithful habitués to unlock the vast repository of William Winter's criticism, and thus prepare themselves for the festival. Communion with that lamented sage's tireless observations on the plays and the players of Shakespeare fertilizes the mood of the auditor and impregnates his understanding with rich suggestions. Before attending "Hamlet" at the Studebaker, for instance, it is entertaining to peruse, in "Shakespeare on the Stage," Mr. Winter's inventory of the actors of that rôle hints that he was an unhappy man.

His catalogue of Hamlets from Garrick to Robert Mantell contains but two players deemed worthy to wear the mantle of the "brooding and anguished prince"—Edwin Booth and Henry Irving. Forrest was robustly menacing rather than poetically melancholy; Davenport satisfied the sense of form, but not the sense of soul; Barry Sullivan was a man of action, not a baffled dreamer; and McCullough was impeded by insuperable obstacles, both physical and spiritual. MacCready, quoting Clement Scott, lacked tenderness, inspiration, and imagination; Wilson Barrett showed mere celerity, and E. S. Willard was only a smooth, middle aged gentleman, never the dejected, haunted, bewildered, mournful, half-crazed Hamlet.

For Sir Herbert Tree, Mr. Winter has many adjectives. He was shallow, [illegible], angular, metallic, immobile, [illegible], hollow, inflexible, capricious, [illegible], emotionless, infelicitous, and [illegible], though Mr. Winter deemed Sir Herbert's impersonation otherwise that of an expert actor. Mr. Sothern's Hamlet, to Mr. Winter's mind, though respectably meritorious, is without tragic power, is incurably deficient in the imagination and the glamour of genius—undistinguished and commonplace. The manner of Sir Johnston Forbes-Robertson dwindled in Hamlet to that of the preceptor—uninspired and lacking the predominance of a great personality. Mr. Mantell, upon whom Mr. Winter bestowed the leadership of the American stage, lacks the Hamlet temperament, and as for the foreigners—Bandmann, Fechter, Rossi, Sonnenthal, Mounet-Sully, and Novelli—Hamlet did not exist for them. Mr. Winter called Sarah Bernhardt's Hamlet a crucifixion. "Alas, poor Hamlet!" he cried as he wrote of her performance—a dapper, shrill voiced, anemic, vapid, [illegible], shrewish, splenetic, loquacious, chattering, and whimsical—an epicene hybrid. "She invaded England with this popinjay Hamlet," groaned Mr. Winter, "and actually exhibited him in the Shakespeare Memorial theater at Stratford-on-Avon!" Mr. Winter had forgotten, perhaps, of the first desecration of that dubious shrine by its founder, Mr. Benson, who, as Mr. Walkley said, was at least the most athletic of the Hamlets.

William Faversham in the rôle of Charles Surface will be Miss Billie Burke's co-star in "The School for Scandal."

In the forthcoming production of "Howdy Folks" at the Olympic, Alphonse Ethier, who recently replaced Lionel Barrymore in "The Jest," will have the rôle of a mountaineer parson of the "fighting" sort. "Howdy Folks" is a dramatization of a story by Mrs. Elia W. Peattie, and was played not long ago in New York under the name of "Thunder."

Congressman Yates laments in a letter to John Drinkwater that the contents of "Abraham Lincoln" do not include the sentimental and romantic aspect of the President's life—his youthful and dramatic passion for Anne Rutledge. Says he:

"I regret that, in the tremendous effort—it must have been stupendous—to portray as many as possible of Lincoln's different attributes, there was no opportunity to weave in the romance of his youth, his love (in life and death) of Anne Rutledge. When Anne Rutledge, his sweetheart, suddenly sickened and died, his great heart broke over her lonely and lowly grave. . . . We who have lived in Illinoise all our lives, near to all the Illinois things in Lincoln's life, feel—or at least many of us feel—that the memory of the loved and lost one, Anne Rutledge, contributed more than anything else to make Lincoln what he was, the saddest man of his time. If it could be possible that 'Lincoln, the lover' could be showen in a play, well, I for one would be glad."

Miss Grace George is bound hither in "The Ruined Lady" and will reach the Princess March 1 for an indefinite stay.

The Sothern-Marlowe season at the Studebaker justifies itself so amply by its unusual excellence that there is no need for an apology from Mr. Sothern for returning to the stage after having bade it an unequivocal farewell. However, his words of explanation have the virtue of a human and honest frankness, and they are printed for that reason; and also as an amende for certain none too gracous remarks made hereabouts upon the subject a week or two ago. Mr. Sothern says:

> We really have no right to be here. My last appearance in Chicago in "If I Were King" was announced as my farewell to the stage, and the fact that the engagement was interrupted by my illness does not exonerate me from acting again, after having obligated myself by that announced farewell. Mrs. Sothern never intended to appear in public life again, so we are both openly committed to having broken our word.
> We can only say in our defense that after returning from abroad we found that we did not know what to do with ourselves. We had intended to settle down in England, but conditions there were not at all conducive to the sort of life we had looked forward to. We returned to America and went down to Washington to look for a house. It was while we were there that Mr. Lee Shubert called on us, and very kindly insisted that the public would like to see us again. So we came back, and are here to stay as long as the public shows a desire to see us. We duly apologize for having broken our word and we put ourselves at the mercy of the press.

Morris Gest, producer of "Aphrodite" and the absentee landlord of the La Salle, Chicago, is about to embark for Europe, where he will scrutinize the gayer capitals for material for his several theaters. The principal object of his journey, however, is to reach Odessa, there to search for his father and mother, who are among the vanished in the Russian debacle.

Among the silver and imminent pinions which hope waves o'er our heads are "The Rose of China," March 2, at the La Salle; Frank Tinney in "Some Time," Feb. 29, at the Studebaker; "Howdy Folks," March 1, at the Olympic; Mrs. Fiske in "Mis' Nelly of Orleans," March 1, at Powers'; Miss Grace George in "The Ruined Lady," March 1, at the Princess, and "Monte Cristo Jr.," a Winter Garden spectacle, at the Woods, Feb. 29.

Mr. Kaufman of the New York Times wires me in a moment of levity that George Cohan was cross-examining applicants yesterday for parts in one of his new productions:

"Can you dance?" he asked of a young woman who had been waiting an hour.

"Sure," replied the candidate.

"Can you sing?" continued Mr. Cohan.

"Well," replied the lady, "I can sing as good as you can."

"But I asked you," retorted Mr. Cohan, "can you sing?"

The Sothern-Marlowe bill this week is: "The Taming of the Shrew" tomorrow, Thursday, and Saturday afternoons; "Twelfth Night" Tuesday and Saturday nights; and "Hamlet" on Wednesday and Friday. They are the sanest of the Shakespearean performances—star, associates, scenery, and interpretation. Go to them, or for ever after hold your peace.

Miss Crothers Revives an Old Play

By Burns Mantle

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—It was a little the luck of the Irish that brought James Forbes' play of "The Famous Mrs. Fair" to production in New York ahead of Rachael Crothers' "He and She," the luck of the Irish plus a newer twist to an old theme. They are both inspired by the problem of the lady who wants a career and a home too, but the Forbes opus deals with conditions following close upon and appertaining to the late war, while Miss Crothers' play, having been written seven or eight years ago, is concerned with a problem that could have arisen at any time, and is arising with considerable frequency just now.

"He and She," called "The Herfords" when it was produced originally by George Tyler in Boston, with Viola Allen as the heroine, presents a clash of artistic temperaments as its subject. Mr. Herford is an artist and Mrs. Herford a sculptress. Artistically they are ideally mated. They compliment each other's work and believe sincerely in each other's genius. When Mr. Herford enters a competition for a frieze for which a prize of $100,000 is offered the winner, Mrs. Herford, is keenly interested in his chances of success—until she looks upon his finished model. Then she is not so sure. He has missed an intangible something that she feels the work should possess. To prove her point she submits a design of her own, and begs him to take it and use it as though it were his own.

Manlike, he refuses. For a woman she has done very well, but—— Generously he suggests that she also enter the competition. The result, so far as the outcome of the contest is concerned, is obvious. Mrs. Herford wins the prize. Mr. Herford is the second [illegible] of the committee. He tries to [illegible] that he is glad of her success, but his pride is hurt. Also the other members of the family and all their friends feel that some way there has been a miscarriage of justice. They treat Mrs. Herford as though she had, however unintentionally, blocked her husband's career. As the head of the family it was his right to succeed.

Herford refuses to touch any part of the prize money. If he had won it he would have expected her to use it as her own, but he cannot willingly sacrifice his masculine prerogative as the provider for his family. Take that away from him and his ambition is killed.

The situation, so far as the Herfords are concerned, is clarified by the coincidental problem of their 16 year old daughter, who has been away attending boarding school. That she might not interfere with her mother's work she has been left at school during a vacation period. During that time she has fallen in love with the chauffeur who operates the school bus. Now she runs away from school and announces her intention of marrying the young man. Hearing the account of this adolescent romance and realizing the danger in which her girl has stood, the mother is brought face to face with her duty toward her child and voluntarily sacrifices the glory of the career she might have had.

Miss Crothers has tried to approach her theme from every angle. The counter plots are carried by a young woman who sacrifices marriage because she cannot bring her young man to an agreement to compromise the issue of a career versus a home, and he marries a normal young person who has no illusions regarding the intent of the Lord when "male and female created He them." They are arguments that in this feministic age sound

By Mae Tinée.

THE producers tell me that exhibitors are rather shying away from this picture for fear that it may antagonize the labor element. For the life of me I don't see why this should be. The production seems to me a fairly presented illustration of conditions as they exist. The genuine people in both capital and labor parties are portrayed with dignity. And from what I understand of the bolsheviki, this element in the picture is not overdrawn.

There are a number of lovable characters in the cast, headed by Lloyd Hughes. He is shown as a visionary, led astray by illiterate fanatics—butchers flaunting lambskins. Mr. Hughes is good looking, unaffected, and deadly in earnest. And there's a little-boy something or other about him that makes you want to give him bread and jam. Dear old Walt Whitman as the boy's father, patiently waiting in the small town for his son to come home and take care of him, is splendid. Miss Castledon as mill owner, representing capital in its just, sane, and kindly light, is charming to meet.

The picture, besides being remarkably well acted, is thoughtfully staged and directed. There are some rather remarkable mob scenes. The photography is clear and effective.

So, I don't see why the exhibitors should worry about offending anybody. The few the picture will offend should be offended!

The three readers who first sent in the most nearly correct solution of the puzzle in The Tribune two Sundays ago are: Ruth Clarke, 830 West Garfield boulevard, Chicago; Jimmy Heyn Jr., 1219 North Shore avenue, Chicago; Ira R. Grosby, 7006 South Green street, Chicago. Here is the correct solution:

"Last night I dreamed that William S. Hart called up and said 'In my cellar I have nine hundred gallons of something that Conway Tearle would give his soul for. He would even give up gladly that weary, wistful, and winning expression that makes him so popular with the ladies of the screen. He would swap those shapely shoulders for what I have in my cellar.'

"'And as for Harrison Ford! Ha!

"I said, 'Ah, jealous, Mr. Hart, aren't you? And why should you worry about the shapely shoulders of Mr. Tearle or his weary, wistful, and winning expression? Or why care about the many charms of the other gentleman you mention when you have what you have.'

"'Yes, my cellar!' he chortled. But I said, "No, your middle name! You have a middle name that nobody knows but me!'"

Listen to this, will you? Edythe Chapman is said to be a direct descendant of the first Jones family to come to the United States and who founded the town of Carrington, Mass., in 1638.

D. W. Griffith is reported to have "signed up" Laurette Taylor.

a bit like platitudes, particularly to our numerous little groups of advanced thinkers. But basicly they are sound, both in their sincerity and in their conclusions. And they make for an interesting thesis drama that is sure to provoke discussion and to entertain an audience during their presentation.

Lawrence Langner has also written a play about the husband and wife who cannot agree as to the proper life work of either, but his effort is a satirical comedy and rather good fun. The Provincetown players presented it in their Macdougal street playhouse last week.

In this comedy the husband is a novelist and the wife an interior decorator. She is all for the home beautiful, which gets terribly on his nerves, and he is trying to write stories of the happy fireside life of the middle classes. Also she buys most of the meals from the delicatessen shop and he suffers terribly from indigestion. When at last they do find a good cook the husband is so relieved that he takes to loafing in the kitchen. Thus he escapes the discomfort of the stiffly artistic living room and is also properly fed. When the cook, a wholesome, middle aged Irish woman, decides to leave rather than include the washing and ironing as a part of her duties, [at $65 a month], the husband leaves with her.

Cook and husband take an apartment in Washington square. There he is able to write his books and forget the soda bicarbonate and the pepsin. But the cook has a cousin on the police force who is a stickler for morality. This young man convinces her that she is a wicked woman. She feels herself that there must be something wrong in "livin' a life of shame—and enjoyin' it." So she purposes to send the husband back to his wife. He tries to tell her that right and wrong are only relative, but she replies that she knows it—"relatives is what chuses all the trouble." Finally she convinces him that their present arrangement cannot continues and he—taking a last piece of her delectable pie in his pocket—goes home.

Then enters the wife. She doesn't want her husband back. She has been much happier without him. The new arrangement is quite to her liking. She thinks him a cheat and a villain for having stolen her best cook—but rather that than that she should have to go back to sweeping up his cigaret ashes. So a compromise is effected. The husband stays on with Annie—and Diantha telephones her gentleman friend that all is well.

Quite in the village mood, this bit of comedy, and hugely enjoyed by the natives. It is the only play on the new bill of the Provincetowners that is worthy of stage space. They are not living up to their promise of a few seasons ago, these earnest amateurs. Their original intention was to help the obscure American dramatist with American plays. They were responsible while this resolution held for bringing Eugene O'Neil, whose "Beyond the Horizon" is already a big success at its special matinée performances, to the notice of the public, and for helping Susan Glaspell, the novelist, to new prominence as a playwright. Now they appear to be mostly interested in those bizarre and grotesque bits that mean little and accomplish nothing.

Ask Me! Ask Me!

ARKANSAS: The Chicago offices of the "Near East" relief are at 120 West Adams street. No trouble at all.

LOUISE T.: Sorry, my dear, but I haven't room in this column to print the list of addresses you want. Won't you repeat your request, sending me a stamped, addressed envelope at the same time?

STELLA: Yes, I think Gladden James is nice—what I have seen of him. He's working now at the Talmadge studios in "A God Woman." "The Heart of Wetona" is the picture I think you refer to. He was in that.

R. D. T.: Quite peppy, aren't you, Reginald? Or maybe some folks might term it "fresh"? Much obliged for your love. I packed it away in pepper. Address Pauline Frederick care Goldwyn, Culver City, Cal.; Will Rogers, same; I dunno; Gladys Brockwell, care of Fox, Los Angeles. Are you a nut? Well, don't ask me that after your letter and expect any frantic denial.

ALICE F.: I am overcome: Laura Jean Libby, I swear thou art, Alice F.!

THANK YOU: Y'wekkum. We have did what we was told. Aren't our grammar something orful?

MABEL T.: The article you refer to appeared in The Tribune of Dec. 31. If you will write to the circulation department inclosing 4 cents in stamps, mentioning the issue you wish, it will be sent to you. Y'wekkum.

Boys' Right Posture suits and overcoats sharply reduced

If your boy has tested out Right Posture clothes style and wear—and if you have been cheered by your boy's straighter carriage owed to the Right Posture feature in the clothes—you both will be glad to profit by the reductions in a clearance of this winter's styles—particularly with two months of cold weather still to come, and sharp advances in all clothing prices predicted for next autumn.

Right Posture overcoats and suits in medium and light weights reduced to 22.50

This low clearance price is certain to popularize Right Posture clothes with a broader circle of customers, who later will recognize that these suits and coats survive for months the severe usage given by active boys. Suits for boys of 7 to 17; coats for boys of 3 to 8.

The Right Posture feature is unique

—continually, almost imperceptibly but quite effectually, reminding the boy to stand erect. Moreover, Right Posture clothes have taped and serged seams that will not rip; bar tacked pockets; extra strength at points of wear; superior style; perfect fit; distinctive and durable fabrics.

Apollo Club Hampered by Need of Endowment Fund

By W. L. Hubbard.

IN connection with the thoughts expressed in these columns last Sunday relative to the worth of the choral societies and their members, some interesting and illuminating facts have come to hand concerning conditions under which our foremost singing organization is laboring. The organization is the Apollo club, and the conditions are such that every earnest music lover in Chicago can but wish they might be bettered.

That the Apollo club is now in its forty-eighth year and that it stands for the best musically that Chicago has achieved—even the orchestra not having done as long sustained service as has this band of voluntary singers—these facts do not require to be dwelt upon or urged as reason for need of continuance and support of the organization. The splendid work being accomplished now, and the knowledge that the Apollos have high place among the most capable singing bodies of the United States, and that their ideals and purposes are second to none—these alone fully justify the claim that such an organization should be preserved to us, and that its way to still greater achievement should be made easy and smooth.

It is no betrayal of information to state that the Apollo club labors under seriously hampering conditions. Only by an economy so strict and so severe that even the artistic efficiency of the chorus is oftentimes endangered, is the club brought through each season.

Owing to the fact that the Auditorium with its larger capacity cannot be obtained for any of the concerts, Orchestra hall with its more limited space must be used. Were every one of the concerts given there sold out to the last available place, the club would be able merely to "break even" on its expenses. As it is, even one concert in the series falling off at all in attendance means the loss of a corresponding amount, and the facing of a deficit at the close of the season.

This deficit has to be made good from a guarantee fund or by contributions solicited from friends and admirers of the club and its work. That such deficit has been met thus far from a small fund of $1,000, is due to the interest and generosity of a few men and women of Chicago, who realize the value of the Apollos and the labor of love they are performing.

But such close financial conditions do not make for peace of mind on the part of business management which is best and most favoring for ablest achievement. It is not the management alone, however, that suffers. The singers themselves feel the strain which financial uncertainty imposes, and, furthermore, they are hampered seriously in their work. For be it known that nearly all the concerts of the club have to be given without rehearsal with orchestra, and this simply because the money is not at hand to pay for such extra rehearsals.

The two new works which were given week before last—"The New Life" of Wolf-Ferrari and "The New Earth," by Henry Hadley—both of them compositions modern in style and of an intricacy and difficulty that demand complete mastery of every detail in order to be successfully presented were sung by the Apollo singers without having ever been tried through with orchestra! And the orchestra read the two scores virtually at sight, having had only a two hour rehearsal with the soloists on the day of the concert!

That the performance went as smoothly as it did is attributable solely to the thorough training of the singers which enabled them to "hold their own" no matter what the accompaniment might be, to the splendid skill of the orchestra which can play anything that is placed before it, and to the steady, dominant, knowing personality of Harrison Wild, who held all the various forces in shape. But such conditions should not be permitted to exist! They make for unnecessary strain and nerve wear on the part of all concerned and they cannot possibly permit the most finished and adequate achievement of which singers and players are capable.

A rehearsal had been planned for the Monday of the week preceding the concert, but score and parts which had been promised did not come until the following Wednesday. A rehearsal on the Sunday preceding the concert could not be arranged owing to Orchestra hall being occupied and besides the holding of such an extra rehearsal would have meant the expenditure of a sum close to $1,000.

Music patrons are not apt to be aware of the fact, but it is well they should be, since the knowledge helps to better appreciation of what is accomplished and what is left unaccomplished, that the Musicians' union charges a rate of $11 for every orchestral player taking part in such an additional rehearsal. There is one rehearsal allowed a choral organization hiring the orchestra, as does the Apollo club, but it is limited to just two hours in duration. And the Wolf-Ferrari and the Hadley works take two hours and a quarter for actual performance! About seventy men are required in the orchestra and the cost for this single rehearsal is therefore about $770. Combine with this the rental of $300 for Orchestra hall and over $1,000 is added then and there to the cost of a single concert! It is easy to see that for a voluntary organization running on financial margin close as is that on which the Apollo club runs, indulgence in many such rehearsals is impossible.

Take another instance: The Bach B-minor Mass, which is to be sung by the club in April, should by rights be given in two sections, the first beginning in the afternoon and continuing until dinner time, and the second commencing about 8 and lasting until near 10 o'clock. Such a presentation means comfort to singers and to hearers and makes for the full enjoyment of the master work. But to follow this plan—a plan successfully tried years ago but which had to be abandoned in recent presentation because of costliness—means that $800 is the price for such double service of the orchestra, the hall costs $500, the soloists engaged for next April will cost $875, the extra rehearsal which will be needed will mean an additional $1,000 and the amount spent for advertising and incidental expenses cannot possibly be kept under $300 to $400.

The total receipts for the concert if every place in Orchestra hall was sold would be only about $3,000. It requires no extensive familiarity with higher mathematics to see wherein Bach's B-minor Mass, if given in two divisions, cannot represent a source of income to the Apollo club!

The question may be put: "But is it necessary that the B-minor Mass should be presented?" The answer to that question should be and must be a positive and unhesitant "Yes!" There are music lovers who may not care to hear "The Messiah," "Elijah," the B-minor Mass, and kindred standard works, claiming that they are hackneyed and old fashioned. Admitting this charge of their being so well known that they do not appeal as they once did, yet, as was pointed out last Sunday, there are hundreds in every audience to whom these same familiar works come as absolute novelties. And for the sake of these oncoming music lovers, as well as for the sake of the musical well being and balance of our musical life, such works should have regular presentation.

Just as it is the actual duty of an organization like the Chicago orchestra to present every season a certain number of Beethoven symphonies and other standard works from the familiar repertory, so is it the duty of a choral organization such as the Apollos to keep yearly before its public such standard works as "The Messiah," "Elijah," and the B-minor Mass. They are the standerd-setters, whereby the new and the strange may be measured and judged. And to omit them from our musical life would be to omit that which is essential, is wholesome, and is stablizing. We need these works just as we need the new ones, and if either is to be sacrificed the new ones can better be spared than the old and tried. But both should be ours.

And they can be, if means but be provided for the helping of such an organization as is our Apollo club. It has been estimated that a guarantee of $5,000 a year for a period of some five years would mean the facilitating of just such work. Could fifty men and women of Chicago who appreciate the Apollo club and its work be induced to guarantee $100 a year the club would be placed where it could keep such standard works as "The "Messiah," "Elijah," the B-minor Mass, and possibly "Creation" and the St. Mathews Passion in regular rehearsal and as a fixed part of the repertory and could at the same time prepare one or two new works each season.

If Chicago citizens can meet a deficit of three of four hundred thousand dollars each season for opera, and can make good a deficit for orchestra, surely men and women can be found whose love for choral singing is such that they will be ready to pledge themselves for three or five years to meet the small sum of $5,000 or $10,000 needed to place the Apollo club and its unselfish, lofty activities on a permanent, confidence giving basis.

Announcements of concerts and recitals for the week will be found on page 6 of this section.

India paper makes the new

so light in weight that you can easily lift it and move it about—and yet there are 44,000,000 words, 30,000 pages, 15,000 illustrations and maps in it.

Only a few sets printed on genuine India paper are still unsold. Act at once if you hope to own one of these. They are the last that can be offered printed on this marvelous thin-and-tough paper.

ANYTHING that we might say as to the advantages of the Britannica printed on India paper could not be put stronger and more convincingly than in this paragraph

By a Big City Merchant

"I bought the Britannica to use. I expect to get out of it in dollars many more times than I paid for it. I know what a wonderful book it is for anyone who uses it. India paper makes it so light, so convenient, so inviting, that one can't fail to read it frequently. You say the Britannica printed on India paper is 'five times more valuable' than on ordinary book paper. I should say 'a hundred times more valuable.' This is based on my own experience.

"I owned a set of the old Britannica on heavy paper, but I didn't read in it four times a year. It was too heavy; I never had much inclination to look up anything in those big, bulky books.

"I've had the new Britannica, printed on the delightful India paper, less than six months. I use it CONSTANTLY, looking up whatever I want to know, sometimes reading as many as four and five articles a night."

This experience is repeated over and over in the case of owners of the Britannica, for of the 200,000 sets already sold more than 185,000 were India paper sets. The use of this wonderful linen-like paper for printing the world's most interesting and most comprehensive book of knowledge was inspired by the thought that it would increase the handiness of the Britannica—hence, increase its real value to those who possess it.

You, no doubt, know what a remarkable work the Britannica is—an inexhaustible fund of facts and information. Its highest practical value to you or anyone else depends, of course, upon its actual, frequent use.

YOU WANT THIS MARVELOUS WORK—the most complete and authoritative that ever came from the printing press, and you ought to have it on genuine India paper. But if you want a set, you must ACT immediately. There are left but a comparatively few sets on this famous paper—these are the last that can be offered. While they last, the sets of the popular "Handy Volume" issues of the Britannica in stock are offered at the present bargain prices, on the same convenient terms. Your set will be shipped to you immediately on receipt of your order and a first payment of only $1.

What the Britannica Will Do for You

Think of the Britannica as an investment, and consider whether you know any other way of investing the same amount of money, or ten times the amount, that will yield such large returns in profit and pleasure.

The Britannica will stimulate you to improve your education, whether or not you've had a college education. It will furnish you with a teacher of any subject you wish to study—a teacher who is master of his subject and who is always at your command.

It will give you the answer to the thousand and three questions prompted by the morning paper, lectures, sermons and books. It will make everything you see, read and hear more interesting.

It will enable you to lay out a plan of education for your children and keep abreast with their studies.

Can you afford to let this chance go by? Don't delay—send the coupon at once. This will bring you our beautifully illustrated 136-page booklet, which gives you evidence of the everyday practical value of the Britannica. Cut out the coupon, sign it and mail NOW.

If you are ready to subscribe now, write an order on a piece of paper and mail with a dollar bill and we will ship you a set at once.

West Indies Lure Americans as a Winter Playground

By Mme. X.

PANAMA.—[Special Correspondence.]—Why go 4,000 miles, across a most repulsively rough sea, to Europe, when a little over 1,300 miles southward lies an entrancing region with only the mild and amiable gulf of Mexico to be traversed?

Do you want foreign lands, languages, and people? They are here—England, France, Spain, Holland, Denmark, Africa—with none of the fogs, rains, storms, and other meteriological discomforts of winter in those countries. From Dec. 1 to May the weather in the West Indies is of unvarying perfection that is a continuous marvel to the traveler from the north.

There are more than fifty islands composing what are known as the West Indies, all green, flowery, and luscious, with a temperature that rarely runs above 85 degrees or under 70, unless one sits on the sands of Trinidad at noon or climbs to the top of Jamaican peaks. Nor are the hotels bad; some are good, especially those run by the U. S. army quartermaster's department in the canal zone, which are A1.

When these post war, troublous times have done, it is certain that commerce and ship travel will grow to great proportions in these southern waters, for here, beyond question, is the winter playground for us Americans. As soon as the world of leisure, with a taste for touring, discovers that all this beauty and these unequalled climatic conditions are within easy reach of our side doors—Key West and New Orleans—the surge this way will be formidable.

America's Proud Achievement.

Aside from any quest of the unusual, beautiful, or salubrious, every American who has the wherewithal should make it his business to visit the Panama canal. It will minister to his patriotism like—we can no longer say "wine to the weary," but we'll say like oxygen to the faint. It is, beyond question, the greatest achivement of modern times both from an engineering and administrative point of view, and, as an American studies its many departments, he or she simply swells with pride and wants to sing to all the rest of the world: "We are the people! Can you beat us?"

The canal zone should be called the district of the three great G's—Goethals, Gaillard, and Gorgas, and of these three not the least in the stature is the man who took the most pestilence infected, insect ridden part of the world and turned it into the healthiest spot on the whole globe, with not a fly or mosquito to be found today in the entire zone. We were horrified a few days ago to see one miserable, embarrassed, shame-faced fly fluttering about, but quickly realized that it had probably come on a ship from some other land. It is safe to surmise that it died of loneliness in a few minutes.

I'm not going to describe the canal. It's been written up by hundreds of great writers, but I do want to say that a visit to the great locks at Gatun, an inspection of that amazing machinery whereby one man up in a tower opens and shuts those huge water gates and lets big steamers pass up and down, a tramp through those miles of tunnels, an inspection of the amazing paraphernalia of the emergency dams would make the stanchest fail to shake the very foundations of her being, for not in a thousand years could Mrs. Pankhurst, or even revered Susan B. Anthony, design and build such a work. It is man conceived and man made from beginning to end.

Canal a Beauty Spot.

Why have none of the scribes who have described the canal told us of its exceeding beauty? It isn't like, the Suez canal or our own justly famous drainage canal, confined in hard, straight, "perspectiverous" banks; it meanders through an entrancingly lovely country of green hills and valleys, dark with tropical jungles. Smiling little palm shaded islands lie on its still, blue surface. Birds of many strange shapes and colors skim over it. Rare orchids are reflected in it. Friendly iquanas bask along its edges as the big ships of all countries glide slowly up and down from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

Uncle Sam has provided well for all his employés on the canal, whether military or civil. The housing arrangements include perfectly charming cottages, bungalows, and two, three and four family houses, pure water, lights, heat (for cooking), pretty gardens, clubs, restaurants, swimming pools, tennis courts, and stores where prices for everything are much lower than they are with us. Only employés may buy here, and they are divided into two classes, gold and silver employés. This is a relic of the early days of the canal when white labor was paid in gold and colored labor in silver. Most of the latter are from other West Indian places, many being from Jamaica.

Quaint Old Spanish Town.

Panama, the Pacific ocean terminus of the canal, is a delightfully quaint and gay old Spanish town, with charming houses and narrow, winding streets. The two American suburbs, Ancon and Balboa, are the prettiest residential districts you ever saw, a mass of flowers, purple bougainvillea, crimson hibiscus, and many colored croton shrubs, and shaded by royal palms, democratic banana trees, and gigantic rubber trees.

One could spend a month pleasantly at Panama—or rather at the government hotel at Ancon. There is a nine hole golf course in the country nearby, with a high, thatched, airy clubhouse where people gather. There are Sunday bull fights (for them as likes 'em). There are excursions to nearby islands, and excellent fishing in the bay. Also there are deer and mountain lions in the adjacent jungle for the shooting. Nights are cool and days of a lazy, pleasant, dry warmth. There is much social life in the official set, especially when the warships of foreign navies come a-visiting—as they do a great deal.

Fear Civil Control of Canal.

The one thing the people who live in the canal zone—the American civilians who have nothing to do with the running of the canal—dread is that the canal should be taken out of the hands of the army and put under civil government control. That would inevitably mean that the poison of politics would permeate this very perfect organization and would spell the ruin of the country's most valuable possession.

There isn't a man on the canal from the humblest stevedore to Governor Harding himself who doesn't look upon the canal with an almost passionate pride. Those who have been there since those early, bitter days when men died like flies at their posts, from a class apart, are the Brahmins of their kind and wear medals with bars to mark the length of their service.

Imagine an interprise of this tremendous importance and animated by such a spirit handed over to party bosses, ward politicians, and their ilk! And yet it is said that there are a lot of the politicians of both parties itching to get hold of the canal.

A congressman from a Pennsylvania district, who recently spent three days in the zone, reported on his return that the canal was run with extravagance. He omitted to mention in his report that he didn't see all that the canal officials planned for him to see because he decided to escort his wife on a shopping expedition in Panama. His report has the semblance of a stone thrown up to dislodge a ripe, red apple, hanging over Uncle Sam's wall.

Take Along Vaccination Mark.

When we started out on this voyage to the south the interest of officials (who seemed to be paid mainly to obstruct our passage) was concentrated chiefly on the question of our ages. At present it has shifted from that always moot question to the still more intimate one of our vaccination mark or marks. If you come to the Carribean sea I advise to provide yourself with a nice new vaccination scar and a pink paper certifying that it is your own scar and no one's else. And further, insist on getting the signed and sworn statement of every official in each port of your voyage that he has seen that scar before you try to enter the next port.

To be sure, it costs you $1.25 each time an English official takes a squint at it, and does he like his own money? He does not, for, while he charges you five shillings a squint, if you tender him five shining English shillings he wants to charge extra because you failed to give him American silver. Now, if a Britisher won't accept British money, who will, I ask you?

More Funds Needed to Aid Cottage at Park Ridge School

Of all the problems which we have come to group under the term "child welfare" the most important is the care of the dependent child, the child who is without home or proper parental care or protection. How much easier it is to train a little girl to be a self-respecting and self-supporting woman than it is to do anything for a girl who has become delinquent because she was neglected!

This vital problem is being solved in a measure by the maintenance of the Park Ridge School for Girls, thirteen miles from Chicago. Although the law calls this an industrial school it is evident to a visitor that it is also a home for the 120 girls who live there. There is a general mistaken impression that it is for the accommodation of delinquent girls. This, however, is not the case, as there is no equipment to deal with delinquents or subnormals and such cases are not taken. Most of the girls are dependents or wards of the courts, and there are some whose fee of $15 a month is paid by relatives or interested friends.

There are no hard and fast rules, except a certificate of health, for admission for girls who need the care and protection of the school.

In each of the several cottages there is a house mother who has a family of girls big and little under her care. Every member of the small family has her part of the care and work, in order that they may learn to be home makers and housekeepers.

One of the most interesting features of the education of these children is the special system of teaching made necessary because of the fact that county support for dependent children ceases when they reach the age of 16. Regular academic school work in the grades is carried on for half of the day, the remaining hours being devoted to vocational instruction. Domestic science, gardening, the making and repairing of their own clothes, as well as the more intricate forms of sewing, are among the worth while arts taught the girls. Interesting recreation, including instructive entertainments and the real good times that every little girl loves are provided with care and thought by the committee and teachers in charge. As a result the children are earnest in their work and happy in their play.

Situated on a farm of forty acres, given for the purpose by the late Mrs. Mancel Talbot, the location is ideal. The several attractive buildings of brown brick have been built at various times by Chicagoans who were interested in the project. The management is vested in a board of twenty-four directors. It is nonsectarian and is not affiliated with any organization, though it has benefited to a large degree from the interest and support of the women's clubs. Girls from 6 to 16 years of age are received and cared for for a small fee.

The Illinois cottage, completed in 1915, was the gift of the State Federation of Women's Clubs. Sixteen girls were thereby added to the number for whom the directors must provide. Feeling the obligation, the federation established a maintenance fund for this purpose, to which the clubs in the state make yearly contributions.

Last spring a committee was appointed to raise a fund of $5,000 to aid in the maintenance of the cottage. Having raised the stipulated amount, the committee members have agreed to continue the drive for several months longer, owing to the fact that the value of a dollar has decreased with the boost in the price of living. So the goal of $10,000 has been set, and the committee, headed by Mrs. Duane T. McNabb, is making an effort to raise the required amount within a few months.

Miss Ellen Holt, who is in active charge of the Chicago committee engaged in the drive for $4,000,000 for the Smith college endowment fund, has arranged a busy week for her assistants, as this is the last week for the drive. Two tearooms, one on the Lake Shore drive and one in Evanston, are helping to fill the coffers, as well as individual efforts being made by the various committee chairmen.

A speakers' campaign in which some of the most eloquent men and women interested in education are taking part is being carried out for the benefit of the Rosary college fund. Mrs. Edward J. Flemming has undertaken the task of supplying the speakers for 140 meetings in addition to the general district and club meetings. Among the speakers are Mrs. Anthony French Merrill, George Wheeler Hinman, James G. Condon, and Frank Comerford.

The Music Calendar: Concerts and Recitals

EUGENE YSAYE
MISCHA ELMAN

The famous violinists will be heard in a program of music for two violins in Medinah temple next Tuesday evening.

LEOPOLD GODOWSKY will give his first recital here this season in Cohan's Grand opera house this afternoon at 3:30. His program includes his own "Triakontameron," which is not some kind of geometrical instrument, neither is it a drink, but is a suite of some thirty short musical numbers written all in triple time and which bore when first created last summer the happier title of "Walzeriana." This will be the initial public hearing of the work in Chicago. Preceding it will be played a group of Chopin compositions which consists of the G minor Ballade, the G major Nocturne op 37 No. 2, two Studies, the F sharp minor Impromptu, and the C sharp minor Scherzo.

Edward Johnson, whose work with the Chicago opera is happily recalled, will give his first recital here this afternoon at 3:30 in Orchestra hall. He will sing a group of old Italian numbers, Carpenter's "Light, My Light" and "Her Voice," the Campbell-Tipton "The Crying of Water," Busch's "The Eagle," two groups of modern Italian songs, Hyde's "Beautiful Art Thou," Strickland's "Colleen o' Mine," Russell's "I Hold Her Hands," and Stickles' "Highland Joy."

Charles W. Clark, the well known baritone, will be heard in song recital in Kimball hall tomorrow evening. He has arranged an extensive program which includes "It is Enough" from "Elijah," "Rolling and Foaming Billows" from "The Creation," Faure's "Autumn," Debussy's "Mandoline," Widor's "The Diver," Schubert's "My Double" and "Who Is Sylvia," Schumann's "Belshazzar," Bibb's "Sea Foam," Homer's "Lone Dog," Strukow-Ryder's "Wind and Rain," Cesar Cui's "Three Birds," Moussorgsky's "Song of the Flea" from "Faust," Fisher's "Don't be Weary" and "Little Wheel." Guion's "Some of These Days," Howard's "Courtin' Liza Jane" and Richmont's "Ma Lil Banjo."

Herbert Gould, basso cantante, is to give a song recital in Kimball hall next Tuesday evening. The program contains old Italian songs, an aria from "Don Giovanni," and one from Haydn's "The Creation," a group of French chansons and two groups of English and American songs.

A concert of interest and importance is announced for next Tuesday evening as the next in the series being given in Medinah temple, corner Cass and Ohio streets. It will be a program enlisting the services of Eugene Ysaye, the eminent Belgian violinist, and Mischa Elman, the Russian. They will be heard in four compositions for two violins, the presentation of which last week in St. Louis called forth unqualified commendation from the press of that city. The selections to be offered are the Mozart Concertante in D major, the Bach Concerto in D minor, the Molique Concertante in F major with Cadenza by Ysate and the Moszkowski Suite for two violins.

Mabel Beddoe, contralto from New York, will be the recitalist in the morning concert in Ziegfield theater next Wednesday morning at 11. She will sing among other numbers a "Love Songs" cycle with words by Tagore and music by Bertha Koopman, a composition not yet given here; four selections from Mana Zucca's "A Child's Night in Song," Foote's "Tranquillity," Gretchaninoff's "My Native Land," Wick's "Winter," Massenet's "Lee Larmes," and Fourdrain's "Alger le Soir."

The St. Louis Symphony orchestra under Max Zach will give its first concert in Chicago next Thursday evening in Orchestra hall. The organization has existed for six years on permanent basis and stands for the highest achievement along serious musical lines that the Missouri city has placed to its credit. Mr. Zach was for many years player in the Boston Symphony orchestra and assistant conductor there. On Thursday the program will consist of the Goldmark Overture "In Spring," the Chausson Symphony in B-flat major, the Tschaikowsky "Romeo and Juliet," and the G-minor violin Concerto of Bruch, the solo part being played by the concertmaster of the orchestra, Michel Gusikoff.

Fritz Renk, American violinist, will give a recital in Kimball hall next Thursday evening. He has placed on his program the E-minor Sonata of Sjogren, the Tartini-Kreisler Theme and Variations, the Godowsky "Viennese," the Schumann-Auer "The Walnut Tree," the Vieuxtemps E-major Concerto, Burleigh's "An Indian Village," "The Bees," and "Summer Idyll," and Yost's "The Coquette."

Katharine Goodson, pianist, will be the soloist with the Chicago orchestra in its concerts to be given in Orchestra hall Friday afternoon and Saturday evening. She will play Liapunow's Concerto, which will at these times have its first presentations amid these surroundings. The symphony selected by Mr. Stock is the Bruckner No. 3 in D-minor, not heard here in nearly twenty years. Other numbers on the program are Mozart's Overture to "The Impresario" and Smetana's Symphonic Poem, "The Moldau."

Pablo Casals, the Spanish cellist, whose recent recital here was source of such complete artistic satisfaction, returns for another concert next Sunday afternoon. In Kimball hall he will play a program containing the A major Sonata of Beethoven, the D major Concerto of Haydn, Faure's Elegie and Sicilienne, Schubert's "The Bee," Popper's "Serenade," Tschaikowsky's Pezzo capriccioso, an Arioso by Bach, an Allegro by Senaille, and a Boccherini Adagio and Allegro.

ART

Arts Club Exhibit Offers Creditable Array of Canvases

By Eleanor Jewett.

THE most important event last week in things artistic was found at the Arts club, with its annual exhibition of works by professional members. An unusually distinctive array of canvases has been hung. Possibly this results from the compulsory selection forced upon the exhibitors. Each artist was allowed but one picture to be shown. Automatically, therefore, as one would presuppose, the painters chose to be represented by their best efforts. In consequence, there is little here to be criticized severely, and much to be approved.

When one considers it seriously, criticism need not necessarily be always didactic, always negative, nor always derogatory. There are many occasions, and this apparently is one, when the critic may be allowed to throw his mask and appear as other men, pleasantly interested in that which, pleasantly, is offered him.

Realization of this is occasionally most consoling. Take the present exhibit as test. One might—even might—wonder at the hanging of "Philip and Raggedy Ann" by Josephine L. Reichmann—though, on the other hand, it might be considered that hanging or any other form of destructive exercise is more than should be expected by these sawdust figurines—and; again, one might express surprise at the plaster of paris costume worn by the little boy in the portrait of "Mrs. S. and Son," by Antonin Sterba, or one might ask with an innocence tinged with irony why the "Long Garden" by Paul Bartlett, is not the "Night Garden"? But why should one do any of these things?

Life is too short to spend an hour on quibbles. It is better worth while to neglect the obvious sometimes, and to appreciate that which attracts appreciation.

Do you remember how on sultry summer afternoons the sun, in slowly going down the west sky through a tangled labyrinth of color, left behind, to fight some sort of rearguard action with the coming night, long, slender purple shafts of shadows? And these same shadows, traitors to their master, turned on the sun at last and became themselves the night.

In "The Shadow March," by Frank V. Dudley, that moment is portrayed. The sand hills lie, warm still from the hot glare of noon, in even rows, and over them creep silently the palpitating tenacles of shade, climbing farther, stretching farther, as dusk deepens.

The most striking portrait in the exhibit is that of Mrs. Charles Banes by Cecil Clark Davis. It is a charming piece of painting as well as an excellent likeness. The pose, the costume, the coloring, and the workmanship evinced are above reproach. Another portrait, equally fine, is "My Mother," by Pauline Palmer.

"The Oak," by Oliver Dennett Grover, shows an autumn countryside in which the principal note is struck by the dead crimson flare of the oak leaves touched by frost.

Frederic M. Grant has again succeeded in producing an unusually decorative canvas in the beautiful, fanciful marine, "The Great Adventure."

A consciously curious portrait of children is found in "The Hubbard Twins," by Anita Willets Burnham. The two little boys are dressed exactly alike in sailor suits and are seated at the piano with their backs facing the artist, pounding away with all the musical fervor in the world at a piece which probably is "The Angels' Serenade." And if it is not it deserves to be, were the virtuous attitudes of the musicians symbolical.

The most charming painting of a child that it has been my privilege to see in a long time is "I Have to Go to Bed by Day" by Anna Lee Stacy. The little girl is being cajoled by her nurse to take the first step in her long climb up the narrow steps to where the Sand-Man lurks. The composition in detail and as a whole is charming. The conception of this tragic moment that sounds in the lives of all children who beg for "just a minute longer" is more than charming. The stereotyped has for once been forgotten.

Another successful child portrait is that of "Ernest Lee Jahncke" by Robert W. Grafton.

Among the other paintings are "Quelques Fleurs," a decorative flower piece by Gerald A. Frank; "Lengthening Shadows," by Lucie Hartrath; "Cala Flowers and Cineraries," by Mabel Key; "California Landscape," by Alson Skinner Clark; "The Trawler," by Edward Holslag; "The Manikin," by Abram Poole; "Stormy Day," by L. O. Griffith; "Romance," by Dorothy Visju Anderson; "Betty," by Leora Westbrook Colburn; "Florida Sketch," by Ernest Morgan, and "The Bonfire," by Nell Coover.

The exhibition will close next Saturday.

In the exhibition of works by Chicago artists at the Art institute the Municipal Art league prize of $100 for portraiture was awarded to Gordon Saint Clair for his canvas entitled "Portrait."

A scholarship competition open to all art students in the United States, with the exception of those in New York City, will be held at the Art Students' league of New York on March 31.

Ten scholarships will be given to the work which shows the greatest promise. Work in any medium, from life, the antique, portrait, etching, composition, also photographs of sculpture, may be submitted. Work should be sent flat, not rolled, and should be forwarded so as to reach the league not later than March 27, and must be sent with return express or parcel post charges prepaid. Real Wonder-Worker For Wrinkled Faces

Those who have tried all sorts of so-called "wrinkle removers" in a vain effort to lose those unwelcome traces of age, illness or worry, can scarcely find words to express their delight with the wonderful Saxolite formula, once they have given it a trial. The success of this method is due not alone to its marvelous effectiveness—upon the deepest lines and crowsfeet, as well as upon the very fine ones—but also to its surprisingly quick action and its entire harmlessness. Its simplicity is another commendable feature, for one need only dissolve an ounce of powdered Saxolite in a half pint of witch hazel, and bathe the face in this solution. At once a remarkable transformation is beheld.

It is not only the effect on wrinkles and creases that is so noticeable, but facial contour is remarkably improved and the face looks much younger. One should be sure to ask the druggist for the powdered Saxolite. The lotion, being so refreshing, is particularly grateful to tired faces.

NEWS OF THE RELIGIOUS WORLD

Church Federation to Study Program of Work and Needs

By the Rev. Frederick L. Gratiot

THIS week has been set apart by the executive council of the Chicago Church federation for the consideration of work, needs, and opportunities of all the churches affiliated with it. On Monday and Tuesday the conference, which was postponed last fall because of conflict with the interchurch world movement meetings, will be held at the Hotel La Salle.

This conference is not to be confused with the conference of pastors called by the interchurch world movement to meet at Orchestra hall in March. The purpose of the conference is to review the work of the federation and to consider its program and opportunities.

"The Chicago Church Federation conference has its own definite and important field, and plans in the most thorough way to consider the problems connected with the various activities of the federation and the methods by which they can be most effectively promoted," reads the notice of the meeting. "Careful reports will be presented by each of the commissions and departments of the federation and these reports will be discussed. Some of the most important problems in connection with the coöperative work of the Chicago churches will be presented. There also will be inspirational mesages by prominent speakers."

Next Sunday has been set apart in all churches affiliated as "Church Federation Sunday," when the work of the federation will be presented and offerings for its support taken up.

The federation represents some 600 Protestant churches representing thirteen denominations. The staff of workers, which numbered three at the beginning of last year, now includes fourteen on a full or part time basis. Two new community federations have been organized and the work greatly enlarged in other directions. The monthly budget a year ago amounted to $500; it now exceeds $1,500. Fourteen hundred new contributors are listed by the treasurer.

The federation now has representatives in the following institutions: Geneva School for Girls, Juvenile court, St. Charles School for Boys, Juvenile home, House of Correction [women's section], Bridewell, Glenwood School for Boys, and Oak Forest infirmary.

The Rev. Herbert Willett, D. D., is president and the Rev. Walter R. Mee secretary.

The interchurch world movement has designated today as "Stewardship Acknowledgement Sunday," when all Christians are called upon to recognize their obligations to their churches and their responsibilities in the world as stewards of their wealth. Next Sunday is "Service Enlistment Sunday" and begins the campaign in all churches for the consecration of lives to the church. The campaign lasts until the Easter "harvest of souls." The call of the ministry is also presented at this time.

The diocese of Chicago celebrates on St. Mathias day, Feb. 24, the twentieth anniversary of the consecration of the Rt. Rev. Charles P. Anderson, D. D., bishop of Chicago.

The twenty-fifth anniversary of the dedication of the Plymouth Congregational church in Whiting, Ind., will be observed today. Dr. Frank W. Gunsaulus, president of Armour Institute, who delivered the sermon twenty-five years ago, Dr. J. C. Armstrong, superintendent of the City Missionary society of Chicago who offered the prayer, the Rev. L. A. Townsend of River Forest, who was pastor of the church at that time; and Arthur Beaubien of Whiting, who rendered a solo, will be present and take the same part that they did twenty-five years ago. The Rev. Charles E. Trueblood is the present pastor.

CHAPLAIN GEORGE T. MCCARTHY PHOTO BY CHAMBERS

Chaplain George T. McCarthy, the leading spirit in the organization of the Great Lakes post of army and navy chaplains (Roman Catholic), is a Knights of Columbus chaplain at the Great Lakes Naval Training station. When he entered the service as a Red Cross chaplain, he was pastor of the Roman church in Harvey, Ill. He was transferred from the Red Cross to the regular army, and upon returning to America, became connected with the Knights of Columbus. He was wounded by shrapnel in the left arm. At the banquet in connection with the recent meeting of chaplains of the Great Lakes vicariate he was toastmaster, and was largely responsible for the organization of what is believed to be the first post of chaplains who served in the great war.

The "each one win one" campaign of evangelism of the Disciples of Christ church begins today and continues until Easter.

Sinai Social center, 4622 Grand boulevard, will celebrate Washington's birthday by special services today. Col. Abel Davis will speak at the religious service this morning in Sinai temple, and in the afternoon at 3 o'clock in the social center building a children's program will be given.

"Ted" Mercer and H. H. Hadley II. will give a mission at the Episcopal Church of the Advent, Logan boulevard and North Francisco avenue, beginning tonight at 7:45 o'clock. Services will be held every evening concluding next Sunday. E. C. Mercer lived at one time in the White House, and was a "southern gentleman." He became an outcast, and was converted at the Jerry MacAuley mission in New York.

Lutherans are invited to attend the Washington's birthday celebration to be held this afternoon at 4 o'clock in the Studebaker theatre by the committee of Lutheran Laymen who are maintaining services there every Sunday afternoon. Special music will be rendered by the choir of 100 men and the Rev. S. T. Long, D. D., will preach.

The Rev. George Craig Stewart, D. D., rector of St. Luke's Episcopal church, Evanston, will be the speaker at the noon-day meeting at the Y. M. C. A. auditorium tomorrow at 12:10. He will speak on "Lent in La Salle Street."

The young people of the Reformed Episcopal churches of Chicago will hold a banquet and conference in Trinity church, Seventieth street and Yale avenue, Monday, Feb. 23. The business meeting and social period will start at 4 p. m. Dinner will be served at 6:30. The evening conference at 8 o'clock will be addressed by the Rt. Rev. Samuel Fallows on "Vital Questions of the Day."

The 100% Physic

WHAT happens when a physic fails to work? You are in worse condition than before, because the poisonous waste matter has had an opportunity to pollute the blood and spread a million disease germs throughout your body.

Time counts when you need a physic. You must be sure of the physic you take. Men and women who know, always take Pluto Water for themselves, and will give their children nothing else, because they can depend on Pluto. Pluto works every time, and it performs every function a physic should perform:

1st, it is sure. 2nd, it works quickly. 3rd, it is gentle and pleasant. 4th, it is a water laxative—(and water laxatives, which flush the system, are recognized as the best). 5th, the amount taken can be varied to suit the condition.

Pluto Water is the 100 per cent physic. It is bottled at French Lick Springs, French Lick, Indiana, and is a recognized curative agent for kidney, liver and stomach troubles, rheumatism and nervous disorders.

Your physician prescribes it

From the bulletin of the Art institute I have clipped the following, which bears its own message and which should be answered by as many persons as possible:

Soldiers at Fort Sheridan who are engaged in reconstruction work are in need of additional materials for the objects they make. In particular they need art linen (of any amount or color); new pieces of silk, satin, cretonne, upholstery stuff, and the like, for bag bases and bag linings; cross-stitch canvas; burlap and hooks for hooked rugs; reed for baskets, etc.; crochet cotton, yarn, embroidery silk for weaving; beads, both large and small; library paste; knitting needles; nut picks; blue, gray, and black dyes. The Alliance Francaise asks that these materials be sent by mail to Mrs. E. C. Dana, head aide and buyer for the division of occupational aides, Fort Sheridan, Ill.

INFLUENZA

A Precaution That May Prove Valuable

Influenza often leads to deadly pneumonia. This is the real danger point of the disease. Pneumonia means congestion and inflammation of the lungs. Take this precaution. Get a box of Begy's Mustarine today and at the first sign of trouble—influenza often begins with a cold—apply it liberally over the throat, chest and back, then call a doctor.

Begy's Mustarine will completely relieve the congestion and inflammation quicker than anything else you can use. It's ten times better than the old-fashioned mustard plaster that doctors used so much last year because—while it is just as strong—it cannot blister.

Down East during the last year's epidemic there wasn't a box of Mustarine to be had. Dealers were entirely sold out. Make sure of your box today and be ready for the emergency if it comes to your home. Be sure it's Begy's, the original mustard plaster improvement. 30 and 60 cents. S. C. Wells & Co., Le Roy, N. Y.

No More Corn Suffering

"Gets-It" Never Leaves a Corn On Any Foot For Very Long.

The hurting "pep" goes right out of that corn the moment a few drops of "Gets-It" lands thereon. It is through, and "for keeps."

Corns and "Gets-It" Can't Live Together

You'll have no more pain but will notice the corn getting loose and wobbly. In a day or so, you lift it right off without and feeling. That's the end of the corn and of your troubles. Millions have proved "Gets-It" to be the one and only unfailing, common sense corn remover. Why not you?

"Gets-It" costs but a trifle at any drug store and carries a money-back guarantee. Mf'd by

Thank the War For This

A new and wonderful antiseptic. 40 times more germ-destroying than carbolic acid. Yet not poisonous, doesn't burn, and is perfectly harmless to the skin or mouth.

One of the gravest problems in the early days of the war was the high death rate of the wounded.

Nearly every wound became germ-infected. All the old antiseptics proved practically useless. Blood poison, lock-jaw, etc., were increasing.

American scientists went to France and solved this problem by producing the most wonderful antiseptic ever invented. After that, infection was easily overcome, wounds often healing in one-fourth the usual time.

Since the war, leading physicians and dentists have proven it even more wonderful for home use.

This same wonderful chlorine antiseptic, now called Kloria, can be had in tablet form from any good pharmacy.

By scientific test, Kloria is 40 times more germ-destroying than carbolic acid—over 100 times more effective than peroxide, and 50 times more rapid than bichloride.

Yet Kloria is pleasant, soothing, doesn't burn or irritate, and is perfectly safe and not poisonous.

Deadly poisonous antiseptics are no longer needed in any home. Kloria takes their place for every purpose.

Most Ailments Caused by Germs

Not only the serious contagious diseases, but also most of the other human ailments, are caused by germs. Hence Kloria has dozens of uses, wherever germs can be reached, in the mouth, nose, throat, skin and about the home.

Don't Swallow Germs

Millions of germs breed in the mouth. They are swallowed, enter the system and produce serious diseases, besides causing sore throat, tooth decay and gum infections. An effective mouth wash is even more important than brushing the teeth.

Ordinary weak mouth-wash antiseptics or peroxide have practically no germ-destroying action (U. S. Govt. report). They merely prevent the growth of germs for a time. Kloria positively destroys germs at the moment of application. Besides, it is very inexpensive for the whole family.

Wonderful for the Gums

Amazing results follow the use of Kloria for pyorrhea. Usually within one week, gum soreness and bleeding disappear, and soon the gums tighten around the teeth, holding them firmly. The use of this great war antiseptic is now advised by leading dentists everywhere.

Heals Like Magic

Kloria has a quick healing effect not to be found in any other antiseptic, salve or lotion. Germ diseases of the skin, such as Eczema, Dandruff or Barber's Itch, are conquered with astonishing ease. A single application usually removes every trace of dandruff and stops the itching, without the least injury to the hair. It has no equal for the quick healing of cuts, sores, burns and boils. Used as a gargle or snuffed up the nose, it makes short work of the germs which cause colds, nasal troubles and sore throat.

Kloria is far superior to other antiseptics for personal hygiene. It is by far the best disinfectant and deodorizer for home, store or factory, yet it is very inexpensive to use.

Colorless—Stainless

Kloria solution keeps perfectly; is clean, colorless, stainless and leaves no odor of itself, though it destroys all offensive odors almost instantly.

Your druggist has Kloria Tablets or will gladly get them for you. If not, send us 50 cents for a bottle of 50 tablets, with our absolute guarantee to do all that is claimed or money promptly refunded. Avoid the disappointment of substitutes.

TABLOID BOOK REVIEW

Last week's best sellers in a leading Chicago book store were:

FICTION.

"The Great Impersonation" [Little-Brown], by E. Phillips Oppenheim.

"The Fortieth Door" [Appleton], by Mary Hastings Bradley.

"The House of Baltazar" [John Lane], by William J. Locke.

"A Man for the Ages" [Bobbs-Merrill], by Irving Bacheller.

"Slippy McGee" [Century], by Marie Conway Oehlmer.

"Uneasy Street" [Cosmopolitan], by Arthur Somers Roche.

NONFICTION.

"Lincoln" [Houghton-Mifflin], by John Drinkwater.

"The Autobiography of Theodore Roosevelt" [Scribners].

"Ludendorff" [Harpers].

By Fanny Butcher.

THE public library has had so many calls for "The Iliad" since THE TRIBUNE has been printing the lists sent out by the bureau of education that they were thinking of making it a seven day book!

"Noa Noa"—that strange record of two years in Tahiti, two years which not only brought Paul Gaugin to a complete surrender to the wisdom of beauty of the "barbarians" of the South seas but which put into his brushes much of the power and quality which have made him, with Cezanne and Van Gogh, recognized as a banner carrier of the new art, "Noa Noa," that attempt of an artist and a lover of a new civilization to imprison in words the form and spirti of a country and a people which had charmed him—"Noa Noa" is finally available in a translation from the French.

It comes as an echo to Somerset Maugham's "The Moon and Sixpence," the fictionized story of Paul Gaugin's life. "Noa Noa" has nothing of the later days of Gaugin's life in Tahiti, nothing by the radiant beauty of his first visit there, when he found the childlike joy in creation which he had always hoped to find.

As writing "Noa Noa" is, in spots, almost perfect. Only an artist, and a great one, can have the sense of the texture and pigmentation and vibrancy of words which Paul Gaugin had. Only an artist—a creator of line and color, with meaning to each line and color throbbing with life—would have said, "She was tall in stature, and all the fires of the sun burned and shone in the splendor of her flesh, while all the magic of love slept in the night of her hair," or of a quivering fish in the bottom of a boat, "Its body was transformed into a gleaming many faceted mirror, sending out the lights of a thousand fires." It is at the same time the most sophisticated and the most childlike word painting imaginable.

Quite aside from its literary charm, the book is invaluable to an artist, especially as it contains ten reproductions of Gaugin's Tahiti paintings.

A "cross of virtue" has been awarded Frederick O'Brien by a group of Philadelphia women because he acted as he did toward the beautiful and eager Marquesan girl who wanted to annex him as a temporary lord and master. The "cross of virtue" was accompanied by a letter which said that all the heroes are not of the war. Poor Mr. O'Brien can't make out whethe rthe Philadelphia women are spoofing him or are really publicly expressing their approval of his (one might say) heroic devotion to virtue. There's this about his "White Shadows in the South Seas" [Century]: If medals were struck off each year for the most fascinating book on each subject "White Shadows" would certainly be decorated as the most gorgeous book of travel. It is far and away the most alluring. Every one is jaunting to the South seas and probably half of the jaunters of the future will have "White Shadows" to thank for the tip.

James Norman Hall is another of the lit'ry folk who have flitted to the South seas. He is going to flit—literally—in an airplane over them and land on some and watch himself become emperor. Such things have happened before. Why shouldn't a handsome young white faced god appearing from the clouds, master of the air, become master of an island? And they say romance is dead! The history of the Lafayette flying corps which he finished before he left for the Marquesas and points south will soon be off the presses. It is a handsome volume which gleams with some of the gold

1,500,000,000 Miles of Evidence

Statisticians calculate that Maxwell cars the world over traveled 1,500,000,000 miles last year. What a gigantic test of gears, bearings, axles, crankshafts, and the 3,000 other pieces of steel in a Maxwell car!

Had these metals shown a single chronic weakness their makers would have suffered a far-reaching penalty.

Instead these 1,500,000,000 test miles—equal to 57,000 times around the equator—put a great premium on the Maxwell.

So great that it is becoming more and more difficult each day to get a Maxwell.

To fill this ever-growing and friendly demand for Maxwell, 100,000 are being built this year, bringing the total of Maxwells now in use on the road to 400,000. The 100,000 will fall far short.

Possibly 40,000 persons will have to purchase a second choice car.

To be sure of your first choice see the Post-War Maxwell without delay.

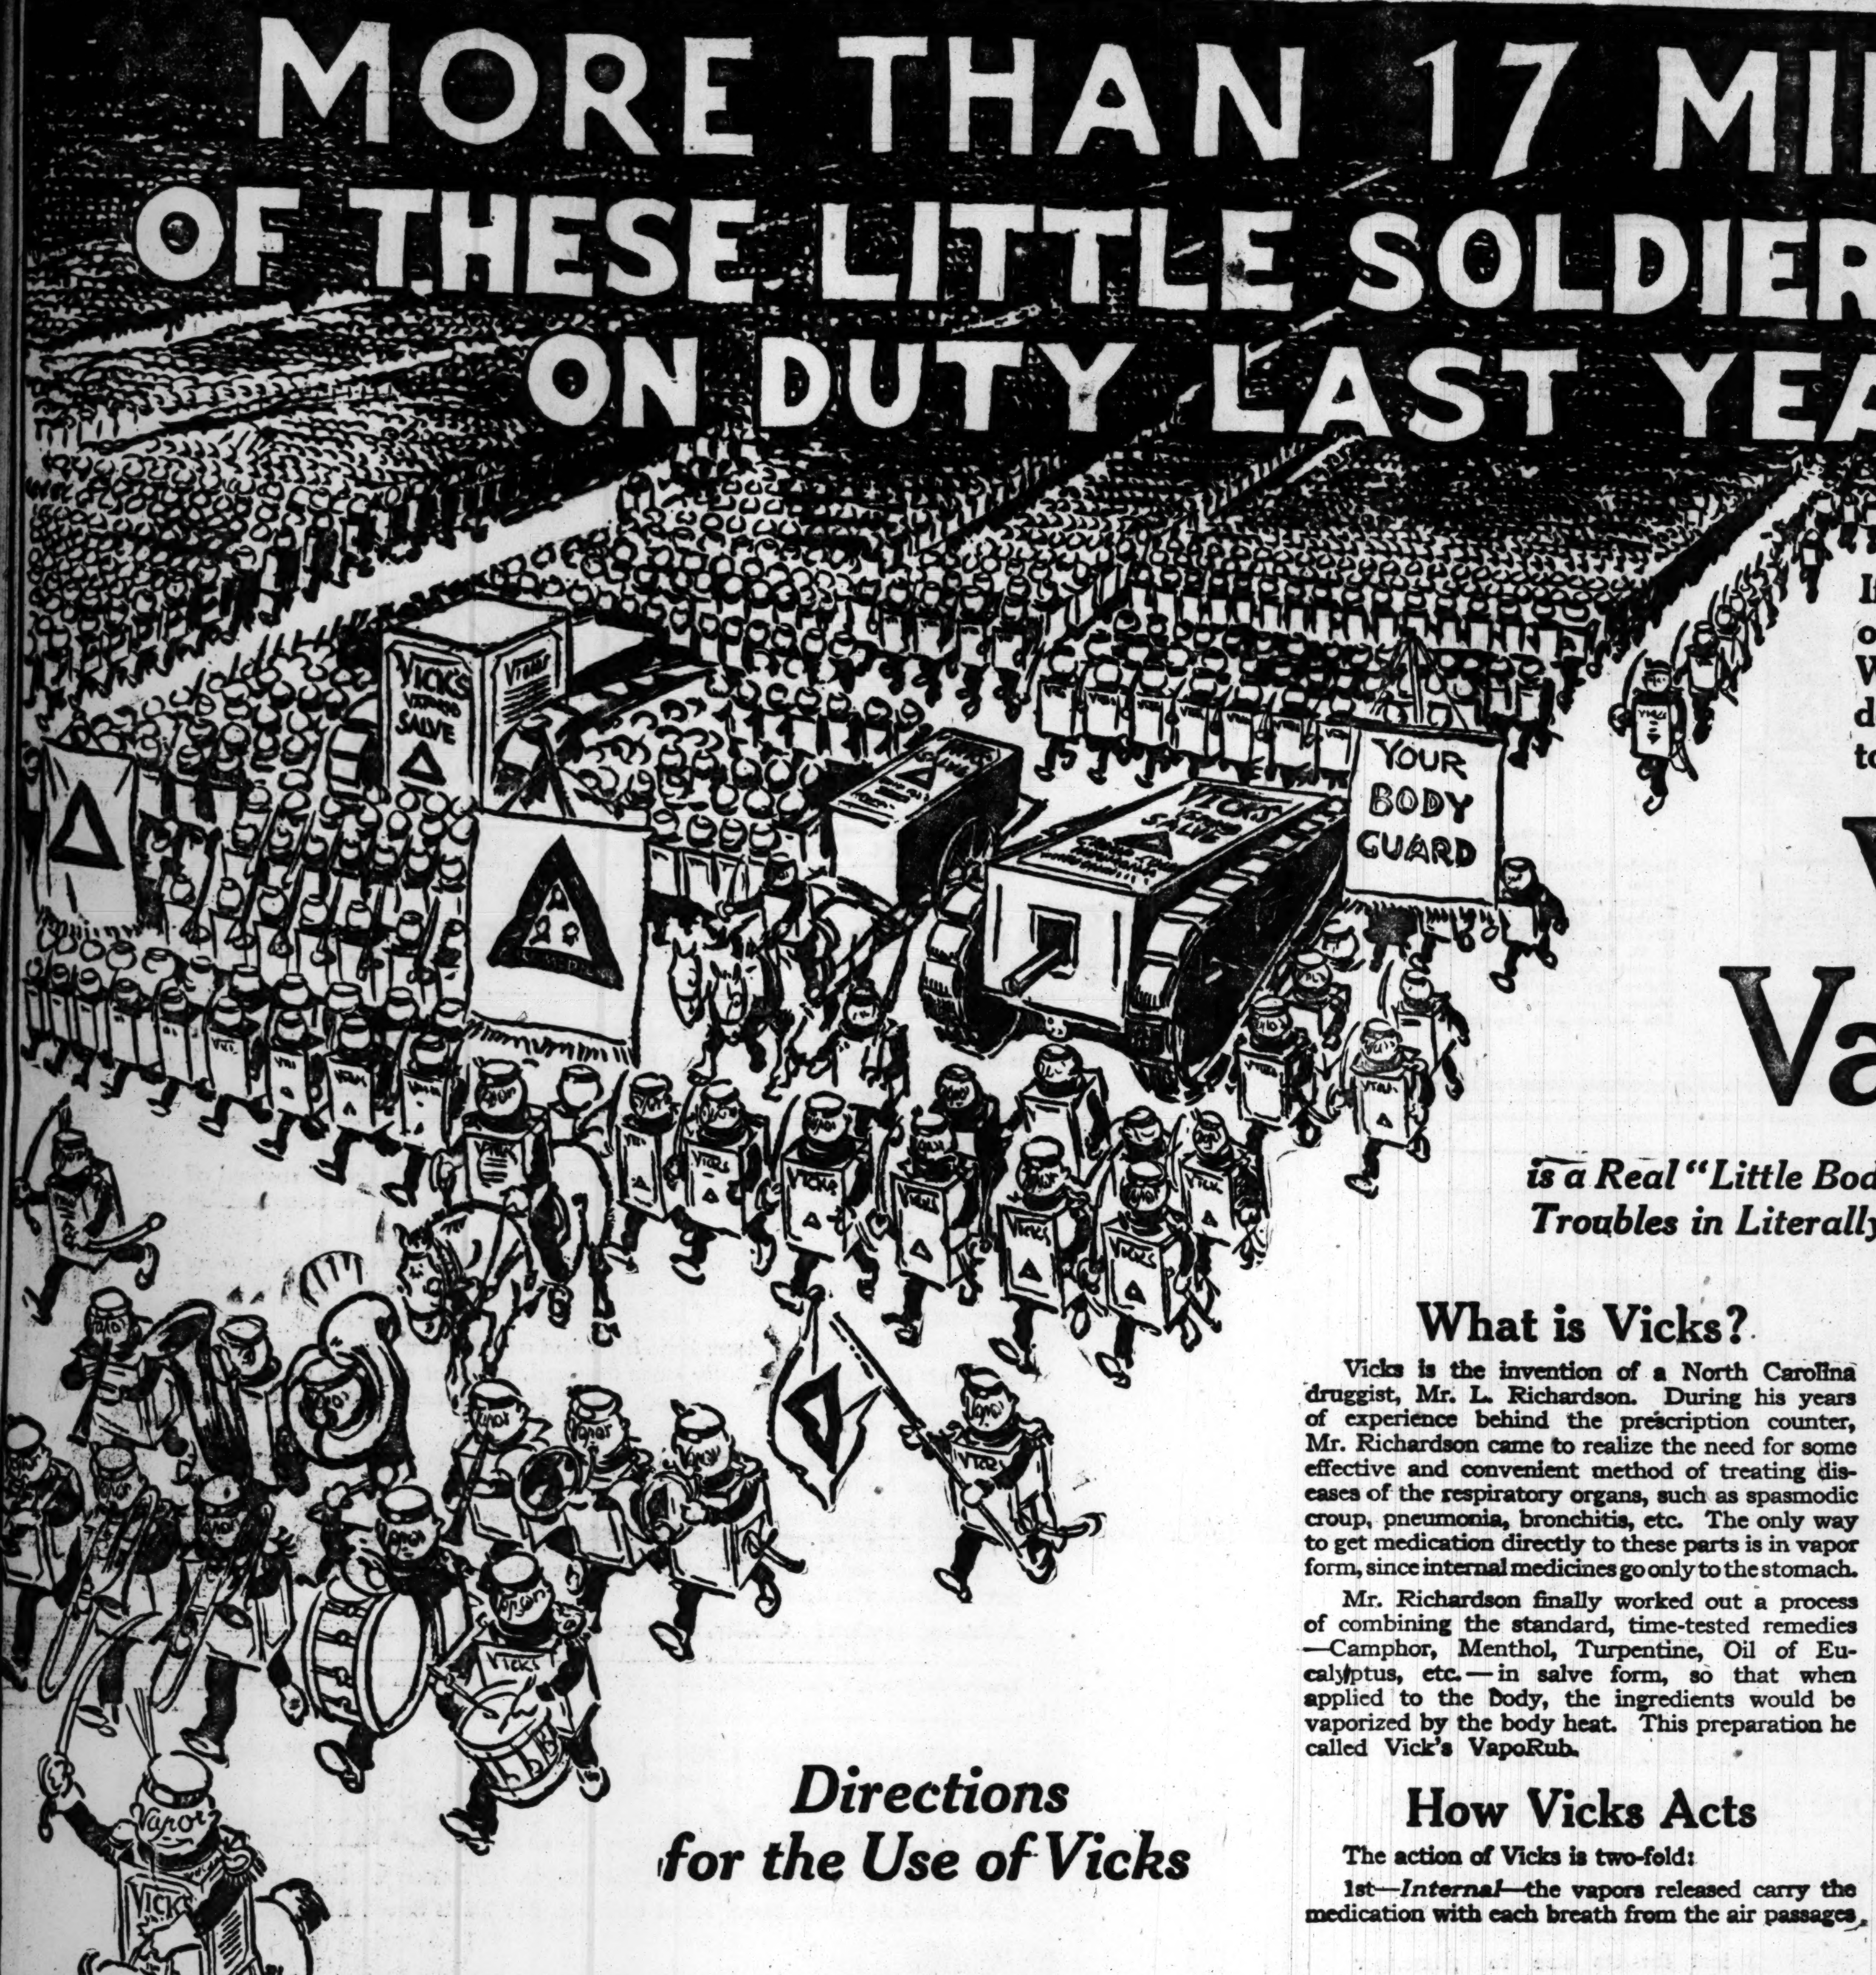
MORE THAN 17 MILLION OF THESE LITTLE SOLDIERS WENT ON DUTY LAST YEAR



If Placed End to End, the Packages of Vick's VapoRub Used Last Year Would Reach from New York to Philadelphia, to Pittsburgh, to Cleveland, to Detroit—a Distance of 701 Miles

Vick's VapoRub

is a Real "Little Bodyguard" Against Croup and Cold Troubles in Literally Millions of American Homes

What is Vicks?

Vicks is the invention of a North Carolina druggist, Mr. L. Richardson. During his years of experience behind the prescription counter, Mr. Richardson came to realize the need for some effective and convenient method of treating diseases of the respiratory organs, such as spasmodic croup, pneumonia, bronchitis, etc. The only way to get medication directly to these parts is in vapor form, since internal medicines go only to the stomach.

Mr. Richardson finally worked out a process of combining the standard, time-tested remedies —Camphor, Menthol, Turpentine, Oil of Eucalyptus, etc.—in salve form, so that when applied to the body, the ingredients would be vaporized by the body heat. This preparation he called Vick's VapoRub.

How Vicks Acts

The action of Vicks is two-fold:

1st—Internal—the vapors released carry the medication with each breath from the air passages to the lungs, loosening the phlegm and clearing the air passages.

2nd—External—Vicks is absorbed through and stimulates the skin, attracting the blood to the affected parts, and thus aids the vapors inhaled to relieve the congestion.

This double action of Vicks makes it useful for a wide variety of troubles, from deep chest colds, bronchitis, coughs, spasmodic croup and sore throat, down to burns, stings, bruises, etc.

How the Use of Vicks Has Grown

The best evidence of the value of Vicks is the increasing number of families who are converted each year to the use of this real "Little Bodyguard in the Home". The number of jars used annually for the last few years is:

1910	347,748 Jars
1911	523,152 Jars
1912	1,027,068 Jars
1913	1,357,590 Jars
1914	1,462,330 Jars
1915	2,418,213 Jars
1916	4,302,764 Jars
1917	6,799,511 Jars
1918	17,377,408 Jars

Directions for the Use of Vicks

VAPORS IMPORTANT For diseases of the respiratory organs, such as colds, a large part of the value of Vicks lies in its vaporizing qualities. Therefore, whenever Vicks is applied over the throat and chest, care should be taken to leave the clothing loose around the neck and the bed clothes arranged in the form of a funnel, so that the vapors arising may be freely inhaled.

HOT WET CLOTHS In cases of very severe colds, sore throat, coughs, incipient pneumonia, etc., hot, wet towels should be applied over the throat and chest to open the pores of the skin before applying Vicks.

FRESH AIR Plenty of fresh air in the bed room is the best way to prevent colds and lung troubles. Fresh air does not cause colds; it strengthens the lungs, enabling the system to throw off colds.

ASTHMA Vicks is not a "cure" for asthma—so far as we know, there is no cure. In many cases, however, Vicks does give relief. Rub it well over the spinal column, from the neck to the hips to relieve the nervous tension. Then apply freely over throat and chest at bed time and cover with hot flannels. Renew frequently and always have the covers loose, so that the vapors may be freely inhaled. Also melt Vicks in a spoon and inhale the vapors and apply a little up the nostrils.

BRONCHITIS, SORE THROAT, COLDS IN THE CHEST If a severe case; first apply hot, wet towels over the throat and chest. Then rub Vicks in well until the skin is red; spread on thickly and cover with two thicknesses of hot, flannel cloths.

CATARRH, COLDS IN THE HEAD Melt a little Vicks in a spoon and inhale the vapors. Also apply well up the nostrils. There are so many varieties of catarrh that a competent physician should always be consulted. For many forms, however, Vicks is excellent. Dissolve a half teaspoonful of salt in a pint of warm water and snuff up the nostrils night and morning. Then insert Vicks freely up the nostrils as far as possible; snuffing well back into the air passages.

CHILDREN'S COLDS Vicks is particularly valuable in treating children's colds, since it is an external treatment, and therefore does not disturb the delicate digestions of children. The best plan is to keep Vicks constantly on hand and apply freely and often at the first sign of "sniffles."

Growing children require plenty of fresh air and exercise and should be kept in the open as much as possible, even in the winter.

COUGHS Apply Vicks as directed for Colds in the Chest and Head, and if the cough is very annoying, swallow, every few hours, a small piece the size of a pea.

CROUP-SPASMODIC Rub Vicks freely over the chest and throat until the difficult breathing is relieved. One application is usually enough. To prevent croup during the night, give a good application over the throat and chest at bed time and cover with hot, flannel cloths.

> NOTE: Vicks is not a relief for Membraneous Croup or Laryngeal Diphtheria. The specific for this disease is antitoxin, which should be administered only by a physician.

HAY FEVER There is no certain cure for this disease. In some cases Vicks gives temporary relief. Apply as for Asthma.

INFLUENZA In spite of the epidemic last winter, very little is known of this disease—even the germ causing it is not yet definitely located and no specific for influenza, so far as known, has been discovered. In all cases a physician should be called promptly.

Vicks is to be used as an external application in connection with the physician's treatment. Apply as directed for Pneumonia.

TO AVOID INFLUENZA Influenza is a spit-borne disease, and when inhaled the germs attack the mucous membrane, or lining of the air passages. Even this is not absolutely certain, but it is agreed by most authorities that keeping the system in good condition and the air passages stimulated and free from colds is the best way to avoid the disease.

Melting a little Vicks in a spoon night and morning and inhaling the vapors, and applying well up the nostrils several times a day, particularly when in crowds, is recommended.

PNEUMONIA (1) Send for your physician at the first sign of pneumonia. (2) Immediately begin the use of Vicks as an external application. For pneumonia, Vicks is applied somewhat as directed for Deep Chest Colds—for full directions see the Directions Folder.

TONSILITIS Apply as directed for Sore Throat.

WHOOPING COUGH This is a self-limited disease, running a course which varies from a few weeks to several months. There is no known specific—Vicks is of value in easing the cough paroxysms, and thus lessening their weakening effect on the system. Rub Vicks well over the spinal column, from the neck to the hips, to relieve the nervous tension. Then apply over throat and chest, covering with hot flannels.

For Surface Congestion and Inflammation

In cases such as are listed below, Vicks is of value as a poultice, liniment or plaster, because of its penetrative and stimulative effect through the skin. Its vaporizing qualities are naturally without value for these troubles.

BITES, STINGS Apply ordinary household ammonia or wet bread soda. Then apply Vicks as a salve.

BOILS Apply cloths, dipped in hot water, to soften the skin; then apply Vicks thickly over the boil, covering with a thin cloth. Repeat every few hours.

BRUISES Apply to the bruised part cloths dipped in hot water followed by cloths dipped in cold water—then hot cloths; then cold cloths again, etc. Keep this up for five or ten minutes to reduce the inflammation. Then apply Vicks thickly, covering with a light cloth. Every few hours repeat the application of the hot and cold cloths, followed by a dressing of Vicks.

BURNS Cover first with wet bread soda. When dry, take off and apply Vicks as a thick dressing, covering with a light cloth. Apply as gently as possible and do not rub in.

CUTS Cleanse the cut well with warm water, then apply Vicks as a salve.

EARACHE In some cases of earache Vicks gives relief. Apply a little on cotton and place in the ear.

ECZEMA-ITCHINGS In many cases these are blood diseases and should be treated by a competent physician. To reduce the itching, and as a cooling, soothing application, apply Vicks over the parts affected, covering with a light cloth. In severe cases do not wash the parts often; water irritates certain forms of eczema.

FROST BITE Rub the parts affected with snow or apply ice water until the blood begins to circulate. Then rub Vicks well in; do not cover with a cloth. Do not bring the parts affected near a fire.

HEADACHE, NEURALGIA Rub the forehead and temples with Vicks, melt a little in a spoon and inhale the vapors, apply a little well up the nostrils. Headaches come from many causes; they are symptoms of more serious troubles, usually faulty digestion or eye strain. If headaches are continuous, a physician or a good oculist should be consulted.

MUSCULAR RHEUMATISM, SORENESS, STRAINS, SPRAINS For these troubles, alternating applications of hot and cold cloths should be applied as directed for Bruises. Then massage well the parts affected with Vicks, cover thickly and apply hot, flannel cloths. In cases of muscular rheumatism or extreme muscular pain, after following the directions above; a hot water bottle or a warm flat iron may be placed over the flannel cloth to help drive in the Vicks.

PILES Severe cases of piles of long standing should be treated by a competent surgeon. For itching piles, see Directions Folder with each package.

POISON OAK Wash the parts affected with water colored with a pinch of bluestone; put in just enough bluestone to faintly color the water. Be careful not to get this bluestone water in the eyes. (If bluestone is not convenient, use ordinary lime water). Then apply Vicks lightly; do not rub in. Repeat this treatment, using the bluestone water and Vicks every three or four hours.

SUNBURN Apply Vicks as a salve. Do not rub in.

TOOTHACHE In some cases of toothache, Vicks will be found a temporary relief. Rub it well around the gums, and if the tooth is hollow, put a little Vicks in the hollow. Then apply a hot water bottle or a hot wet towel.

For Animals

For domestic animals and fowls, Vicks has been found effective in certain diseases.

DISTEMPER IN HORSES OR DOGS Rub Vicks on throat and between jawbones and apply freely up the nostrils.

COLDS OR ROUP IN FOWLS Rub a little Vicks over nose holes in beak and make the fowl swallow a piece the size of a bean.

PNEUMONIA OR PLEURISY IN HORSES Keep in a warm, dry, well ventilated, roomy box stall, and give plenty of water and laxative feed. Rub Vicks well over chest and push handfuls up each nostril. Rub the salve over region of the lungs, back of forelegs and cover with wide bandage. Repeat applications every three or four hours until the fever is broken. Blanket the animal and bandage legs if stall is too cold. Give pint of raw linseed oil, into which an ounce of powdered aloes has been dissolved. Also give twenty grains of quinine twice daily; wrap dose in tissue paper and throw well back of tongue.

Vicks is Not Meant to Replace the Physician

At the first symptom of a serious illness, such as pneumonia, a physician should always be called. Many other troubles, such as chronic catarrh or continued headaches, call for the diagnosis of a good doctor.

Vicks is simply an emergency remedy; which can be kept in the home ready for instant use and which can be used freely, with perfect safety, on the youngest member of the family.

TABLOID BOOK REVIEW

which made the Lafayette escadrille the nest of millionaire fledglings.

Accompanied by a cortége of specially selected consuls, editors, university department heads, business men, and his importunate manager, Maurice Maeterlinck arrived, as had been arranged, to meet, in a quiet spot, our reviewers' union. We were all eager to ask him about—O, all the things one wants to know about the creation of literature.

A powerful figure, dominating even a retinue of distinguished men, looking more like his pictures than anybody else in the world ever did, reserved, but not uninterested, wrapped about in a muffler much after the fashion of Abraham Lincoln and his shawl, his almost white hair pulling off to one side of his face as if in revolt against the dignified regularity of his features—and all about him the atmosphere of a hunting dog straining at the leash.

You see, the new wife who wears her hair in curls and plays with dolls while the photographers grind their cameras had been left in the railroad yards cozily enjoying the luxuries of the presidential private car while her guide and protector had gone to luncheon, and she refused to step one of her baby doll feet out of the car until he was there to see that it did not stumble. So, while eager questioners as to the state of literature in France were trying to ask him a few well chosen leading questions he was mentally careening on wings of love to a railroad yard.

All that we succeeded in finding out was that he thought Georges Duhamel was the greatest of all the writers about the war, and Barbusse was another, and that he himself was writing another book about the occult.

He has gone to California to help make motion pictures, and he will not, unless a miracle happens—his learning to speak English, for instance—do any more lecturing in the United States. He has entirely given up writing such frivolities as plays or poems and is devoting all of his literary energies to making the next world safe for this. The time and the place of our much anticipated interview were bounteously granted by the gods—but the girl wasn't there!

"The Cockpit of Santiago Key" [Boni & Liveright], by David S. Greenberg, is the first of a series of stories for boys and girls which are primarily tales of other lands, but which are not like the famous Rollo books. This one is a story of Porto Rican life.

"Within My Horizon [Small-Maynard], by Helen Bartlett Bridgman, is a pleasant book of reminiscences which, unlike too many volumes of the sort, really recalls personalities to the reader.

Melville Davisson Post has only to have his name on a story or a book to sound a clarion call for his "gang," which is legion. He has the mystery story knack. His latest book is a collection of his short mystery stories which have appeared during the last few years in the magazines.

"A Y. Girl in France" [Badger] is a collection of the letters which Katherine Shortall wrote during the after armistice days when she was serving with the Y. M. C. A. in France. My revered teacher and friend, Dr. Edwin Herbert Lewis, who by a sincere faith in me when I was in school and just clutching at the thought of writing, helped me on to the first round of the shaky literary ladder, writes me of it: "Somehow this book [which is published without the author's knowledge] seems to me the very essence of you girls in action—you American girls of the best type—you girls without a peer on earth."

Instead of waiting until he is an old man and all the famous men and women he knew are either forgotten or dusted with the ashes of a past generation, Isaac F. Marcosson has written his reminiscences now, while he is still comparatively young and while those he interviewed are still the flaming stars in the political and literary firmaments. "Adventures in Interviewing" [John Lane] he calls it, and in it he records personal impressions of every one from Marconi and Clemenceau to F. Hopkinson Smith and H. G. Wells.

He has had an almost unrivaled opportunity to talk intimately with the great of the world, and he has brought from each conversation something more than the words of the person he interviewed. For the young writer, the person just starting in the literary or journalistic game his "Adventures" is of untold help, because not only does he share his own ideas of the technique of successful interviewing—and he has proved himself capable of handling any one—but he shares the ideas of such men as George Horace Lorimer and Marse Henry. And he has recorded enough of the technical conversation of great literary figures to give one an inspiration to go and [try to] do likewise.

If for nothing more than the chapter about Mr. Lorimer's ideas of successful magazine writing, the book is worth reading for the person who is writing short stories—and the only one who isn't, so far as I have been able to discover, is the little sister of Joe, the corner fruit man—and she's just learning English.

Berton Braley is another of those poets who preserve in the alcohol of a book each and every specimen of verse which comes from their fecund pens. "Buddy Ballads" [Doran] is his latest. Berton Braley has a hearty commonness about his verse, though, that adds to the joy of life for a lot of people who like their poetry with a dash and swing. "Buddy Ballads" celebrates the A. E. F., an organization to which, unless I am mistaken, Mr. Braley did not belong. He went to France as a correspondent for Collier's, I believe.

And since we are on the subject of anthologies and war poetry, there is one which will bring back "happy" days to men who served overseas. It is called "Yanks," and is composed of poems which appeared in "The Stars and Stripes," the official A. E. F. newspaper. The two colored plates in the book are from paintings by C. Le Roy Baldridge, whose "I Was There" is the greatest book of sketches to come out of the war. One of them is the famous "November Eleventh," with its accompanying poem by Hilmar Baukhage, a picture and a poem which once seen are not soon forgotten.

STEPHENS Salient Six

Two Greater Engine Advantages
Make Its More Economical Service

The Stephens Vaporizing Wall and Superheating Chamber is perhaps the greatest boon conferred upon motor car owners.

It gives the Stephens engine two distinct advantages over other types of engines.

1. A fuel-burning system, that burns all the gasoline; it wastes no fuel, therefore it wastes no power.

2. A fuel-preparing system, which is no respecter of the grades of gasoline you feed it; it burns the lowest grades of gasoline without lessened performance.

This Salient Stephens feature makes the Stephens engine the most powerful and most economical for its size in passenger automobiles.

It spins a single small cup of gasoline into a thread of economic service more than a mile in length.

Makes the Stephens a motor car of Salient all-around road-performance,—a motor car of greater service,—and a more economical service.

Arrange today to see, inspect and ride in the Stephens Salient Six.

"That is salient which is strikingly manifest or which catches the attention at once."

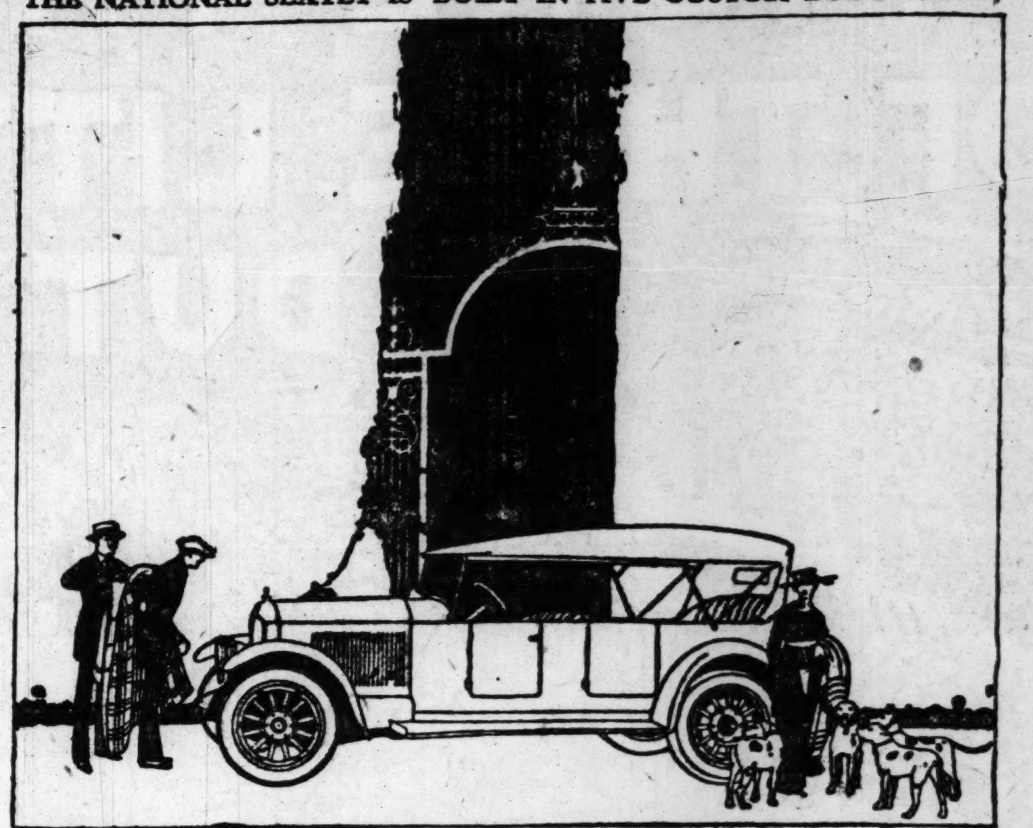
National

THE NATIONAL SEXTET IS BUILT IN FIVE CUSTOM BODY STYLES



NATIONAL SEXTET SEVEN-PASSENGER TOURING CAR

The Secret of Sextet Style

The feature of the new National Sextet that has elicited most comment is the manner in which the car hugs the ground.

This pronounced lowness, reflecting and emphasizing the European influence, has been attained through a new and advanced method of body mounting, exclusively National.

The deep-sided body of the Sextet overlaps the chassis frame instead of resting on top of it, as has been the common practice since automobiles were first built.

As a consequence, this pleasing low effect has been secured without resort to the impractical expedients commonly adopted—the sacrifice of road clearance and the stinting of body depth and head room.

In the National Sextet, there is no high and ungainly running board apron to offend the eye. The body sides descend, without a break, to within a scant two inches of the running board apron, where they meet a trim and slender valance.

Neither will squeaks, rattles nor other body noises develop, for this superior method of body mounting is exceptionally rigid.

The high, narrow radiator, the long, tapering hood, the duplex driving lamps, and the deeply crowned, individual front fenders are only a few of the many salient style features that contribute so much to National Sextet distinctiveness and charm.

A demonstration? Gladly, and at your pleasure.

The Letter We Owe

By Guy F. Lee

It's such a simple little job,
  Requiring but a minute,
But with the task we all play hob
  And to tomorrow pin it;
  There is no hardship in it,
No toil or thought to show,
  And still we won't begin it,
The letter that we owe.

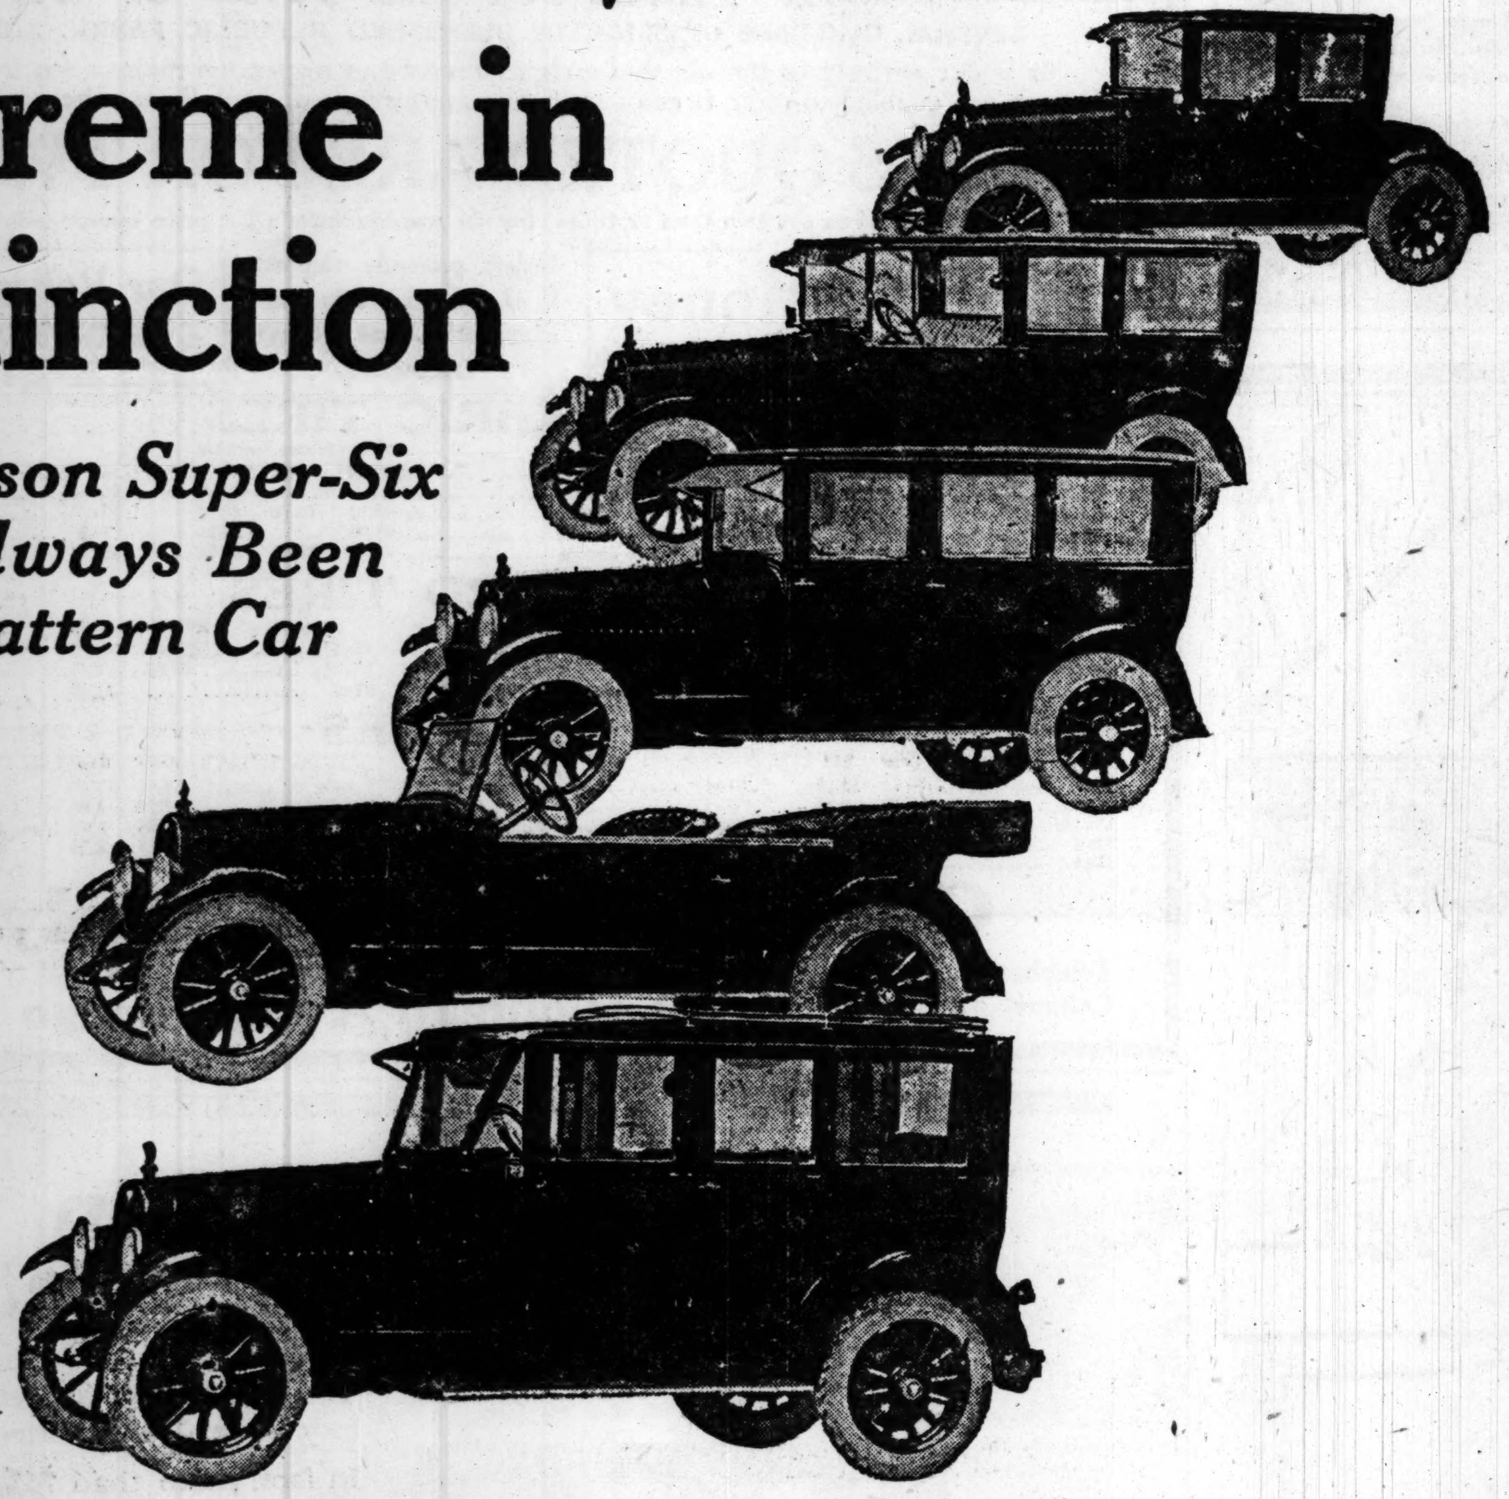
The smiles and comfort that we rob
  Our friends of is a sin; it
Entails no epic—just a gob
  Of gossip—soft to spin it;
  Their homage, we could win it
So easily, you know,
  If we would just begin it,
The letter that we owe.

A billet oft will chase a sob
  And substitute a grin; it
Has been said a breezy blob
  Sounds sweeter than a linnet;
  There's nothing that can skin it
For spreading joy, and so
  Let's all, right now, begin it,
The letter that we owe!

HUDSON SUPER SIX

Supreme in Distinction

The Hudson Super-Six Has Always Been the Pattern Car



Hudson Outsells All Fine Cars

It was never sought to develop the Hudson Super-Six as the greatest speed and power car in the world.

It is true that in speed—in hill-climbing—in quick acceleration—no stock car ever matched it. Official records show that. But they are incidental. They were made in tests to prove Hudson endurance.

Surely these great performance qualities are enough to account for Hudson's five years of leadership as the largest selling fine car in the world. Any owner would take pride in a car that none has equalled in any worth-while performance record.

Yet a large class of Hudson buyers selected it for an altogether different quality.

A Distinctive Design An Exclusive Motor

Thousands chose it with an eye single to its beauty, charm and notable appearance. They hold none can surpass it in distinction. For the Hudson looks its supremacy in every line.

But it is idle to think that those who primarily seek fine appearance in a car do not value the mechanical superiority of the Hudson Super-Six.

Granted you will never require such great speed, yet Hudson's capacity means less than half load in ordinary driving. It insures absolute freedom from strain.

That extra reserve power means much on hills. It means much in flexibility and in quick response. It saves much changing of gears. It means utter smoothness—due to less vibration, than any other type ever achieved.

Perfected Mechanism Makes Such Luxury Possible

That, too, is a matter of record. The official proofs are open to all.

In the exclusive Super-Six motor vibration is reduced almost to nil. Motor efficiency is increased 80%. Motor power is increased 72%, without added size of cylinders. Endurance is almost doubled. The Super-Six principle would add these advantages to any conventional type, six-cylinder motor. But no other can use it.

Its type gives Hudson every advantage. Why accept a lesser car?

You will find in the Hudson all the beauty and luxury that imagination and skilled workmanship can create.

Note how it predominates wherever fine cars are seen. Outside of the clubs, the opera, the theater; in the fine residence streets and on fashionable boulevards observe how it outnumbers two, three and even four to one, any other make of fine car.

The supply of Hudsons has never been sufficient for the demand. Thousands have waited months for certain wanted models. You can insure yourself against disappointment in delivery only by placing your order well ahead of the time you will require it.

Louis Chevrolet Enters 3 Fliers at Indianapolis

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Feb. 21.—Louis Chevrolet, intrepid veteran of innumerable speed battles and master designer of racing cars, has entered three Frontenac flyers for the 500 mile sweepstakes on the Indianapolis motor speedway, May 31, raising the total number of cars already nominated for the event at this early date to seven.

In the trio of Frontenacs that he campaigned during the last several seasons Chevrolet astonished the racing world with their unprecedented lightness, secured through the use of aluminum on a scale that had been regarded as impossible. Chevrolet conclusively demonstrated the soundness of his ideas, however, by sending his fragile creations through a succession of the most gruelling contests in history, and winning a majority of the events in which they competed.

On the point system of scoring, the Frontenac team easily outdistanced all competitors in 1919, with a total of 15,680 points, as against 12,820 for its nearest rival, and in the field of track events it took the last ten contests of the season with but a single miss, when Ralph De Palma broke through for a win at Sheepshead Bay.

At Indianapolis the Frontenac aggregation performed the unheard of feat of qualifying all its members at better than 100 miles an hour. Racing luck, however, played havoc with its chances during the contest, the finish finding it in seventh and ninth positions, only Louis Chevrolet and his brother Gaston surviving.

Partisans of America in the forthcoming Hoosier speed international derive much satisfaction out of the fact, therefore, that the brilliant Franco-Swiss is preparing three Frontenac cars for the contest, in addition to the Monroe space eaters previously entered.

My Funniest Motoring Experience

Stayed with the Ship.

Motoring through southern Indiana after a spring freshet we found the bridge over a shallow stream gone.

Tom plunged ahead. In mid-stream the rushing water, on a level with the car floor, killed the engine. We were helpless. Ann began to shriek. The boys, wading ashore, carried her to safety. Being too heavy for such a rescue, and knowing the water would not get higher I announced that I would remain seated while the boys sought a farmer and his team.

"O, I can't watch Aunt Jen drown," Ann wept, "Boys, I'm going with you."

After an hour they returned. I was making tatting.

"Aunt Jen looks as happy as if she were in an opera box," said Tom.

But I wasn't. In my heart I was frantic with fear. G. R. F.

A Thrilling Ride.

While driving along one of the residence streets of our town with my girl we caught up with a slow moving car and wanted to pass it. With three or four sonorous honks from my new loud sounding horn, we passed the offending car in triumph, but we honked once too often, for the button became caught and the horn sounded a continuous shrill blast, which resembled that of the fire department as we drove rapidly down the street. People ran to the street and autos coming in from side streets stopped to permit us to pass. The motor cop gave chase and, catching up with us, demanded that we stop. We did so, and on seeing our trouble he stopped the horn and allowed us to proceed. E. A.

They Subsidize 'Em.

Government subventions offered to purchasers of agricultural tractors in France now give an advantage to machines of French construction. The purchaser of a French tractor, who undertakes to fulfill certain simple conditions, can obtain from the government a subsidy equal to 25 per cent the purchase price if the machine is of French origin. If an imported article the subsidy is reduced to 10 per cent.

Another New One.

The new Parenti passenger car, bade by the Parenti Motors corporation of Buffalo, will be placed on exhibition at the Buffalo passenger car show in March. This car will be featured by its light weight and will be equipped with a 3x4½ inch Cameron air cooled engine. The price of the car is $1,685.

Owners Praise It For Its Comfort

The delightful comfort with which five adult persons ride in the Cleveland Six touring car has appealed to buyers everywhere. The wide, soft-cushion seats, upholstered in genuine hand-buffed plaited leather, are cozy as cozy can be. And the low underslung spring construction, a feature of the Cleveland Six chassis, subdues the road-shock long before it can reach the cushions.

Many unusual qualities such as these are fast winning friends for the Cleveland Six. Among light weight sixes it stands out distinctly.

At all the principal automobile shows this season it has attracted extraordinary crowds. Men of mechanical interests and men experienced in the use of motor cars have been generous in their expression of approval and admiration for the entire design and construction of the Cleveland Six chassis. The several beautiful styles of body, mounted on this one chassis, have met with praise from men and women alike.

When you see or drive the Cleveland Six, you want it.

Failure to Move Output Hampers Motor Industry

All Available Space in Detroit Used for Storing Cars.

BY STUART D. TREGO.

FAILURE of the railroads to handle the output of the big automobile factories at Detroit has caused that city to be literally flooded with finished motor vehicles, which the trade is clamoring to absorb. The unusual severity of the weather, the shortage of equipment, and embargoes in many parts of the country have so paralyzed the railways that since the middle of last month they have been unable to furnish half the necessary freight cars to move the constantly growing output. Toledo, Flint, and Lansing are in much the same fix.

Detroit is utilizing abandoned breweries, the state fair building, boats in winter quarters, the American league baseball park, deserted factories and hotels, and, in fact, every bit of storage space there and in nearbw cities in an effort to house cars until they can be moved.

As none of the factories has more storage space than will take care of a single day's production, the industry faces at least a partial shutdown, and some plants may be forced to close altogether. To meet the emergency, last month telegrams were sent to dealers and distributors all over the country stating that those who wanted cars would have to come and get them, as production could not be maintained unless the finished products were moved out of the way.

In answer, dealers swarmed to Detroit from all directions and at once more than 1,000 cars a day were streaming away from the city over every available highway. Many of the roads, none too inviting to the tourist when at their best, are now ribbons of snow, mud, and water, and as a result at present hundreds of cars are stalled at various places along the countryside.

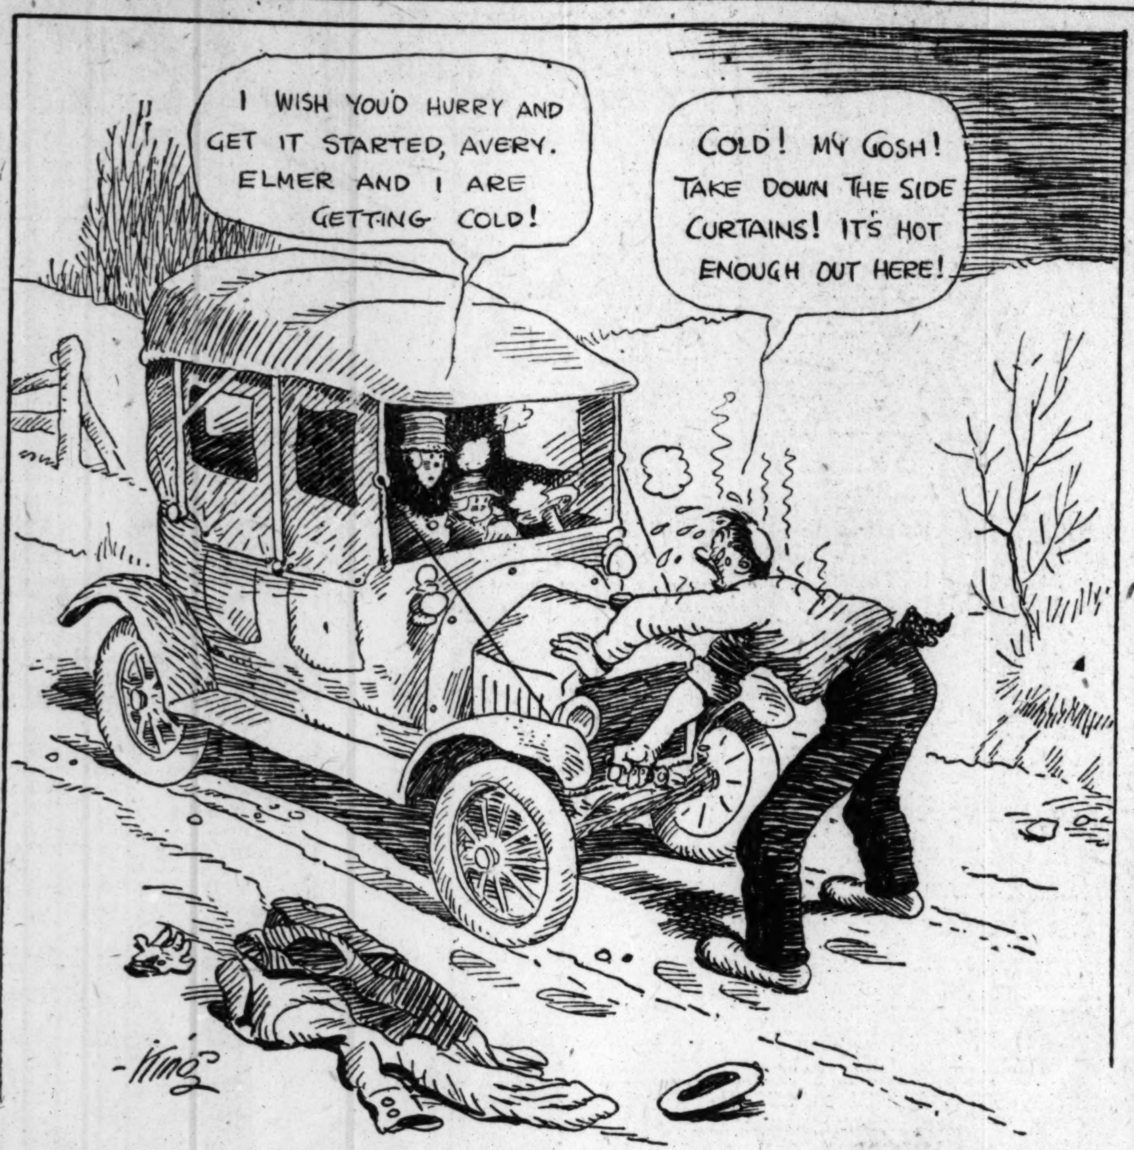
Detroit is passing through one of the coldest and stormiest winters in its history, and a spell of mild weather is earnestly hoped for by manufacturers, dealers, and prospective purchasers.

To an older or less hardy industry the effort required to move the output would have been great, but in spite of the bitter cold and almost impassable roads, fleets of cars, or "funeral trains" as they are called in the rural districts, have been kept moving day and night.

Difficulty is also encountered by the factories in bringing in supplies, and one plant is maintaining a regular motor truck service between Cleveland and Dteroit to obtain frames. Small parts have been brought in as baggage by "stock chasers" from points hundreds of miles distant.

But, despite every handicap, the factories are doing all possible to keep the wheels of the industry turning in the face of the greatest demand for cars ever known—a demand that forecasts the worst automobile famine in history this spring.

GASOLINE ALLEY—DIFFERENCE IN CLIMATE



I WISH YOU'D HURRY AND GET IT STARTED, AVERY. ELMER AND I ARE GETTING COLD!

Found, a Friend.

Following charges that some of the Atlanta filling stations are charging exorbitant prices for gasoline, John A. Magnet, federal fair price commissioner for the state of Georia, has appointed a committee to make a thorough investigation. This committee will report its findings in the course of a few days, and if it is learned that the dealers are selling gasoline at exorbitant prices, as has been charged, federal prosecution for profiteering will follow.

Higher Education.

A course [illegible] motor transportation engineering, the first of its kind to be given by any university in connection with industrial study, is to be added to the curriculum of New York university, beginning next month. The new course will be given by F. Van Z. Lane, chief transportation engineer of the Packard Motor Car company, and will be open to students in mechanical and civil engineering who are specializing in highway work. The motor truck will be studied as a mechanical unit in industry rather than from the standpoint of truck design.

EVERYTHING in this Chalmers is new except the chassis. It has a new bonnet line, new coach line, new windshield, new top, new seat and seat springs.

They catch your eye, those lines, though they are marked by a reserve of rare good taste.

But in those multitudes of little details the real elegance is expressed — door handles, square doors, low sitting position, deep tilt of the cushions, the rug on the tonneau floor.

Why Take Chances On Trucks

SCARCELY one Packard customer out of ten in this territory started his trucking experiences with a Packard.

The real economy of a Packard truck figured over ten years of life may not be clear to the inexperienced buyer—and yet nine out of ten men who have ever owned a Packard truck, buy Packard exclusively when they add to their present-day equipment.

Records of local owners show that concerns operating two or more Packards have had equal success with each truck—Packard Truck quality is uniform.

NEW $800,000 SERVICE BUILDING TO INSURE PACKARD SATISFACTION

The popularity of Packard has necessitated this expansion.

It is right in line with the determination to have Packard owners the best taken care of motorists anywhere.

PACKARD quality is unfailing because each part is made under direct Packard supervision, not "bought up" from all parts of the country—or from makers over whom Packard has no control.

Packard trucks are the most economical. Will you read our cost figures?

Golden Rule Service

Service is the one thing that we sell—service in line with the Golden Rule

WE distribute this same Service to all car owners and to all makes of batteries without discrimination.

When you pay money for a new USL you are buying Golden Rule Service, of which the battery is but an essential part. It's just the same as paying your employees, your lawyer, your doctor, your dentist—for Service.

Service is the most important thing in the world today. To all car owners, we aim to be the "greatest Servant of them all."—Our Golden Rule Service, we think, makes us so. But we invite your careful co-operation in caring for your battery so as to assure you long battery-life.

Often when a man thinks his battery is "done for" and he is ready to buy a new USL, we show how we can save him money by repairing his old battery and giving an adjustment guarantee for eight months.

We sell only USL Batteries with the durable machine-pasted plates. The factory ships them to us "Dry-Charged." This avoids all before-sale deterioration so that you really get a perfect, full-life battery.

We are a USL Golden Rule Service Station—not a battery-store

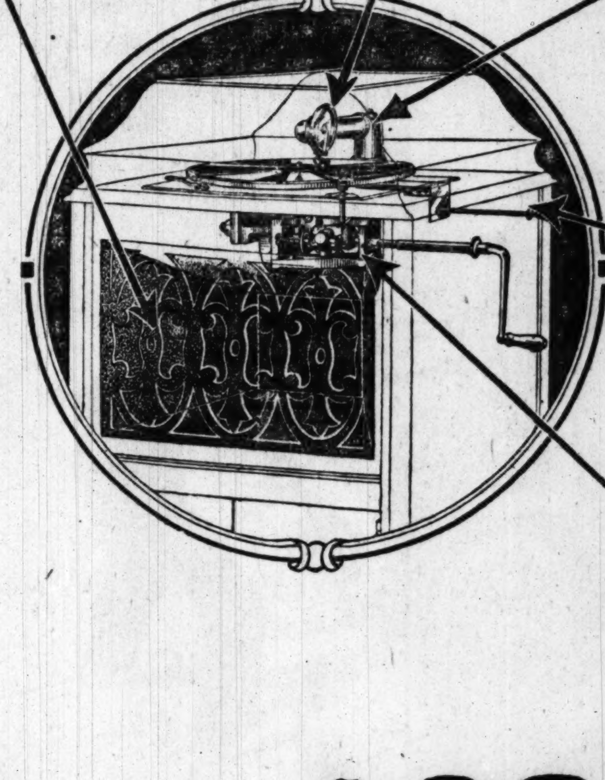
Period Design Cabinets

SILVERTONE cabinets are the finest product of the skilled cabinet-makers' art. Made in the most popular period designs, every one is a handsome piece of furniture—dignified, graceful and artistic in appearance. Only the finest selected woods are used in their construction and they are finished and fitted with that exquisite care and perfection which mark the work of the painstaking artisan.



AMPLIFYING CHAMBER

The sounds carried from the reproducer through the tone arm are given volume and resonance in a scientifically designed amplifying chamber or horn. This chamber is built of carefully seasoned wood and, like the sounding board of a fine violin, imparts to the reclaimed sound vibrations purity and resonance. This perfectly balanced combination of reproducer, tone arm and amplifying chamber makes every record a true reflection of the personality of its creator.

THE REPRODUCER

Tone quality is dependent upon the reproducer, tone arm and amplifying chamber. Each must be correctly designed and harmonized in its relation to the other two in order to produce a sweet, pleasing tone—free from scratching sounds. The Silvertone reproducer accurately restores every sound vibration, every subtle, elusive shading of tone and expression. It is so designed that all scratching and mechanical noises are reduced to the minimum.

PLAYS ALL DISC RECORDS

The Silvertone convertible tone arm permits the playing of any make of disc record. A universal joint in the tone arm makes it possible to adjust the reproducer at will so that it will play either vertical or lateral cut records. It is almost as easy to adjust the reproducer for different types of records as it is to change needles. The Silvertone will play Columbia, Victor, Edison, Pathe, Emerson, OkeH, or any other make of disc record.

TONE CONTROL

The tone modulator with which each Silvertone is equipped gives complete control over the volume of sound. It serves the same purpose as the doors of the Victrola, the shutters of the Columbia Grafonola, or the pneumatic tone control of the Aeolian. You may set the modulator at any desired point, thus giving a uniform volume of sound, or the modulator may be manipulated while a selection is being played, thus enabling you to impart your own interpretation to the music.

POWERFUL, SILENT MOTOR

The Silvertone motor is as near perfect as mechanical and human efficiency can make it. Every part is made and fitted with care and precision and gears mesh silently. Powerful springs furnish an abundance of power, and a perfectly designed governor keeps turntable speed absolutely uniform, eliminating discordancies which sometimes occur owing to variations in speed. The motor is equipped with a silent winding device, and cranks with very little effort.

Send No Money

SPECIFICATIONS for the 1920 models of Silvertone phonographs were prepared with the sole idea of maintaining the established high standard of Silvertone quality, in spite of ever increasing difficulties in manufacturing. Every mechanical and acoustical refinement which experience has proved desirable was incorporated in the new Silvertone. The same care in the selection of only the finest cabinet woods, and the same high quality of workmanship and finish which has always characterized Silvertone phonographs has been rigidly adhered to in the construction of the 1920 models. It is indeed the masterpiece of Silvertone quality.

Quantity production, efficient manufacturing methods, and our economical mode of selling have enabled us to combine this high standard of quality with prices which are from 25 per cent to 50 per cent below those of any other phonograph of the same size, mechanical perfection and musical excellence. We want to convince you of the truth of our claims for the Silvertone. We want you to try a Silvertone in your own home, the only place where a musical instrument can be given a satisfactory and convincing test. That is why we are making this liberal offer:

No Money Down—Two Weeks' Trial

Select any Silvertone phonograph shown on this page, fill in the order blank at the bottom of this page, and mail it to Sears, Roebuck and Co., Chicago, Ill. Send no money with it! We ship Silvertone phonographs on two weeks' trial. This trial will not cost you a cent, nor obligate you in any way. All we ask you to do is to give the phonograph a thorough trial. Examine its mechanical features, cabinet work and finish. Try it with any records you desire, and note its beauty of tone, how faithfully and accurately it restores every delicate shading of tone quality, every variation of volume, every sound vibration. Give it every test necessary to prove the truth of our claims for it. And then compare the price of the Silvertone with that of any other phonograph of the same size, quality and musical excellence. If, at the end of this two weeks' trial, you are not fully satisfied with the phonograph, if you do not believe that mechanically, musically, and in workmanship, material and finish, it is the equal of any other phonograph on the market selling at from 25 per cent to 50 per cent higher price, simply notify us and we will take away the phonograph at our own expense, and will return any transportation or cartage charges you have paid.

Small Monthly Payments

If at the end of two weeks' trial, you are fully satisfied with the Silvertone and desire to keep it, simply send us the price of the phonograph you have selected in equal monthly payments until the total is paid. The amount of the monthly payment is shown under the illustrations of the various models. There is no interest or extras of any kind to pay.

▶ Fill out the order blank today, before this paper gets out of your hands, and let us send you one of these beautiful 1920 Silvertone models for two weeks' trial in your home, without having to pay a cent down on the phonograph, and without obligating you in any way. You are to be the sole judge of the quality and value of the Silvertone.

This means that we will pay an enormous amount in commissions this year to our salesmen. Those who join us now have the opportunity of making an enormous income this year. Prompt closing of sales insures immediate payment of commission. Experience not necessary in our business. We teach you in our free school of instruction. Join us now for a successful year. FOR DISCRIMINATING BUYERS.

This means that I have a small piece of property located in the heart of the most beautiful residence section in Chicago and for a few people qualifying for a high grade neighborhood I can make early delivery of either a beautiful brick bungalow or two flat. There is more merit to my plan of payment and more economy in price than anything in city. If you have $1,000, you may have your home for early occupancy. If not, start small payments now and move in when you have paid in $1,000. It is my claim that I will give you a wonderful home at a saving of not less than $1,000 to $1,500. If this is true, you certainly should investigate. Let me tell you why it is true. There's a reason. Address F P 354, Tribune.

Farms on Credit

We offer for sale some 40,000 acres of as good land as can be found anywhere. It is located in Kalkaska and Antrim counties, Mich. "BACK TO THE FARM" investors from every section are coming into this district and snapping up the fine bargains. We offer these excellent lands at prices which are only one or two year's rent in the central states, and we can safely say that in less than five years these farm lands will be worth more than double the price you are asked to pay for them now.

Any crops that thrive in Indiana, Iowa, Illinois, and Ohio, will do well on our lands, besides many other crops those states do not produce. It is also ideal land for orchards, vineyards, cattle, sheep, truck farming and poultry raising.

We are selling these lands at $15 to $35 per acre in 10, 20, 40, 80, 160 acres or more on very liberal terms, a small cash payment down and easy monthly payments, or annual if preferred. We loan money to settlers to build and buy livestock when the land is paid for. With each purchase we furnish insurance free, which protects your family in case of your death. We maintain expert farm advisers the year round for the benefit of our customers. Our big beautiful booklet will be cheerfully mailed to you upon request, and you need feel yourself under no obligations whatever in requesting it.

IF INTERESTED IN THE SPLENDID LANDS write for this booklet today or call on us personally.

DANCING SCHOOLS.

THERE'S A WRONG AND THERE'S A RIGHT WAY TO LEARN DANCING.

Learn the difference before you spend a cent. You will save time, money and disappointment. The wrong way is to start with hard complicated steps and figures, which are confusing. The right way is to learn the simple easy, popular steps first, so easy that you can dance with a good dancer after the first lesson. Several lessons with liberal practice will make you a good dancer. I teach the simple popular steps.

Gentlemen Beginners Class. Instructions Free. 8 TO 9 WEDNESDAY AND FRIDAY EVES. SATURDAY AFTERNOON, 2 TO 3.

After the class 60 lady instructors give practice and instructions with orchestra music. 3 dances 25 cents. Admission 10 cents. Your choice of instructors. $1.50 per hour practice also.

BUICKS

Most prospective Buick buyers know that it is next to impossible to get a new Buick this year.

Naturally the next choice is a good used Buick.

Up to the present we have been able to keep our line of used Buicks complete, but the demand and sales of the past ten days has practically made this impossible.

HENCE OUR SUGGESTION. IF YOU WANT A GOOD USED BUICK, REBUILT, GUARANTEED, AND CORRECTLY PRICED, AND PREFER TO DEAL WITH A BUICK HOUSE, YOU MUST ACT QUICKLY.

THE GOLD STANDARD OF MATTRESS VALUE.

Every one who knows anything about mattresses knows that a mattress made of curled hair is the acme of comfort. But many homes have gone without this luxurious comfort because of the cost.

This company, formerly the bedding dept. of Wilson & Co., makes only the finest grade sterilized curled hair mattresses and box springs. This line is known as the "Restgood."

We have determined to sell these mattresses and springs at the factory to any one living inside the city limits of Chicago at wholesale prices.

We use only the choicest sterilized curled hair and the best ticking; our workmen are the most expert in the trade. The high quality of mattresses we make are not found regularly except in the highest priced stores.

The same grade bought anywhere else, where you pay the retail price, will cost you almost 100% more than we ask. Come to the factory, inspect our materials, learn the truth about hair mattresses, see the "Restgood" made.

Our wholesale prices make the "Restgood" the most economical as well as the best mattress buy in Chicago.

Take any Archer-av. or 35th-st. car, or drive to 35th and Archer.
